Hear British Ask United States to 'Share Cost of War'

'RETROACTIVE' LEND-LEASE TO 1939 ONE GOAL

Keynes Assailed as Red in House

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—The British government is reported preparing a share the war cost plan for submission to the United States as a basis for urging an American gift of between $3,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000.

This news came simultaneously with a new outburst in congress against more aid to Britain, during which John Maynard Keynes, British financgial negotiator, was described as an arch leader of world communism.

Two main contentions made by the British share-the-war cost plan, it was learned today, are:

1. That figures show Britain's relative cost of defeating the axis powers was greater than the relative cost of the United States.

2. That it is in the American interest to help finance Britain's reconversion without imposing unbearable obligations.

Retroactive Lend-Lease?

One practical application of the plan, as suggested by some British sources, would be to make lend-lease retroactive to the start of the European war in 1939 and return to Britain approximately 3 billion 500 million dollars spent for war purposes in this country prior to the start of the mutual aid program.

Keynes, a member of the British economic mission which opened negotiations for United States aid here Tuesday, says the financial help Britain needs to become a great trading nation again is around 3 billion to 6 billion dollars.

It was Rep. Frederick C. Smith [R., O.] who described Keynes as "one of the arch leaders of world communism."

Smith told the house there is no economic hope for Britain because of what men of Keynes' sort have done there.

Warns of Repudiation

A second Republican, Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, pointed out that another Labor government under Ramsay MacDonald repudiated debts to the United States. Britain now has another Labor government, and charges have been heard that it is seeking United States cash to "underwrite the socialization" of that country.

Smith told the house that Keynes "is again in the United States conniving with treasury and other government officials to draw more blood from the American people for transfusing the economy of his native land, which is now so critically ill from the deadly nostrums administered to it by him and others like him."

Knutson took issue with President Truman's statement that it is "perfectly silly" to argue that America should not aid Britain because of the Labor government's socialistic program.

Liberals 'Liberal,' But . . .

Knutson said:

"The President no doubt recalls that the British government back in 1929 was also controled by Labor. Ramsay MacDonald was then prime minister and it was his government that repudiated Britain's debt to the United States. What one Labor gov-

Pupils Close Testimony in Religion Suit

BY GUY GENTRY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 13—Presentation of evidence was completed late this afternoon in the mandamus suit of Mrs. Vashti McCollum to prohibit religious education in the Champaign public schools, assuring conclusion of the trial tomorrow afternoon after each side has had three and one-half hours for closing arguments. The court is expected to take the case under advisement, announcing a decision later.

A downpour of rain thru most of the afternoon thinned only slightly the courtroom crowd that gathered to hear the last of the trial witnesses, a parade of youthful Champaign students who marched in and out of the witness chair as defense witnesses to repeat almost without variation testimony tending to prove there was no religious or racial dissension resulting from the course and no compulsion in enrollment.

Boy Is Last Witness

Elwin Miller, 11, was the last witness. He was the only other 5th grade pupil besides James Terry McCollum, 10, son of Mrs. McCollum, who did not enroll in the course during the first semester last year. Mrs. McCollum filed the suit in behalf of her son.

Elwin testified he had not taken the course the first semester because he was behind in arithmetic and he used that time in additional study. He did enroll the second semester, leaving Terry the only member of the class not enrolled. Elwin said he didn't know anything about Terry's religious beliefs.

Call Course Voluntary

Some of the boys and girls testified they had not enrolled in the religious education course, that they had friends who did and did not enroll, but that this made no difference in their friendships. All of the students insisted enrollment in the course was voluntary.

Peter Lendrum, 11, another classmate of Terry, said he was one of the four or five in the fourth grade two years ago who did not enroll.

Peter testified he had never known until the start of the present suit that Terry had religious beliefs different from his own. He said, under cross-examination by Landon Chapman, attorney for Mrs. McCollum, that he had Methodist, Presbyterian, and Congregational friends. Asked if he had any atheist friends, he replied, "Yes, Terry."

School Head Testifies

School Supt. E. H. Mellon was called as a defense witness to deny earlier testimony that he had stated if the American Legion objected he would not let Jehovah's Witnesses' representatives hold classes in the schools.

Chapman scored a point on cross-examination of Mellon when the school head admitted letters had been mimeographed in his office and mailed out to those inquiring about the religious education program, the school board paying for preparation of the letter, the mailing, and the postage. Chapman has cited a state law prohibiting the use of public funds for religious purposes.

NO JOB TOO SMALL

A Lady Learns Romance at 40 Comes C.O.D.

Miss Dorothy Eager, 40, of 6139 Ellis av., was hired last February by the Dayton Currency Exchange company. A month later, after training as an exchange manager, she was placed in charge of a branch office at 1405 W. 63d st.

Shortly thereafter she met Glen Mooney, 29, of 6338 S. Damen av., good looking and courteous. The two went out together evenings. It wasn't long before Miss Eager had fallen in love with Mooney and assumed his name altho they did not live together.

Mooney Relishes His Joke

Mooney became a frequent visitor to the exchange and stopped to talk with Miss Eager several times a day on his trips to a washroom on the employes' side of the counter.

Sometimes while Mooney talked to Miss Eager he suggested, half jokingly, that she agree to coöperate in a fake holdup. She always refused, and scolded him for mentioning it.

Early last June, while Miss Eager was checking up the day's business, she found a $35 shortage, which she made up from her own money. A week later she discovered $117 was missing. She didn't have that much money, but was expecting her superior to call, so she wrote a check for the amount to balance the books. The check overdrew her bank account.

The next night she found that $1,100 was missing. While she pondered what to do, Mooney drove up in a new automobile. She accused him of the thefts.

Mooney Falls to Return

"Well," Mooney said, "there's our new car."

Unable to cover the large loss, Miss Eager said, she and Mooney decided to clean out the exchange and flee. They took $7,700. They stopped at Mooney's home to give his wife $3,000, Miss Eager said, and then drove to Van Wert, O., where Mooney left her in a hotel room while he went to a near-by town to visit his parents.

When Mooney failed to return, she told Assistant State's Atty. James Brown, she purchased an automobile of her own and drove to San Diego, Cal. There last week she heard that Mooney had been arrested in Chicago and had blamed her for the theft.

She swallowed a quantity of concentrated spirits of ammonia. When she woke up in a San Diego hospital she told the entire story, and waived extradition.

Both to Face Grand Jury

She arrived here yesterday and repeated her explanation of the exchange's shortages—totaling $8,800—to Brown. Mooney, Brown told her, has been arraigned in Felony court on a larceny charge, and is in jail in lieu of $7,500 bond. His case was continued until Sept. 27.

Both Mooney and Miss Eager, Brown said, will be taken before the grand jury.

CROSS THE COUNTRY IN 60 DAYS? SAYS HE CAN DO IT IN A WALK!

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP)—A muscular steelworker who estimates he has added 20 years to his life by walking 260,000 miles, predicted today that next summer, at the age of 59, he would lop 15 days off the transcontinental heel-and-toe record.

And as a tuneup for his coast to coast grind, A. F. Bergman of Leetsdale announced he'll walk the 500 miles from Pittsburgh to Chicago during his vacation the end of this month.

Bergman said the late Edward Payson Weston set the transcontinental walking record of 75 days, but that "I know I can do it with ease in 60 days."

Walking records he claims are Pittsburgh to Chicago in six days, 23 hours, and Pittsburgh to New York, 400 miles over the Allegheny mountains, in six days, five hours.

WIFE'S LETTERS TO WAINWRIGHT HELD UP BY JAPS

New York, Sept. 13 [Special]—Mrs. Jonathan M. Wainright revealed today that the Japs practiced a cruel form of mental torture on her husband in retaliation for his ordering a cave containing Japs blown up during his last ditch stand on Bataan. They withheld from him nearly all of the hundreds of letters she wrote him during his years of confinement.

"In three and a half years they gave my husband six of my missives. Three of those were 24 word post cards," she related in quiet, bitter tones, following the triumphal welcome New York gave him. "I had written him from one to seven letters a week. A general who was confined with him received 60 letters from his wife."

Discussing Wainright's present condition, she said, "He is starved."

Boy, 15, Saves Two Children in Fiery Trap

Two children were saved from a flaming basement on the far south side yesterday thru the heroism of a 15 year old school boy who broke thru a basement window and handed the youngsters thru the window to their frantic mother outside.

The children, Robert F. Hawthorne Jr., 5, and his sister, Betty, 3, were burned, the girl severely. Both suffered shock and were taken to the South Chicago hospital. The hero of the near tragedy was William Koop, 15, of 9713 Merrill av., a freshman at Chicago Vocational High school.

Blaze Blocks Stairway

The Hawthorne children were playing in the basement of their home at 9803 Clyde av. when the fire started. Firemen said later they probably had been playing with matches. By the time their mother, Mrs. La Verne Hawthorne, discovered the blaze, the basement stairway was blocked by flames and the basement filled with smoke. Her husband, a real estate man, was in Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. Hawthorne ran outside and kicked in a basement window, but cut her foot in the act. She was unable to get thru, however, because of the smoke and the smallness of the window.

Then Koop happened along. When Mrs. Hawthorne cried that her children were in the basement, the boy didn't hesitate. He pushed his way thru the window and into the smoke and fire. He groped his way around until he found Robert and Betty unconscious on the floor.

Hands Girl Out First

He picked the girl up first and handed her out thru the window, then did the same with the boy. Then he climbed out himself. Allen Guger, 2144 E. 98th st., a fireman off duty, applied artificial respiration to the children until inhalator squad 3, under Lt. Charles Zack, appeared. Mrs. Hawthorne was taken to the hospital with the children.

Pearl Harbor Quiz Planners Bypass Walsh

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—Administration leaders on Capitol hill today staged a series of political maneuvers which had the apparent objective of laying a groundwork for a whitewash of the late President Roosevelt in the Pearl Harbor probe.

The scheme cooked up by Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.], was intended to bar Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.], from the chairmanship of the joint congressional investigating committee, authorized last Tuesday by both houses.

Under Sen. Walsh, it was widely agreed, the inquiry would be zealous in its endeavor to uncover all the evidence fixing responsibility for American unpreparedness in our Pacific outpost on Dec. 7, 1941. If the late President was involved by the testimony, there would be no coverup of any kind, congressional observers commented.

Assailed During Campaign

President Truman, as candidate for Vice President in last year's campaign, assailed Walsh in Massachusetts as an isolationist who needed "reform." Walsh, in return, blistered Mr. Truman and later refused an invitation from Mr. Roosevelt to sit on the platform when the latter made his Boston campaign speech.

Rayburn informed Minority Leader Martin [R., Mass.], that it was the leaders' purpose to ban all members of the senate and house military and naval affairs committees from the committee. Walsh is chairman of the senate naval affairs committee and under this rule would be prevented from membership on the committee. If appointed, he would undoubtedly by voted in as chairman by the 10 members.

Short and Mott Chosen

Martin had already selected Representatives Short [R., Mo.], and Mott, [R., Ore.], as the two Republican members of the group from the house. Short is a member of the military affairs committee and Mott a member of the naval affairs committee.

Martin demurred to Rayburn's proposal, but the latter was adamant, and Martin tentatively selected Representatives Keefe [R., Wis.] and Gearhart [R., Cal.] as the two Republican members of the committee in case Rayburn should insist upon his stand.

Rayburn announced he would name the five house members of the committee tomorrow, and Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], president pro tempore of the senate, is also expected to name the five senate members at the same time.

The Rayburn proposal would also bar from the committee Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], a member of the naval affairs committee. Brewster and Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] had been selected as the two senate Republicans to serve.

Secrecy on Code Asked

Meanwhile, the navy renewed its pleas to senators to keep secret part of the evidence turned over to congress from three navy inquiries into the disaster. Comdr. W. H. English told an executive session of the naval affairs committee that the navy fears other nations might learn how the United States broke the Japanese code if the complete record is made public.

The fact that the code was broken was not published in the United States, altho the fact was known rather widely, until it was publicized in Sydney, Australia, by Defense Minister Beasley. He said the code had been cracked by American naval intelligence before the battle of the Coral sea.

Chairman Walsh said the committee would decide soon whether part of the files should be withheld. The decision may be affected by the administration moves to keep him off the investigating committee.

Out in Missouri They're Catching Fish with Oars

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Sept. 13 (AP)—Fishermen at Wappapello lake get in a boat, take along a strong light, and get out into the spillway before the dam. They then make a lot of commotion in the water with paddles—and the fish, mostly bass, jump excitedly in the direction of the light. Two men got 40 pounds the other night that way. Now the St. Francis river below the dam is lit up at night like Broadway.

HODGE ALSO FIRES POLICE CHIEF; ASSEMBLY CHEERS

TRIBUNE WRITER MEETS RUSSIANS IN NORTH KOREA

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMY, Kinko, Northern Korea, Sept. 11 [Delayed]—A special train today pulled up among rail cars loaded with Russian tanks, trucks, and guns, and six correspondents stepped out amid hundreds of soviet soldiers. And a junction of the Russians and their allies in Korea had been made.

"American," we said, with what we hoped was a Russian accent. The Russians stared. Then they smiled. They wiped grimy hands on grimy trousers, shifted guns to other shoulders, and gave us a lift onto the platform.

"Speak English?" we asked. They said something that might well have been, did we speak Russian?

Admire Their Pistols

Everybody made talk and gestures which nobody understood. By pointing to their shoulder tabs we learned two stars was a lieutenant, three meant captain, and four was major.

Soon every one was admiring each other's pistols. The Russians had German, Belgian, and soviet ones. I got out a camera to take a picture. One captain objected, pointing to his whiskers and dirty clothes, but a big tank major and lots of others were content.

So we took pictures of everybody except the captain, shaking hands with everybody else. Korean children climbed atop piles of timbers to watch. They didn't mix with the troops as they do in the American zone.

They Reach Agreement

We walked thru the main street of this village to the former telephone building. The floor was newly scrubbed and soldiers were playing a Strauss waltz on a Jap phonograph There was more handshaking.

Eventually, they invited us in and soon there came another tank corps major, spick and span with a chest heavy with medals won at Stalingrad, Orel, Kiev, and Berlin. After 15 minutes the conversation brought out agreement that in America people drank whisky, in Russia vodka, in Berlin schnapps, and in Paris vin.

FLYNN'S PEARL HARBOR ARTICLE IS PUT ON SALE

Copies of John T. Flynn's article attaching blame for the Pearl Harbor disaster, first printed in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Sept. 2, will go on sale today in the Tribune public service offices at 1 S. Dearborn st. and in Tribune Tower. The price is 25 cents each.

It was this article, lifting the veil of secrecy which the late President Roosevelt cast over the nation's worst naval disaster, which prompted the congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor, now under way. Flynn placed blame for the tragedy on President Roosevelt.

"I am determined to give these facts the widest possible circulation," Flynn said, "and that is my only motive in offering the story in pamphlet form. Only a few courageous newspapers, such as THE TRIBUNE and the Washington Times-Herald, dared to print this story. I believe that people all over the nation are entitled to know the facts."

He has titled the pamphlet "The Final Secret of Pearl Harbor."

Canned Milk Dropped by Plane Kills 2 Prisoners

CHITOSE AIRFIELD, Japan, Sept. 13 (AP)—American efforts to ease the fate of prisoners of war on Hokkaido Island accidentally produced one of the war's bitterest ironies. Liberated prisoners said two comrades were killed Tuesday when struck by a crate of condensed milk dropped into their camp by a carrier plane. One was a survivor of the "death march" on Bataan and the other a member of the Wake Island marine force.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 12 [Delayed]—Southern Korea held its first open assembly in a quarter of a century in the city auditorium here today. Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of American occupation troops, called the assembly and filled the modern building with cheers by announcing that he had removed the Japanese governor general, Nobuyuki Abe.

Before and after the meeting young men paraded up and down the tree lined street in front of the auditorium. Some carried mock wooden rifles and attempted to goosestep. Others had flags and banners. These parades were the first in many years.

"We have permitted meetings, assemblies, and parades," Gen. Hodge said. "You have freedom of speech and of the press. There shall be no discrimination because of race or religion. I ask that you do not abuse those freedoms."

Gen. Arnold Takes Over

Hodge, identifying himself as a "common man, born and raised on a farm," said building a free Korea would be the work of years. He asked for patience.

Abe's duties will be taken over by Maj. Gen. Arch Arnold, commander of the 7th division, whose troops landed in Korea four days ago.

Tadao Nishihiro, the Jap chief of police, was also removed today, his duties being assumed by Brig. Gen. L. E. Schick, provost marshal.

Gen. Hodge invited each political group in south Korea to send two delegates to today's meeting. Men and women began arriving an hour early and soon formed a line down the street and around the block. Eventually 1,200 filled the hall and more waited outside.

Empty Political Prisons

Gen. Hodge's policy for south Korea appears to be slow, steady, and deliberate, carefully gathering information before taking action. His aim is to prevent political turmoil.

In 1919, inspired by President Wilson's 14 points, which included self-determination for small nations, Koreans attempted to throw out their Jap overlords. The Japs answered with force. Thousands were killed and ever since thousands more have been jailed. Political prisons were opened only three weeks ago when the war ended.

The number of prisoners is amazing. Virtually every Korean who speaks English has been in jail or members of his family have been imprisoned. Their offense was what the Japanese called "dangerous thoughts."

TOJO MINISTER KILLS SELF

TOKYO, Sept. 14 [Friday]—(AP)—Eighth army headquarters announced today it had been informed that Chikahiko Koizumi, minister of welfare in Hideki Tojo's cabinet at the war's outset, has committed suicide.

Meanwhile the Japanese government notified 8th army headquarters today it is ready to turn over to American authorities most of the Japanese whom Gen. MacArthur ordered arrested. There were 47 on the list. Koizumi was on the list. He was 61 years old.

The Japanese asked permission to make the arrests after Tojo, fallen war time dictator, shot himself Tuesday.

Tojo slept well last night and his condition was quite satisfactory at 9:30 a. m. [7:30 p. m., Thursday, Chicago time]. His temperature remained at 99, pulse was 110.

Army physicians said they expected to draw blood from his chest today. There was some internal bleeding, but not enough to be dangerous.

Tojo was able to eat breakfast and talk with Associated Press correspondent Duane Hennessy. He said that when he saw the Americans arrive, "I knew the time had come."

Tojo said he shot himself instead of using a hara kiri knife because "I feared I might miss." Asked about how he felt over the prospect of standing trial, he was noncommittal, saying "it is all being decided by the United States government."

The Japanese cabinet in special session wrestled with the problem of what to do with elements within the government that may be unsavory to Gen. MacArthur.

As one step, Chief Cabinet Secretary Taketora Ogata was stripped of his position as president of the board of information, but for the moment clung to his cabinet position. He was succeeded by Tatsuo Kawai, former minister to Australia.

Some Japanese sources, including the superintendent of the Tokyo police, denied that Ogata belonged to the Black Dragon society of terrorists, as MacArthur's headquarters charged in ordering his arrest.

Claim Two Overlooked

The Japanese professed to be puzzled by the listing of seven men as top terrorists in the Black Dragon society and said two of the most notorious had been overlooked. They said that two of the seven, Ryohei Uchida, one of the founders, and Seigo Nakano, were dead, and expressed doubt that two others ever belonged.

They said Ogata belonged to the Genyosha, another secret society of nationalists, rightists and super-patriots founded in 1879 and suspected of fomenting anti-foreign outbreaks in China, Formosa, and Korea in the '80s. Koki Horita, foreign minister in 1936 when Japan aligned itself with the axis anti-comintern pact, also listed as a Black Dragon, was said to be an influential member of Genyosha.

Authorities agree Genyosha's influence bore fruit in the "greater Asia" idea that brought the second World war to the orient. It was essentially an anti-foreign society, loaded with nationalists, jingos, and imperialists, and frequently worked with the secret knowledge and consent of the government. Translated, Genyosha means "black ocean."

Prince Fumimaro Konoye, vice premier conferred with MacArthur at the supreme commander's headquarters yesterday.

[Gen. MacArthur has ordered suspension by Friday afternoon (Tokyo time) of short wave Morse transmissions by Japan's Domei agency. Domei broadcast the new rule yesterday. MacArthur previously had suspended all Japanese overseas voice broadcasts and had placed Japanese newspapers under American occupation army censorship.]

Naval Students Dismissed

The even tenor of occupation was maintained, with the Japanese government announcing the dissolution of two hotbeds of militarism and aggression. In accordance with MacArthur's demands, imperial headquarters was disbanded, and 15,220 students of the naval college—the Annapolis of Japan—were dismissed.

Emperor Hirohito was advised of the dissolution of imperial headquarters, set up in 1940 to coördinate army and navy operations, by Gen. Yoshijiro Umuru, army chief of staff who signed the surrender documents; Adm. Soemu Toyoda, navy chief of staff, and Gen. Sadamu Shimomura, minister of war.

MacArthur's headquarters announced that Gen. Kreuger would arrive at the western Kyushu naval base of Sasebo Sept. 20 to arrange for the landings of his United States army of occupation two days later. The following day Lt. Gen. Eichelberger's 8th army will begin moving into northern Japan's port of Aomori.

The 43d [winged victory] division, New England national guard organization, started arriving in Japan yesterday to join American occupation forces. It has been assigned to the Kumagaya area, northwest of Tokyo.

4-POWER COURT DUE TO TRY JAP WAR CRIMINALS

Setup to Be Similar to That in Reich

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—Big shot Japanese war criminals probably will be tried by a four power allied military tribunal set up with headquarters at Tokyo early next year.

The revolutionary new principle of international law—that top officials of a government may be tried for starting a war of aggression—will be applied to Japanese criminals just as it is being applied to their German counterparts under the leadership of the American chief prosecutor, Justice Jackson.

It is not yet certain, but the probability is that an entirely new tribunal and prosecution staff will have to be set up at Tokyo rather than transferring there the tribunal and staff created by the allies for the Nuernberg trials of nazi leaders starting in October.

Similar to Nazi Setup

These facts were developed today after a top flight American authority said this government expects that the principles and methods used with respect to Japanese war criminals will be consistent with those applied to the Germans. He added that the United States government also expects quick and vigorous action.

Nonetheless, it was learned that while all the governments in the war against Japan are preparing their own war criminals list and while arrests are going forward under Gen. MacArthur's leadership in Japan, some months probably will elapse before the big trials can begin. This does not mean that trials may not be held almost at once for Japanese guilty of specific misdeeds, such as murder or torture.

The four countries expected to compose the military tribunal and its prosecution staff are the United States, China, Britain, and Russia, altho Australia has been demanding a part in this proceeding.

Has Civilian Judges

While the German tribunal will use military procedures to cut legal red tape, it has civilian judges—including for the United States former Atty. Gen. Biddle. Presumably the same arrangement will be made in the case of Japan.

Tokyo is expected to be the seat of the trials because, like Nuernberg in the case of Germany, it is the symbol of Japanese military aggressiveness.

Here is a breakdown of the kinds of war crime procedures which the Japanese face and what they mean:

1. Crimes against peace. This is something new in international law and is an idea put over by Jackson. It simply is that a man can be charged, judged, and convicted for plunging nations into war.

Others Need No Delay

2. Crimes against humanity. These involve racial persecution, deliberate torture or destruction of helpless people, etc.

3. Crimes against the laws of war. This would cover actions like the killing of American aviators who parachuted from their crippled planes over Germany.

In addition, the allies have adopted the new idea of putting whole organizations on trial in Germany. This same idea will be carried over to Japan. One mentioned as a possibility is the notorious Black Dragon society.

KINKAID'S SHIPS MAY FORM NEW ASIATIC FLEET

Report It Will Patrol Coast of China.

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ABOARD ADM. KINKAID'S FLAGSHIP, Rocky Mount, China Sea, Sept. 13—Reliable reports are that the 7th fleet, which operated thru the Pacific war under the supervision of Gen. MacArthur, will form the nucleus of a new post-war Asiatic fleet.

Adm. Kinkaid, commander of the fleet, has not confirmed the reports but they persist with the added information the Asiatic group will be divided into three sections, North China under command of Rear Adm. Francis S. Low; South China fleet under Rear Adm. Elliott R. Buckmaster, and the reëstablished Yangtze river patrol under command of Rear Adm. Clarence T. Joy.

Plans for the United States fleet to operate along the China coast and gunboats and similar sized craft to patrol the Yangtze inland to Nanking were understood to have been worked out between the Washington and Chungking governments.

Will Be Strong Fleet

In contrast with the comparatively puny naval strength the United States maintained in this area in the days when Japan began to flex its muscles, the new fleet will be extremely powerful.

It was reported the units will include new cruisers, a fast carrier force, numerous destroyers and other units, making up a fleet capable of patroling thousands of miles of shore line from South China to the northern borders and eastern areas of Korea.

Fatu Channel Picked

Fatu channel in the Chusan archipelago, south of Shanghai, already has been selected as the principal anchorage. Whether Kinkaid, whose handling of 7th fleet units in the battle of Leyte gulf last October was largely responsible for permanently crippling the Jap fleet, will command the Asiatic fleet is not known.

When the 7th fleet anchors at Shanghai it will be the first time our warships have been in that port since 1940.

Blast Kills 2, Hurts 100 at Genoa Munition Dump

ROME, Sept. 13 (AP)—A munitions dump near Genoa blew up today, killing at least two persons and wounding more than a hundred. The cause has not been determined.

Asks 20 Year Rule

Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, commander of the 101st air borne division, said yesterday that his reply, "Nuts," to a German surrender demand on the besieged Americans at Bastogne last December was a spontaneous expression and that he had become "fed up" hearing about it.

Gen. McAuliffe said American soldiers still in Europe are bored and want to come home, but he thinks the United States should maintain some occupation forces in Germany for as long as 20 years. Germans still are the best fed and clothed people in Europe, but it will take 100 years for them to straighten out their country, he said.

The general was the guest of the State Street council at a luncheon in the Palmer House. This morning he will visit wounded veterans at Vaughan General hospital. Tonight he will speak at the Chicago premiere of "The True Glory" in the Garrick theater. The picture is an official army film of great scenes between D day and V-E day.

JAPS' ENVOYS HAND BURMA TO BRITISH TROOPS

RANGOON, Burma, Sept. 13 [Reuters]—Japanese envoys, headed by Gen. Ichida, signed the instrument for the surrender of Burma to the British 12th army at Government house this afternoon.

The balconies of the throne room in Government house were filled with representatives of the three fighting services. At midday the Japanese were marched in. They stood at attention until Brig. E. F. E. Armstrong, chief of staff to the 12th army, accompanied by naval and air commanders, entered the room and ordered Ichida to take his seat and sign the surrender document.

PLANS TO SEEK U.S. EXTRADITION OF TOKYO ROSE

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 13 (AP)—United States Atty. Charles H. Carr said today he will ask that Iva Toguri, Los Angeles born Japanese broadcaster known as Tokyo Rose, be brought here for trial on charges of treason.

He said his survey of the case indicates that the United States District court here would have jurisdiction and that he plans to ask the attorney general for her extradition.

The young woman, a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, is under military arrest in Japan.

1,600 PRISONERS TO BE OUT OF SIX CAMPS SUNDAY

CHITOSE NAVAL BASE, Japan, Sept. 13 (AP)—The evacuation of 1,600 allied war prisoners from six camps in southern Hokkaido Island, in the northern part of Japan, will be completed Sunday, United States 8th army authorities said today.

The captives are being cleared thru this Japanese naval base on Hokkaido at the rate of more than 400 daily, the army said. They are being shunted on to Yokohama by army transport planes on the first leg of their trip home.

Lt. Col. James P. Devereux, commander of the heroic marine garrison on Wake Island, is leaving the Utashina camp No. 3 tomorrow, it was announced by Maj. Lyman B. Sutter, Long Beach, Cal., in charge of the evacuation. The camp is about 60 miles northeast of Chitose, over almost impassable roads.

Devereux in Good Health

In a telephone conversation with newsmen, Devereux said he was in good health, altho he had lost considerable weight.

"I have a few things left here to clean up and then I will take the train for Chitose Friday morning," Devereux said.

Prisoners in all camps are amply supplied with food and clothing as the result of B-29 and carrier planes' missions and the remaining prisoners will be expedited to Chitose, the marine officer added.

Devereux asked Maj. Sutter to attempt to get in touch with Col. John Patrick Welch of the army, Devereux's father-in-law, who is believed to be in this area.

The marine hero will be flown to the escort carrier Hoggatt Bay to confer with Rear Adm. H. M. Martin and Capt. J. A. Briggs.

Aleuts Among Prisoners

Prisoners in this area are American, British, Australian, Canadian, and Dutch, and include 25 Aleuts from Attu, some of whom intermarried with the Japanese. Several babies were born in the camp.

Prisoners passing thru Chitose today almost all appeared to be in good shape. Sutter said 42 stretcher cases were flown out yesterday, most of them suffering from malnutrition.

The prisoners said they had been forced to work long hours in small factories and in coal mines on insufficient food.

Devereux told members of an evacuation group who visited him Tuesday that casualties in the fighting on Wake Island were not great.

"Of several groups of marines, we lost five officers and 41 men. Of five navy officers and 58 men, we lost three men, and as well as I can recall, of approximately 1,200 civilian workers we lost about 37."

The rescue party said Devereux denied that a radio message—"Send us more Japs"—was sent from the island before it was overrun by the enemy. There were reports at the time that such a message had been received at Pearl Harbor from the Wake garrison.

Japs Bleed Yanks to Death

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 13 (AP)—A navy physician said today he had been told that Japanese doctors deliberately bled American prisoners to death to obtain blood for transfusions for Japanese.

"I was told this by one of my patients, a medical corps captain who was taken on Corregidor," said Capt. Stanton Allison of New York, medical director aboard the hospital ship Benevolence.

Two Chicagoans Freed

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 10 [Delayed by censor] (AP)—Listings of more prisoners of war liberated from Japanese camps were released today. Included were: Pvt. William C. Echorst, 4723 S. Halsted st., Chicago, and Pvt. Frank J. Gnat, 2117 S. Ashlan av., Chicago.

SEE WASHINGTON MOVE TO HINDER MacARTHUR RULE

BY ROBERT CROMIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 13—A story from Washington, D. C., regarding the possible ouster of Emperor Hirohito and his possible trial as a war criminal created much discussion and some resentment here today.

Some circles believe that release of the highly speculative tale was deliberately intended to embarrass Gen. MacArthur and make more difficult his task of serving as allied commander in charge of the occupation of the Jap homeland.

Emperor Coöperates

As nearly as can be learned here, Emperor Hirohito has coöperated to the fullest extent with allied authorities and it is not likely that he will be ousted unless he fails to continue to coöperate.

[An Associated Press story from Washington, dated Sept. 8 reported "as far as official Washington will say" the ouster of Hirohito and his trial as a war criminal are "good possibilities," and added "evidently the final decision is up to Gen. MacArthur."]

That the decision is MacArthur's is regarded as highly improbable here. Informed persons declare that while MacArthur's authority is great, any decisions so momentous as to result in the ousting of the emperor would be a matter for the "highest circles."

Breach of Faith

The affair is reminiscent of an evening on Guadalcanal when we were sitting outside Lt. Gen. Vandegrift's quarters listening to a radio broadcast from the United States.

We were constantly bombed and shelled in our precarious position and were not pleased to hear the ferocious tones of the announcer safe in San Francisco saying, "Bring on your planes, Tojo, bring your battleships to Guadalcanal. You can't scare us."

It also is pointed out in connection with the Washington story that any action against Hirohito now would amount almost to a breach of faith. Permitting him to continue in office since the occupation of Japan seems at least allied acceptance of his power.

BILL OF RIGHTS FOR CANADIANS ASKED IN HOUSE

Nationalist Trend Backed by Senate Leader

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Spt. 13—Sen. W. McL. Robertson of Shelburne, Liberal party leader and government spokesman in Canada's upper house, said in a senate speech today that it was "important" to encourage all Canadians in consciousness and pride in Canadian nationality.

He referred to the "speech from the throne" delivered on the opening of parliament last Thursday by Gov. Gen. Athlone, which called for a determination of Canadian nationality, the establishment of a distinctive Canadian flag, and set forth the other objectives of the liberal government of Prime Minister King.

At almost the same hour in the house of commons, Alistar Stewart, Canadian Commonwealth Federation member for Winnipeg north, called for the establishment of a bill of rights in Canada to "protect the minorities."

"Engross It on Books"

"I ask that the government introduce a bill of rights and that this house engross it on the statute books of Canada," he said.

The Canadian constitution, which is the British North American act of 1867, passed by the United Kingdom parliament, contains no bill of rights similar to the first 10 amendments to the United States Constitution.

Significant of the rising tide of nationalism in Canada which has been spurred by her accomplishments in the war is the fact that there is apparent political unanimity on the proposals to create a Canadian flag and to establish a definite Canadian citizenship apart from the loosely defined status of "British subject" which is the only nationality Canadians have carried since colonial days.

F. S. Zaplitny of Dauphin, another C. C. F. house member, in a speech Tuesday complimented the government on "the provision that is to be made for a distinct Canadian nationality and a Canadian flag."

Give Spirit to Fact

"I hope that when we have established a Canadian nationality," he continued, "something with which I believe all the honorable members agree, and when we have adopted a Canadian flag, we shall go farther and give a certain amount of spirit to the fact. I hope that in the future any one who has adopted Canadian citizenship whether by birth or naturalization will be regarded by his compatriots as a full fledged Canadian with all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities that are inherent in that position."

It is felt in informed circles here that the politically experienced Prime Minister King, whose control of Canadian politics spans more than a quarter of a century, stole a march on the other political parties when he put the issues of Canadian nationality and a Canadian flag into the mouth of the governor general, a British lord now vacationing in England, on the very first day of parliament.

Not only did King's government declare forthrightly for these issues, but it caused the Canadian ensign to be flown from the mast of the peace tower over the parliament buildings for the first time in parliament's history.

The ensign, which is a red flag with the British Union Jack and the Canadian coat of arms, is really the flag of the Canadian merchant marine, but it is as close to a national flag as Canada can now come.

Replaces Union Jack

Previously, except on V-E and V-J days when the ensign was flown to honor Canada's fighting men, the British Union Jack has always flown over parliament and has always been displayed publicly as Canada's flag.

The feeling on the part of many Canadians that Britain is now dependent upon them instead of Canada being dependent upon Britain, was shown yesterday in the remarks of J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit member of Lethbridge, Alta., in commons.

Needs Mutual Aid

"The damage to Great Britain's economy I fear is in a considerable degree permanent," he said. "The whole condition calls for a mutual aid scheme [the Canadian version of lend-lease] extensive, comprehensive, and in a large measure perpetual. If we do not provide for such a scheme we shall be neglecting to protect the standard of living of the matchless British commoners."

[Canada abandoned "mutual aid" on the same day the United States abolished lend-lease to Great Britain.]

Informed spokesmen here say that the demand for autonomous nationality for Canadians has been spurred by her great industrial advancement during the war, by the victories of her armies in Europe, and by the meteoric rise of Canada to a status as a major world power in diplomacy.

Canadian Board Formed to Check on War Crimes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 13—A Canadian section of the united nations war crimes commission has been established to collect evidence against former enemies alleged to have committed crimes against Canadian military and civilians, Prime Minister King said today. One of the cases involves persons who shot Canadians taken prisoners in the battle of Normandy.

Seize Suspected Tipster for Japs in Singapore

HERE'S CHANCE TO CAST VOTE ON DAYLIGHT TIME

THE TRIBUNE today offers readers a chance to vote easily in the poll on the question of year around daylight saving time in Chicago. In an adjoining column appears a ballot which may be marked and mailed in a jiffy. Mayor Kelly asked Chicago newspapers to conduct a poll in this manner.

The national house has passed and sent to the senate a bill to end war time, which is another name for daylight saving time, at 2 a. m. Sept. 30. Daylight saving time is one hour faster than standard time. Under a city ordinance Chicago clocks will continue to be an hour ahead of standard time until Oct. 28. The city council has the power to adopt year around daylight saving.

Nation-wide war, or daylight saving time went into effect by federal law Feb. 9, 1942. Its primary purpose was to save electricity, coal, and petroleum. Federal officials estimated that in a single year enough electricity was saved to make aluminum for 7,500 bombers.

Benefit to Building Programs

It also was contended that daylight saving extended outdoor working hours. Mayor Kelly has said that this factor is as important now as during the war to construction men in the mammoth building program ahead.

County officials have said that benefits likewise would accrue to the road and super-highway construction projects if year around daylight saving is continued.

Health has been and would be promoted by daylight saving because persons would have more reason to be outdoors, proponents declare. The mayor said he is confident that the recreation feature appeals to most persons.

Traffic accidents dropped sharply with the help of daylight saving and gasoline rationing, but have started upward with fuel plentiful again. Analysts of auto accident statistics say that continuation of daylight saving has become esesntial to prevent a rise of the traffic toll to record heights.

Farmers Principal Opponents

Most opposition to daylight saving has come from farmers and rural town business men dealing with them. Agricultural bloc spokesmen say hired hands quit work at 6 p. m. even tho the sun provides light for work much later. "Nature's schedule" for farm work means that daylight saving results in confusion, they say.

Antagonism also has been expressed by persons who are accustomed to early rising and who object that daylight saving in effect means they would be leaving for their jobs in darkness at certain times of the year.

Managers from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, eastern Missouri, and Memphis, Tenn., will attend.

TRUCK DRIVER ROBBED

Leonard Goldman, 1550 S. Kolin av., a laundry truck driver, was robbed of $27 yesterday by two Negro gunmen at 6027 Prairie av., he told police.

DAYLIGHT SAVING BALLOT

Mayor Kelly has asked the newspapers of Chicago to conduct an informal poll to determine whether Chicagoans favor his proposal that year-around daylight saving time be adopted for Chicago. Record your vote below and mail it to Daylight Editor, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago 11, to be turned over to the mayor.

☐ I favor year-around daylight saving time for Chicago.

☐ I favor retention of the present ordinance which provides for daylight saving time for Chicago from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

NORTH KOREAN LEADER SLAIN IN REIGN OF TERROR

Refugee Tells Trouble Among Reds

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 12 [Delayed]—A Korean Communist selected as a vice chairman of the government for north Korea in the Russian occupied zone was assassinated as he was leaving a conference with Col. Gen. Chistjakoff, commander of the soviet 25th army, a Korean refugee said today.

The refugee, who was a member of the governing committee and whose name is withheld because his family is still in Pengyang [Keijo], the Russian headquarters, said the shooting brought about nights of terror. Several hundred armed Koreans roamed the streets.

Unable to Agree

When Gen. Chistjakoff arrived in Pengyang on Aug. 26 he summoned members of two political committees, one called the party for rebuilding a new Korea and the other called the People's Communist party. The general, according to the refugee, who was a member of the Rebuild Korea party, said he was turning over the government to Koreans, and then for them to select a joint committee.

The two groups were unable to agree on a chairman so the general appointed as leader none of the Communist party men. Instead he picked a Korean landowner named M.S. Cho, who had been imprisoned by the Japs, as leader. One member of each party was named vice chairman.

Jap police and soldiers were disarmed. The Jap governor general and Jap army commander were imprisoned.

Stops His Truck

Except for many political harangues, things went smoothly until four days ago when a Communist vice chairman, riding home in a truck from a meeting with Chistjakoff, was shot dead. A Korean standing in the street motioned to the truck to stop, and when it slowed the Korean pulled a gun and killed the politician.

The shot set fire to ill feeling among Koreans. Men attempted to purge their long hates. Some of the Koreans, armed by the Russians to serve as police, became brigands, preying on their own people.

Cho, the committee chairman, blamed the assassination upon the Rebuild Korea party members. Chistjakoff ordered a new committee formed.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 13 (AP)—Four persons were killed, at least 35 more were injured, and thousands of tile roofs were destroyed or damaged in this capital by the earthquake that shook more than 200 miles of central Chile today.

Sliding earth temporarily blocked some highways and water systems. The Sydney Ross company, a United States drug manufacturing firm occupying a block long building, was unroofed by the minute-long quake.

The temblor, timed officially at 7:22 a. m., brought many frightened residents of the capital into the streets, weeping, and praying.

JAPS ARE STILL A MENACE, SAYS GEN. WAINWRIGHT

We Must Eradicate Their Bestial Elements

New York, Sept. 13 [Special] — With the acclaim of 4 million New Yorkers ringing in his ears, Gen. Wainwright, the 62 year old hero of Corregidor, tonight warned the nation that the Japanese will remain a world menace until the "bestial elements" in their nature are eradicated and they are stripped of the illusion that the end of the war was "merely a brake and not a stop to their ambitions."

Wainwright spoke at a dinner given in his honor by the Commerce and Industry association of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. Previously, he had experienced a turbulent day in which millions roared a welcome to him along a 32 mile parade route.

Must Learn Righteousness

"Before Japan again is allowed to take her place among other respected nations," the general said, "she must be made to realize that truth and humanity and righteousness, rather than deceit and cruelty and treachery, are the basis of international relations and the way of life."

The four star general, who spent 39 months in Japanese prison camps after the fall of Corregidor, said the Japanese "are not sorry for the torture they inflicted on American soldiers." He warned against giving them "a soft occupation or a soft peace."

"I have seen the Japanese as they are—with the veneer stripped off," Wainwright said. "I shall bear the scars of those years all my life and I could not forget them if I would. I have come to know the cunning with which they conceal their true nature and how quickly it leaps forth when there is no immediate chance of retaliation.

"The Japanese can be subservient; they can be pleasant and cooperative if it suits their purpose. But the men who were captured on Bataan and Corregidor have seen the Japanese character in the raw. They have seen what Japanese soldiers do when they are on top, and I think all of us who lived thru tortured days are determined that they shall never be on top again."

Heads 20 Car Motorcade

Wainwright's arrival from Washington, D. C., late in the morning was signaled by a 17 gun salute at the airport. Escorted by 100 motorcycle policemen, he rode at the head of a 20 car motorcade along a route that led thru 5th av. and the paper throwing financial district.

Streamers, ticker tape, and torn newspapers showered down in such volume that the general's car at times was hidden from view. Jam packed sidewalks emitted a continuous roar of welcome.

Accompanying the general were four men who went thru the Corregidor siege and Japanese captivity with him. They were Brig. Gen. Lewis S. Beebe, his chief of staff; Col. John R. Pugh, and Lt. Col. Thomas Dooley, his aides, and Master Sgt. Hubert Carroll, orderly.

Replaces Parlor Car

The Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company yesterday announced plans for a de luxe "living room" car to replace the railroad parlor car.

Casual arrangement of chairs will accommodate groups of travelers and four movable seats will be available to form new combinations with the fixed group.

Designers said some of the seats will parallel the length of the car, while others will be transverse. Some face windows, some away from windows, while others are placed in semi-circular units.

Seats will be of the lounge chair type, with reclining back, and will have a folding ottoman which may be used as a leg rest or as a chair table.

YANKS NOW RUN FORD FACTORY AT YOKOHAMA

Fix First Jeep 6 Hours After Landing

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 14 [Friday]—Six hours after the 12th ordnance service battalion went ashore at Yokohama it had taken over the former Ford Motor company plant and repaired the first jeep under the direction of Lt. Col. James Farmer Jr. of Norman, Okla. Late in the evening it was prepared to repair anything from a watch to the largest army motorized vehicle.

Having worked under canvas in the jungles these trained mechanics, many of them from Chicago and other points in the middle west, were delighted to take over a modern plant in which the Japs had been assembling army trucks on a mass production line.

Workers Return to Jobs

Within two days 215 of the regular civilian employes, including plant officials, were working under the direction of the United States army officers in the plant, which is 300 feet long and 500 feet wide.

Soon after entering the plant a bulldozer at work in the yard uncovered a huge pile of Japanese tires made of natural rubber. These, added to the stockpile found inside, made a total of 5,000. All of the tires will fit American army trucks. Two 25 ton diesel trucks were complete except for the bodies which were discovered in a corner of the plant. Large stocks of aluminum and brass, copper tubing, zinc, and steel were stacked outside.

Chicagoans Named

Among the Chicagoans now at work in the plant are Tech. 5th Grade Kermit Kunkel, 4530 Drexel blvd.; Pvt. 1st Class Joseph Mutschinszky, 1645½ N. Wells st.; Staff Sgt. Michael Kocher, 5211 S. Green st., and Pvt. 1st Class Joseph Norton, 5635 S. Aberdeen st. Others from the middle west included Sgt. Hulbert Jesswein, St. Joseph, Mich.; Tech. Sgt. Laurence Martin, Carbondale, Ill.; Tech. 3d Grade John Arpenter, Peru, Ind.; Pvt. Raymond Biroa, Joliet, Ill., and Tech. 5th Grade Chester Underwood, Abingdon, Ill.

LIST AIR FORCE TROOPS IN CHINA COMING HOME

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 13 (AP)—A proportion of American troops in China may be home for the Christmas holidays, Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer said today. He added that the home goings would depend upon the speed with which the Americans complete their missions, which he said amounts to facilitating Chinese reoccupation and the securing of areas formerly held by the enemy.

Redeployment will be conducted on a priority basis with enlisted personnel 38 years old, or 35 to 38 with at least two years active service, getting first call. Air force personnel already is being redeployed homeward.

Units listed for return include:

ENDURES 2 YEAR NIGHTMARE OF JAP TORTURES

Two years ago, on Sept. 18, 1943, Lt. [j. g.] Charles M. Bransfield, 6911 Euclid av., flew his torpedo bomber over Jap held Tarawa. A shell burst wrecked his plane and started a two year nightmare of systematic torture—beatings with a baseball bat, the water treatment, bamboo splinters shoved under fingernails.

Lt. C. M. Bransfield

That nightmare ended for the navy pilot yesterday when his father, mother, sisters, and brothers welcomed him home only nine days after his release from a prison camp in Japan.

Bransfield, 27, a nephew of James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, told of floating on a rubber raft with two members of his plane crew to Makin Island. They lived nearly a month there unmolested until a native turned them in to the Japs.

Japs Spit on Them

"They hauled us before the Jap officers, who took turns beating us with their swords," Bransfield related. "They wanted information about our coming blow in the Gilberts. Thank heaven, we knew nothing of it, so we couldn't tell them anything."

They were bound hand and foot by night and were under guard by day. Jap troops were allowed to spit at them and throw rocks at them.

After they were shipped to Japan, there was a succession of prison camps until they reached the infamous Ofuna, between Yokohama and Tokyo. Among the 100 Americans at this camp was Lt. Col. Gregory Boyington, marine ace.

Tells of Boyington's Grit

"They'd line us up and beat us with ball bats," he said. "Boyington once took 33 blows on his back without making a sound. He is a tough man and was worth a fortune to our morale.

"We thought we'd seen everything until they brought in the first B-29 crews," he continued. "They shoved bamboo splinters under their fingernails and used the water treatment on them. We could hear their screams all over the camp."

On Sept. 4, Comdr. Harold Stassen of the navy walked into their camp and told them they were free. "Next to today, that was the biggest day in my life," Bransfield said.

REVEAL HITLER PLOT TO ARREST 2,300 IN BRITAIN

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (AP)—Germany's elaborate plans to invade England in 1940 included the "automatic" arrest of 2,300 persons picked by the Gestapo, it was disclosed today.

A secret list which allied investigators found at the headquarters of Heinrich Himmler's security police contained the names of Winston Churchill and his ministers, British industrial, labor, and intellectual leaders, officials of occupied countries, and many refugees from nazi terror, prominent and obscure. The list was prepared in 1940 and was revised yearly.

Several Americans were marked for seizure—if found in Britain. They included Paul Robeson, the singer; financier Bernard Baruch, and three correspondents—M. W. Fodor of the Chicago Daily News, Donald Day, one time Baltic correspondent, and Daniel De Luce, Associated Press.

The thoroness of the Gestapo's work was evidenced by the fact that dossiers were kept for each of the more than 2,300 persons singled out for arrest, and the number of the dossier entered opposite the name in the list.

EXPECT INQUIRY ON BOTTLING OF PACIFIC FLEET

Navy Policy May Come Under Fire at Quiz

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—The congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor is expected to bring an airing of the American naval policy in the Pacific, with debate of the wisdom of concentrating the American fleet first on the west coast and then on Hawaii.

The American fleet was started westward to the Pacific during World War I. by President Wilson and finally was sent by President Roosevelt in 1940, to Pearl Harbor, where it was to meet disaster.

The creation of a separate battle fleet in the Pacific was announced in June, 1919. At the time it was explained that "possibly the paramount" reason for stationing a strong fleet in each ocean was to stimulate a spirit of rivalry within the service, and thus to promote the efficiency of the navy as a whole.

Political Motive Seen

This explanation provoked discussion within and without the navy. It was widely contended that the division weakened rather than strengthened the fleet. It was cynically suggested that a considerable portion of the fleet was sent to the west coast to make votes for the Democratic party in the 1920 Presidential campaign.

It was also noted that the ulterior motive of the creation of a Pacific fleet was probably to put pressure on Japan, whose star was then rising with the acquisition of the mandated islands.

By the end of 1919 the United States had assembled a fighting fleet numbering 200 units in the Pacific, a force almost as large as the entire Japanese fleet of that day.

Early in 1921 the Atlantic fleet was sent to the Pacific to join the Pacific fleet in maneuvers. In June of that year, after the Republicans had come to power, it was announced that it had been decided on the advice of naval authorities to station most of our fighting ships in the Pacific permanently in southern California.

Moved by Adm. Reeves

The American fleet was first taken to Pearl Harbor by Rear Adm. Joseph M. Reeves in 1936, when he based the fleet on that base during the 1936 fleet maneuvers. Up to that time Pearl Harbor was nothing more than a garrison. Only a few vessels were stationed there permanently.

Reeves, who was the first admiral to take the fleet to Pearl Harbor, later served on the board of inquiry into the naval disaster presided over by Justice Roberts of the Supreme court. The so-called Roberts report recognized that there were diverse views respecting the basing of the entire fleet at Pearl Harbor and stated: "We feel that the national policy in this matter is one that has been settled by those responsible for such decisions and that it is not within our province."

In 1939 the fleet shifted its war games from the west coast to the Caribbean in what was regarded as a gesture of warning to Hitler and Mussolini that the United States would stand behind the nations opposing their ambitions. While the fleet was on the east coast it was planned to hold a grand review in connection with the New York world's fair.

Ordered Back to Pacific

On April 16, 1939, the fleet unexpectedly was ordered back to the Pacific without explanation. It remained at San Diego until January, 1940, when it proceeded to Hawaii for war games. On May 7, 1940, the navy announced the fleet would remain at Pearl Harbor indefinitely.

Between the dash from the Atlantic and the basing of the fleet at Pearl Harbor, Britain had gone to war. Three days after the announcement that the fleet would have its headquarters at Hawaii Churchill became prime minister.

Churchill himself is authority for the statement that the arrangement for the United States fleet to patrol the Pacific was relied upon by him for the protection of British interests in the western Pacific against Japanese aggression. He told the house of commons that he discussed with President Roosevelt in the Atlantic conference of August, 1941, where it was agreed the United States "even if not herself attacked, would come into the war in the far east and thus make final victory assured."

Admiral Opposes Policy

At the time the fleet was based in Hawaii Adm. James O. Richardson was commander in chief of the fleet. He refused to keep the fleet bottled up in Pearl Harbor, keeping it employed in maneuvers. Honolulu merchants protested this policy because it lost them the patronage of members of the fleet.

At this time the administration began separating large units of the fleet from the main body for Atlantic convoy duty, which was described then as only a naval patrol. An Atlantic squadron consisting of a few small vessels had been created to meet difficulties arising from the Spanish civil war.

The Atlantic forces rapidly grew so large that a separate Atlantic fleet was created. Adm. Richardson resigned as commander in chief of the fleet after protests to President Roosevelt failed to halt the raiding of his Pacific forces. He was succeeded by Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, who was in command when the Japs struck. Kimmel did tie up the fleet in the harbor.

F. D. R. Policy Assailed

The Roosevelt navy division policy was widely criticized in naval circles. Capt. W. D. Puleston, in his book, "The Armed Forces of the Pacific," wrote in 1941:

"Until the two ocean navy is completed the navy should be concentrated in one fleet and kept in one ocean. At their present strengths the Pacific and Atlantic fleets would need to be brought together before undertaking a major campaign in either ocean."

Opening Marred

Judge Edwin A. Robson of Superior court, co-sponsor with Henry Sonnenschein, court clerk, of a divorce court nursery on the 11th floor of the county building, formally opened the nursery yesterday by solemnly handing glasses of milk to four bewildered children. The children drank the milk, and watched interestedly while Jack Olitsky, 32, of 1819 S. Ridgeway av., who had just been ordered to pay $15 a week child support, tottered into the room and fainted into the arms of Deputy Bailiff Joyce Plazek. Then they returned to playing with the rocking horse and other toys provided by Judge Robson.

BLIND, HE WINS BRIDE BY BRAILLE ACROSS OCEAN

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 13—Love may be blind, but Cupid needs no sight to make a match. This will be proved next month by a 44 year old blind British war worker when he takes as his bride a sightless American girl whom he wooed and won in a trans-Atlantic Braille romance.

Tonight the little town of Biggleswade, 30 miles northwest of London, buzzed over the surprise announcement from the United States that one of its favorite sons, Christopher Marsom, is going to be married. Almost every one in Biggleswade knows Chris, but they didn't know he was romancing with Mary Mansfield, 33, of Colorado Springs, Colo.

They've had a sympathetic interest in Chris for a long time, ever since 30 years ago, when as a boy of 14 he was blinded but didn't let it keep him from becoming one of the town's hardest workers.

First Word of Romance

Now they're happy to hear that Chris will take a bride in the little church across the street from the North Hill postoffice where his mother's been post mistress for many years. Announcement that Miss Mansfield, an honor graduate of a Colorado college, who has run a newspaper stand in Colorado Springs, was ready to sail Saturday from New York was their first news of the romance.

Marsom hopes the wedding will take place about three weeks after Miss Mansfield's arrival. His mother revealed that Christopher was trying to find a house.

Declaring that she believed her future daughter-in-law was "a very charming, well educated girl," Mrs. Marsom said that her son kept all his fiancee's letters. Typed, with the Braille lettering punched out on thick manila paper, they filled a trunk in an upstairs room of her thatched cottage and postoffice, she said.

Engaged After 3 Years

Marsom's sister explained how the romance started. "It was 10 years ago," she said, "that my brother wrote Miss Mansfield in connection with an article he'd contributed to the Braille magazine she was editing. Since then they've been writing to each other almost weekly. They became engaged after three years and planned to marry in 1939, but the war intervened and Miss Mansfield was not able to get permission to travel until now. They've never met, but love found a way."

Chris lost his sight after being kicked in the head by a horse. His mother helped teach him carpentry and he has built many henhouses and small buildings on farms near his home. With the outbreak of war he got a job in a plant at Luton making electrical devices.

LET OTHERS DO WORLD POLICING, SENATOR URGES

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 13 (AP)—Sen. Johnson "[D., Colo.] tonight proposed that the job of policing Germany and Japan be left up to Europeans, Chinese, and Russians.

He said in a radio talk that he would like to see 10,000 American observers stationed in the axis countries "to keep us fully posted on what goes on" but "other than that we ought to keep out of Germany and Japan."

He said "American militarists cannot give up their greatest passion—conscription" and "are begging for two more years of it . . . beyond the next election." He said the conscriptors contend that each man drafted will permit a battle-scarred veteran to come home and added:

"That allegation is a fraud and a humbug. On Sept. 1, 1945, four months after the collapse of Germany, there were still 12 million men in the armed forces."

14,000 JAPS GIVE UP TO AUSSIES IN NEW GUINEA

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 14 [Thursday]—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Adachi, commander of the Japanese 18th army in New Guinea, today surrendered his 14,000 troops to Maj. Gen. H. C. H. Robertson, commander of the 6th Australian division.

It was the second surrender accepted by Gen. Robertson in two days. The first was at Wewak.

MARCH OF DEATH MARINE HELD BY JAPS LIBERATED

Marine Pvt. John S. Kliss Jr., 34, a survivor of the march of death on Bataan, has been liberated from the Fukuoka prisoner of war camp on Honshu and has reached Guam on his way home, the navy department last night informed his father, who lives at 2417 W. 21st pl.

Pvt. Kliss is one of 12 Chicago area prisoners listed in a radiogram sent to Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, by Maj. Achille C. Tisdelle on Dec. 10, 1944, from another Japanese camp at Omuta, Kyushu, where they then were held. The radiogram, which Maj. Tisdelle said the Japanese permitted him to send, was not received by THE TRIBUNE. Maj. Tisdelle recently was liberated from a prison camp at Mukden, Manchuria.

Parents of several of the others listed in the Tisdelle telegram reported they received yesterday Japanese government postal cards stating that their sons were held in Philippine Island prison camps.

Ensign Jimmy Mullins getting welcome from Louise Johnson.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 [Special]—When Ensign Jimmy Mullins of Fort Worth, Tex., arrived here today by air transport command plane after spending the last three and a half years in a Japanese prison camp, he grinned and said, "It's been so long I don't believe I know how to kiss a pretty girl."

The remark was heard by Miss Louise Johnson of Asheville, N. C., an ATC information clerk, who volunteered to be a welcoming committee of one. That's how Ensign Mullins learned he hadn't forgotten how to kiss a pretty girl.

YANGTZE MINES DELAY RELIEF OF SHANGHAI YANKS

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ABOARD U. S. S. ROCKY MOUNT OFF SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 14 [Friday]—American mines laid in the channel of the Yangtze river by United States bombers before the Japs surrendered today prevented units of the United States 7th fleet from getting into Shanghai to remove liberated prisoners and internees.

More than 24 warships that expected to steam up the Hwangpoo river and tie up at Shanghai for the first time in nearly five years have been cruising slowly outside the mined area while American and Japanese minesweepers work overtime trying to clear the channel.

Today Adm. Kinkaid, commander of the 7th fleet, said he hoped to be able to get into Shanghai within the next 48 hours either thru the usual channel or by a roundabout alternate route.

This morning, the Rocky Mount and other ships anchored in the estuary of the Yangtze. Rear Adm. Clarence T. Joy, who reportedly is slated to command the reestablished Yangtze river patrol, came aboard to confer with Kinkaid about the mine situation.

Kinkaid said it was not yet known how many of the estimated 10,000 prisoners and internees in the Shanghai area are American citizens.

Three Japanese minesweepers with American prize crews aboard are aiding the force of more than a score of American sweepers in the work of clearing the channel. The principal minefield lies across the mouth of the Hwangpoo where it enters the Yangtze and across the Yangtze just above the confluence of the two rivers. Thirty mines were exploded yesterday and it was estimated there still are 60 American and 50 Jap mines in the channel.

BIG 5 MINISTERS TAKE NIGHT OFF FOR COCKTAILS

Palace Gets Hot Water; Molotov Brings Guards

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 13—The Big Five foreign ministers took the day off from their labors of drafting a peace for Europe and tonight attended a gay cocktail party in the palace of Westminster, where Britain's Foreign Secretary Bevin was host.

Principal guests of honor were American Secretary of State Byrnes, Russian Foreign Affairs Commissar Molotov, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, and Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh. The guest list was swollen to 300 with other members of the delegations, visiting ambassadors, and their ladies.

Chats with Attlee

Molotov was accompanied by an interpreter and a half dozen plain clothes soviet detectives armed with pistols, guests reported. This didn't keep Prime Minister Attlee and his wife from talking with the soviet diplomat, and later Bevin and Byrnes stopped for a chat with him.

The diplomatic set gathered in the royal gallery beneath paintings of British victories at Trafalgar and Waterloo. Thirst quenchers included cocktails, aged whiskies, and fine wines. Heaps of sandwiches, cakes, salads, and desserts were consumed during the evening.

It was reported the ingenuity of the lord great chamberlain's department was taxed because the royal gallery, where the king traditionally opens parliament, had never been used for such a party. But the déparement, with the help of the ministry of works, managed to muddle thru. Tables and chairs were commandeered from the house of lords restaurant and special hot water plumbing was installed.

Documents Translated

The five ministers held no meeting today because the numerous documents they had brought had to be translated into Russian, French, Chinese, and English. However, their deputies had an afternoon session, with James C. Dunn, assistant secretary of state, sitting in for Byrnes. A peace treaty with Italy was the first item on the agenda.

[A New York Times dispatch from London said that, altho there was no indication that the soviet union had yet had occasion to voice its concrete demands at the five power conference, it was reliably reported last night that these will almost certainly include the grant to Russia of a port on the Red sea, cession of Trieste to Yugoslavia, and cession of southern Tyrol to Austria.]

Questions on revision of boundaries and acquisition of territory at the expense of Italy were discussed by Byrnes when he met King Peter of Yugoslavia and Archbishop Damaskinos, regent of Greece. He also talked with Herbert V. Evatt, Australian minister of external affairs. Damaskinos tonigh. visited King George of Greece, who is living in virtual exile here.

When the council resumes its scheduled discussions tomorrow on the drafting of a peace settlement for Italy Byrnes will have at hand Arthur Bliss Lane, ambassador in Warsaw; Robert Patterson, ambassador in Belgrade; Maynard Barnes, minister in Sofia; and Burton Y. Berry, American representative on the allied control commission in Bucharest. They arrived by plane today.

Steel for State St. Span Not Expected Till April

Steel to complete the State st. bridge is not expected to reach the site of construction before April, Stephen Michuda, city bridge engineer, told the council committee on motor fuel tax yesterday. Michuda said confusion in the steel mills, resulting from the change from war to peace production, is responsible.

TOKYO, Sept. 13—Elimination of all military influence from Japanese schools will be effected as quickly as possible, Tamon Maeda of the ministry of education, said today.

Maeda, a former official of the league of nations, asserted that the most urgent need is revision of textbooks to remove war time propaganda that was designed to foster distrust and dislike of the allied powers and to promote a militaristic spirit.

He added, however, that shortage of paper and printing facilities might necessitate using old texts, with undesirable portions deleted, until new ones could be provided.

Order Schools Reopened

The schools have been ordered reopened, but this is difficult because of a shortage of buildings.

Maeda said 4,097 schools were destroyed by bombing out of 38,378 thruout the country. In addition 763 students were killed and more than a million school children dispersed thru the country as an air raid precaution, he claimed. Of those schools listed as destroyed 20 are universities, 80 are colleges and 15 are high schools. The remainder are teachers' training schools.

Shortage of Teachers

At present there is a shortage of teachers which will be remedied as soon as they are demobilized. Their salaries are low in comparison with other professions.

Maeda said that more than 95 per cent of Japanese children go to school and that there is virtually no illiteracy.

Asked whether modernizing the educational system might conflict with traditional amily customs, he expressed the belief that it could be harmonized easily with the traditional customs of Japan.

Maeda, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, was in New Ycrk as a representative of the Japanese library of information, but was repatriated.

BERLIN, Sept. 13—One hundred and twenty thousand American textbooks, comprising the first three volumes of arithmetic and the first, second, and third readers are being shipped to Berlin for the instruction of school children.

The books will replace nazi literature in the allied effort to deindoctrinate the youngsters of their Hitlerite precepts. Some schools are planning to make bonfires of their old books as soon as the American editions arrive.

Adopt Russian Plan

Col. Frank Howley of the Berlin command, former Philadelphia, Pa., advertising man, describing today's Kommandatur [command post] meting, said:

"The American proposal to close the schools during the winter to reindoctrinate the faculties with democratic principles was voted out today and the Russian plan to close the schools during October for this purpose, adopted. Since it is realized the schools must close this winter because of the lack of fuel, the Americans preferred to await that period to instruct the teachers. It is not decided whether German anti-nazis or American, British, French, and Russian officers will deliver the course lectures to teachers but that is being worked out now."

Milk Increase Denied

Howley said that the burgomeister was trying to place school classes part time in factories during the freezing months so the children would be warmed by the machinery while learning. The allied kommandature refused the burgomeister's plea for an increase in the milk ration to give children 9 to 14 years old and some hospital patients a cup of milk daily.

Gen. Gorbatov opposed the request on the ground that many Russian children lack milk and the Germans cannot expect to fare better than their victors.

AIDS OF HITLER HELP U.S. BUILD PICTURE OF HIM

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 13—In the little town of Ober Ursel, near Frankfort, American officers today are gathering every bit of information they can about Adolf Hitler. Their painstaking investigations will be used in identifying the former fuehrer if he is ever found—dead or alive.

In a prison camp under the direction of Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, chief intelligence officer of the United States occupation forces, hundreds of men who helped Hitler are being questioned. Included are four of Hitler's doctors.

Tells of Injections

Fat, genial, but crafty looking Dr. Theo Morell, who admits pepping up Hitler's energy with injections of ervitin, described the physical characteristics of his patient. He talked in competition with Dr. Karl Brandt, his erstwhile hated rival who accompanied Hitler on all his trips and lived in quarters especially built for him and his body guard on the grounds of the Berlin chancellery to remain within easy reach of the fuehrer.

Another specialist whom Hitler consulted frequently, Dr. Hasselbacher, added his information, and an ear specialist, Dr. Erwin Giesling, who was taken prisoner near Bamberg, provided the latest data on the fuehrer's health, since he treated Hitler for an ear injury which he suffered during the attempt on his life July 20 last year.

Believe Hitler Is Dead.

All these doctors believe Hitler is dead. They claim that his nerves were so shattered when they saw him in April that he could not have survived the German collapse. The Americans expect that soon Hitler's dentist will join the group and provide additional information.

X-rays taken when Hitler suffered from sinus trouble also are in the posession of the Americans who hope that the dentist will help them recover a little black box which he carried off from Berlin with X-rays of Hitler's teeth and those of Eva Braun and the fuehrer's chief lieutenants. A complete memorandum on Hitler as seen from a medical point of view is being worked out.

REDS SET LOSS FROM GERMANS AT $108 BILLION

MOSCOW, Sept. 13 (AP)—German armies which ravaged Russia both in offensives and retreat caused economic losses totaling 679 billion rubles, based on 1941 price levels, the soviet government said today.

[In London the soviet monitor said this would be equal to $108,640,000,000.]

The report was issued by the state commission for investigating German damage against the soviet union during four years of war.

Damage to state enterprises was estimated at 279 billion rubles, to collective farms at 181 billion rubles, to rural and urban civilians at 192 billion rubles, and to coöperatives, trade unions, and other public organizations at 19 billion rubles.

Translated into establishments destroyed these figures meant the total or partial loss of 1,700 towns and more than 70,000 villages.

Listed as ruined by fire or otherwise were 6 million buildings, which deprived 25 million Russians of homes.

REVEAL PLANE GUIDED BY RADIO USED AS TARGET

Dayton, O., Sept. 13 (AP)—A pilotless, radio controled target plane helped train B-29 gunners to become the scourge of the Jap air force, the air technical command at Wright field disclosed today.

The target ship also is used by anti-aircraft ground crews to sharpen their aim and by the navy in its training program. The ATSC said in a now-it-can-be-told announcement.

The radio ship has a wing span of 11½ feet and its 22 horse power motor gives it a speed of 140 miles an hour. It can swoop, dive, and simulate flight actions to evade fire.

The takeoff is by catapult. After launching, the target ship is radio-controled. Landing is made by parachute, released either by the control operator or as a result of damage from hits.

WOMEN OF FRANCE WILL GET SMOKES AGAIN, THANKS TO U.S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 13—French women, to whom the state tobacco monopoly has denied cigarets since rationing started in 1941, will receive a ration of two packages a month starting in December, the finance ministry announced tonight. Starting next month the cigaret ration for men will be increased from six to eight packs a month, with further increases probably early next year.

The finance ministry's announcement said a factor permitting an increase in cigaret rations was the 16,433 tons of tobacco received from the United States between March and August. This will be blended with domestic tobacco to bring the quality back up to the pre-war level.

Production of tobacco in state factories was expected to reach 3,300 tons this month as compared with 4,200 tons before the war, and 875 tons a year ago.

YANK ACCUSED IN TOKYO HATES JAPS, SAYS DAD

Ogden, Utah, Sept. 13 (AP)—Mark Lewis Streeter, an American detained in Japan for questioning on orders of Gen. MacArthur, hated Japs, his parents said today. Streeter, captured at Wake Island while working for a contractor, was accused of making propaganda broadcasts for the Japanese.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Streeter, told reporters their son is a former marine, a veteran of World War I. "If he did anything for the Japs he did it with a bayonet at his back," they said, adding. "If Mark was working for the Japs they would at least have fed him."

His father said Mark's real purpose was to help the United States war effort and to aid other prisoners. Mrs. Mark Streeter also lives here.

AUTOISTS' HOPES PUNCTURED IN ARMY TIRE SALE

Spare Rubber Will Fit Planes, Trucks

Ban Quality Tires

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—Tire manufacturers are to be limited to one quality of tire in each size, the war production board announced today. The agency said this war time restriction is being retained in order to assure maximum production. The permitted tire is described officially as "100 level." No premium grades and no tires of lower than standard quality may be produced. All types of tires will continue to be made with black sidewalls only. Manufacturers are being released from government control as to the size of tires they make.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—The first of the army's huge stockpile of surplus tires and tubes will go on sale to the public later this month but the event will have little meaning for the average motorist, it was learned today.

Rationing will continue to govern the sale of the additional rubber to civilian drivers, according to government officials, and only a portion of the tires no longer needed for military use will be found suitable for ordinary passenger vehicles. Others are of the heavy duty variety in sizes for trucks and construction equipment.

Some are odd sizes such as for airplane wheels with little prospect of civilian demand, the lists show, while others were specially made in this country to fit wheels of British vehicles which have no American counterpart.

Meanwhile, the army and navy have announced they are preparing to begin disposal of 120 million dollars worth of unneeded war articles in the civilian market within the next few weeks. The navy's portion, 99 millions, includes 6 millions worth of automobile tires and tubes which can be expected to relieve the woes of the motoring public somewhat.

Lumber and Canned Goods

Other items which the navy is releasing include lumber and building material, valued at 26 millions; textiles, 20 millions; canned fruit, 16 millions; canned vegetables, 20 millions; and tools, 5 millions; shoes, 2 millions, and cleaning solvents, 4 millions.

The army tires which are scheduled to go on the block shortly were declared surplus last month and are now awaiting sale under a 30 day grace period to allow federal, state and local governing agencies to fill their needs for municipal uses. Those to be returned to civilian channels by the navy probably will not be available until some time next month, it was said.

In its first offering the army is releasing 254,987 tires and tubes, valued at $5,243,609. They will be disposed of at scattered points thruout the country by the commerce department's surplus property board.

Sizes of Surplus Tires

The sizes range from 5.00 by 4, 6 ply, to 14.00 by 24, 20 ply. The former is too small for any use except on an airplane wheel, it was said, while the latter is an extremely heavy duty truck tire.

The most likely size for automobile users is 6.00 by 16, 6 ply, used by the army on the quarter ton jeep. A total of 112,656 of these have been declared surplus by the army, it was learned, out of the total of 193,686 tires involved in the whole transaction. Another 36,094, in sizes from 8.25 by 15, 14 ply, to 14.00 by 24, 20 ply, probably will find uses on civilian commercial vehicles, the experts said. The rest is made up of airplane sizes and the odd British dimensions.

There is no accurate figure available on the number of tires in the army's stockpile, according to the war department, because the tires are scattered in supply depots across Europe and in the Pacific.

Sword Travels

Mrs. William H. Solger holds Ethiopian sword sent home by her husband. [TRIBUNE Photo]

A souvenir sword found in a German arsenal near Rome, Italy, by Maj. William H. Solger and sent home to his wife, Mrs. Emily Solger, 520 Clark st., Aurora, was disclosed yesterday to have served once as a peace token between Ethiopia and England.

The disclosure was made when several inscriptions were found on the sword when it was cleaned. John A. Wilson, director of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago, recognized the inscriptions as Amheric [modern Ethiopian].

Translation by the Ethiopian minister in Washington, D. C., disclosed that the weapon had been forged in the shop of King George V.'s royal swordmaker for the young crown prince of Ethiopia. It was presumed the sword was seized during the Italian invasion of Ethiopia and taken to Rome, where it was taken by the Germans.

OPA MAY DROP PLAN TO RATION NEW 1945 CARS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—Contrary to original plans, new automobiles due on the market soon may not be rationed.

Along with the development of this prospect today, government officials studied a recommendation of the war production board's leather bureau that shoe rationing be ended Oct. 1.

Proposals to abandon plans for rationing the first new cars have been submitted by the OPA to WPB. The latter agency is giving the idea favorable consideration.

Production to Be Greater

"Plans for rationing were laid," one official explained. "before the war ended, when it looked as tho only 250,000 cars could be built this year."

Current prospects are for at least twice that many in 1945, and production is expected to hit the pre-war rate of 4,000,000 cars a year early in 1946.

If the OPA recommendations are followed, officials expect to urge some form of voluntary dealer rationing to the most essential drivers during the early weeks of sales.

Shoe Decision Soon

The WPB leather bureau's recommendation that shoe rationing be ended Oct. 1 has been submitted to Chairman Krug. He will confer with OPA Director Bowles and make a decision in the next week or so.

The leather bureau's recommendations reportedly are based on expectations that shoe production in October will be at the rate of 30,000,000 pairs a month. This would be only about 3,000,000 pairs less than in 1939.

The office of defense transportation, effective Oct. 1, is lifting all restrictions on the activities of travel agencies, to whom sale of railroad accommodations was barred July 21.

In view of accumulating surpluses from a near record crop that already has pulled down prices, the OPA today suspended ceiling prices on potatoes until Oct. 25.

FOREIGN TRAVEL SHIP PRIORITIES END TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—Priorities for travel by ship from the United States to all foreign ports will end Saturday, the state department and the war shipping adminisration announced today.

Increased shipping facilities available to private companies will permit discontinuing the certification and issuance of priorities, the announcement said.

Americans intending to travel abroad now may contact commercial shipping lines direct for their accommodations or may obtain information from the war shipping administration.

The announcement emphasized, however, that travel facilities to many areas still are limited severely and that passport requirements still are in force for departures from the United States.

ELLIOTT 'CAN'T FIND JONES,' SO LOAN IS UNPAID

More Testimony Heard in House Inquiry

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—Elliott Roosevelt, in testimony read to a house committee today, said he has not repaid the $4,500 advanced by Jesse Jones to help settle Elliott's loans because he has been unable to "contact" Jones.

This statement by Elliott was reported by members of the house ways and means committee who heard, in secret session, additional testimony from Elliott concerning his various borrowings of several hundred thousand dollars.

Committee members quoted Elliott as saying that at one time his debts mounted to between $300,000 and $500,000 and his net wealth now is "zero."

The assertion by the late President's second son that he was unable to find Jones amazed committee members, who noted that the $4,500 was advanced by Jones, then secretary of commerce, in 1942. Jones has resided in the capital for the last 12 years and currently has an office at the Statler hotel, members said.

$500 Paid on Another Loan

The sum put up by Jones included $4,000 which was used to settle in full a $200,000 loan made to Elliott in 1939 by John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company. The other $500 advanced by Jones was part of the settlement of a $70,000 loan Elliott got from David G. Baird, New York insurance man. The latter loan was settled for about $30,000.

Committee members said Elliott's income, exclusive of loans, averaged more than $30,000 a year before his entrance into the army in 1940.

Father's Advice Taken

Testimony read today dealt largely with Elliott's account of events leading up to the loan settlements by Jones.

Young Roosevelt was quoted as saying that he went to his father, President Roosevelt, some time after he entered the army [1940] to discuss his financial problems.

The President urged his son to get in touch with Jones about settling his affairs and Elliott did so, according to members' reports of the testimony.

Members' accounts differed as to whether young Roosevelt said the President himself also asked Jones to make the settlements. Jones has already said that he acted at the request of President Roosevelt.

Those present at today's session also reported that the internal revenue bureau has held Hartford may deduct on his income tax the $196,000 loss he sustained on his loan. Hartford claimed this deduction in his 1942 tax return, but a ruling on it has been withheld pending investigation of the transaction.

The ruling that the sum is a legal deduction was explained to the committee by Internal Revenue Commissioner Nunan.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

TOJO, pet bass in the swimming pool, put on a show for a photographer today. The fish, as a result of hand feeding, has become very friendly and swims after all who walk around the pool. Apparently it lives in hope of its trailees tossing it a cricket, angleworm, or grasshopper.

All the photographer needed to make Tojo flash into action for the camera was a few hoppers and a cricket. When he arrived at the edge of the pool Tojo swam up to the surface two feet away and watched while the cameraman set up his equipment. When everything was set, Tojo was still waiting patiently. His reward was a cricket thrown onto the surface.

Tojo Strikes Again!

Tojo eyed the insect for a moment, and then, scarcely moving his fins, edged a little closer to the surface. Finally, making up his mind, the fish lunged at the cricket with his mouth wide open. A swirl of water and a splash heralded Tojo's kill as he rose half out of the water.

The farm residents are having great fun feeding Tojo and watching his antics. Tojo has let it be known he doesn't care for caterpillars and even spurned a young mouse that fell into the pool. Tojo is spoiled now and takes only delicacies.

As a result of watching the pet fish perform, the farm residents have learned that it is more fun feeding fish and learning their habits than it is to catch them.

Dangerous Weed Found

A dangerous enemy was discovered on the farm the other day by one of the men. It is the white snakeroot weed—found between the hay field and woodlot beside Maramee road.

Snakeroot is the plant that causes "milk sickness." When cows eat snakeroot they become ill, and their milk is made poisonous and may cause sickness or death to persons drinking it. The snakeroot looks a great deal like the common late blooming thoroughwort, which is found in almost every woodlot and farm field. It differs only slightly in the design of its flower and the placement of its leaves.

The farm man who discovered the poisonous weed was about to pull it up and destroy it when he noticed that the weed was growing out of a large bed of poison ivy. Plans have been made to grub out the snakeroot and survey the woodlots to see if any more of the weed can be found. If any is discovered it will be killed immediately, because it is dangerous to the animals and the farm residents.

THE WHITE SNAKEROOT

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

EXPERIMENT with a midget variety of sweet corn this summer indicates that such plantings may be practical for small garden plots. The variety used in the farm test was Mason's golden midget, which grows to a height of about 40 inches and produces ears only 4 inches long. Tho the ears are tiny, the kernels are almost as large as those of standard golden bantam, and are comparable in flavor. Many of the individual stalks produced three of the small ears.

A complete flavor test of the midget variety was not possible because squirrels invaded the corn and damaged most of the ears.

Because of the small stalks, this variety could well be planted in home gardens of less than 1,000 square feet. The stalks of mature plants are about half an inch in diameter, and seed could be planted every three to four inches in the row.

BULGARS AMEND ELECTION LAW TO HUSH CRITICISM

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 13 [Reuters]—The Bulgarian government has passed a decree amending the electoral law in response to British and American criticisms that the approaching elections were not truly democratic, it was announced here today.

The principal change effected by the decree permits the opposition parties to form an electoral bloc and to enter the elections either singly or in groups by interparty agreement.

The decree is also said to guarantee all political parties registered before the date for presenting lists of candidates to take part in the elections.

PERSHING, 85, HAILED BY TRUMAN AS GREAT SOLDIER, STATESMAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—General of the Armies Pershing was hailed by President Truman today, on his 85th birthday, as a "great soldier who happily exemplified also the vision of a statesman."

"This should be one of the happiest of your many birthdays as you remember that this time we went all the way thru to Berlin as you counseled in 1918," the President messaged the commander of the American expeditionary forces of World War I.

The President's felicitations were among a flood of greetings the nation's highest ranking general received in his quarters in Walter Reed hospital, where he has lived for several years.

CAPTURE BANK LOOTER BEFORE THEFT IS KNOWN

New York, Sept. 13 [Special]—A man carrying a small zipper bag stood in the shadows early today talking to crew members of the Queen Mary, docked at pier 90. Patrolman Thomas McLaughlin paused and asked:

"What are you doing around here?"

"Nothing; I couldn't find a hotel room."

"What have you got in the bag?"

"O—a shaving kit and stuff."

When the patrolman made him open the bag the "stuff" turned out to be $13,500 in cash, wrapped in bands stamped with the name of the Colony Coöperative bank, Woonsocket, R. I. Questioned by detectives, the man identified himself as Lawrence Balmforth, 28, a teller of the Woonsocket bank.

Detectives said he admitted he took the money yesterday and fled by plane to New York. The arrest was so speedy that authorities at Woonsocket said they had not yet received a report of the theft.

READY FOR LAST CURB PICK-UPS IN PAPER DRIVE

A goal of 6 million pounds of waste paper has been set for the last city-wide pickup of waste paper, which will be held tomorrow, John R. Robinson, representative of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association, said yesterday.

Trucks will begin collecting the paper at 8 a. m. and the pickup will continue thru Sunday if necessary, Robinson said. The city hall office of Commissioner of Streets Johnson will be open all day for calls about paper that has not been collected.

Police Commissioner Allman instructed all policemen to arrest unauthorized truckers found collecting paper tomorrow. Official signs will be placed on the 700 trucks taking part in the collection.

RIO CONFERENCE STIRRED BY BILL TO CURB RADIO

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 13—The inter-American telecommunications conference was plunged into controversy today when Argentina's delegates proposed to differentiate between the freedom extended to the broadcast of information and the liberties granted the press.

Heatedly defending his contention that both mediums are the same, Carlos Maristany, leader of the Cuban delegation, said, "It is hard to believe that men attending a radio conference, who should be defending radio, could be in any way against radio." Maristany added he could not imagine any one at a press conference opposing free speech on the radio. Both press and radio must be free, he argued.

Technical Difference: Berle

Adolf A. Berle Jr., United States ambassador to Brazil, interposed that his view is that press and radio are the same, the only difference being a technical difference.

After lengthy explanations between the Cuban and Argentinian delegates, who were seated across the table from each other, Maristany informed the delegates that they had discovered the trouble was caused thru a misunderstanding of intent.

Earlier Berle proposed a resolution establishing the principle of freedom of information and providing guarantee measures. It said, "the United States believes that freedom of information is now the right of the peoples, entitled to be recognized and safeguarded by the nations."

The plan which the United States now proposes guarantees that information shall be allowed freely to leave the countries here assembled and that it shall be allowed freely to enter every other country.

To Send and Receive

It also provides that the press, broadcasting and information services of each country shall have the right, without hindrance, to send information and that receiving stations shall have the right to receive it without interruption or intervention.

"Men still have to fight in their own countries the struggle for free circulation of information once it is received," the resolution continued, "but the first step is to assure that the information actually can go and come. This we can do now by adopting the American proposal."

During the discussions of these resolutions the delegates from Argentina, where news broadcasts still are subjected to censorship, altho newspapers are not censored, advanced their proposal, not agreeing that radio should have the same liberty as the press.

Tomorrow, the whole world will ride on rayon... and

TIRES MADE WITH RAYON ARE ANOTHER GOODYEAR "FIRST"!

SOMEDAY SOON, you'll be able to buy a Goodyear tire made with rayon cord.

From that day on, you'll get such mileage, such safety, such comfort, such gasoline economy as car owners have never before enjoyed.

The miracle of rayon

Back long before the war, Goodyear was experimenting with rayon as an improvement on cotton.

We found that rayon was stronger, created less friction in flexing, and therefore generated less heat.

We hoped that through rayon we could conquer heat—a tire's worst enemy.

We believed that if we could get the right kind of rayon cord, we could make a tire which would change the whole history of tire making.

In our own research laboratories, we developed the kind of rayon cord we wanted. Next, we worked with the rayon manufacturers until they produced it. Then we built the first rayon cord tire. And that tire gave such phenomenal mileage and safety that even we rubbed our eyes at the records it made.

Then came the war.

Rayon and the war

In this second world war, rayon almost literally saved our lives.

For without rayon, neither America's industry nor America's armies could have kept going.

Truck tires—all large tires—made of the only rubber we had, synthetic rubber—burned out prematurely unless they were made with rayon cord!

Goodyear made more truck tires—more army tires—than anyone else.

And, having already pioneered in the use of rayon, Goodyear came out of the war knowing not only how to make the rayon cord tire, but how to make it so economically that the question of what the ideal post-war tire would be was settled—at least as far as the all-important cords—for years to come.

When will you get these tires?

Two things must happen before you can get these new tires.

First: Government restrictions on rayon must be lifted. Right now, all rayon is allocated to truck and other heavy-duty tires by Government order.

Second: The capacity of the rayon-producing industry must be increased. Right now, the rayon industry cannot produce enough rayon to fill all demands.

We expect both these blocks to be removed shortly.

What you can expect from this new Goodyear tire

Because these new Goodyears will run so much cooler, treadwear will be so much increased, that they will give you many, many thousands of extra miles.

And these new tires will roll so smoothly that it will actually take appreciably less gasoline to run your car.

A set of tires which will probably last longer than you will want to keep your car is no longer just wishful thinking.

The most important step forward in 33 years

Goodyear's perfection of the rayon cord tire is the most important development in tire making since Goodyear's development of the multiple-ply cord tire itself, 33 years ago.

We're confident that these new tires, like today's fine Goodyears, will make it truer than ever that "MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND."

ARMY WILL FREE 1,300,000 YANKS BY CHRISTMAS

Camps to Rush Release of 135,000 Airmen

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—While members of a soldier audience applauded senators urging quicker army discharges, the senate military committee today heard high ranking army officers describe plans for stepped up demobilization which would send 1,300,000 soldiers home by Christmas.

Maj. Gen. Henry

Maj. Gen. S. S. Henry, assistant chief of staff, said the addition of 155 separation centers to the present 26 would enable the army to reach a monthly discharge total of 672,000 by January. He said the program already has been so speeded that the September total will be nearly 400,000, instead of 250,000 as previously estimated.

The general based his estimate of 1,300,000 discharges by Christmas on the estimated capacity of the new separation centers. That figure, plus approximately 700,000 discharged since V-E day, will bring the total since Germany surrendered to 2 million.

258,000 on Way Out

Henry admitted there is a total of 258,000 men in the "pipeline" headed for separation centers. Senators pounced on that statement, Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] asking why men awaiting discharge must spend their time "picking up cigaret butts and cutting grass with bayonets."

"The boys who are cutting grass," said Henry, "are moving into jobs vacated by men sent overseas. The grass has to be cut."

The GI audience laughed loudly and the general had to wait, shuffling his papers, until they were silent.

The general disclosed that Gen. Marshall had ordered a more liberal furlough policy under which men get 45 day furloughs while awaiting discharge.

Clash Over Army Size

Johnson and Henry clashed again when Johnson questioned the need of an army of 2½ million by next July 1, which Henry said was the goal toward which the army is working in its demobilization program. Johnson said 900,000 men for Pacific occupation duty and 500,000 for Europe seemed particularly high.

"This problem is up to congress," said Henry. "You raise and maintain armies. Just tell us what you want. We can certainly mess things up if we don't maintain our military strength. When you plan, think of those 250,000 and more wooden crosses. We must stay in and play this game of power."

"I thank you for the lecture," said Johnson coldly. "But I think we lost those 250,000 men because of a lack of military research. I would like to hear you make a report some time on the future military use of the atomic bomb."

Henry revealed that the army expects to discharge 13,000 of its 45,000 physicians by the first of the year.

BELGIAN BOY, 16, FIGHTS AS YANK, WANTS U. S. HOME

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP)—Immigration authorities are puzzled what to do about a boy who joined the American army, won the Purple Heart, "came home" with the victorious 1st division, and now is in this country—without citizenship and without a visa.

Gilbert Leclerq

There appears to be a question whether the boy is here illegally—even if he did tell army officers his home was in Fort Worth, Tex.

The youngster, Gilbert Leclerq, 16, native of Soumagne, Belgium, was 12, he said, when nazi invaders executed his brother, Joseph, 19.

Gilbert vowed vengeance. Too young to fight, he waited three years, learning to speak excellent English, then joined the Belgian underground. In September, 1944, he helped rescue seven American airmen shot down over Belgium. At Leige, when the Yanks arrived, he signed up with the 1st division.

Gilbert fought thru the battles waged by the famed 1st and at Wetzlar, Germany, in April, 1945, was wounded by German mortar fire. When the 1st division came home, Gilbert "came home" with it, and was honorably discharged last week at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

He thumbed a ride on an army bomber to Washington, D. C., then came on another to Pittsburgh. Here, M. P.'s finally caught up with him, and turned him over to immigration authorities.

SMYTHE INSISTS ON TRIAL NOW IN SEDITION CASE

New York, Sept. 13 [Special]—Edward James Smythe, indicted but never tried in the mass sedition case in Washington, D. C., that ended with the death of the trial judge, issued a statement today demanding immediate trial or release. He said that he would surrender to the United States marshal in a few days and sue for a writ of habeas corpus.

Smythe, head of the Protestant War Veterans of the United States, termed the trial "a mockery of American justice" inspired by "communist propagandists of the Winchell breed," and said he would demand a hearing before the congressional committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster. He described himself as "a defendant in a case that has been hanging fire for nearly four years during which I was indicted three times and jailed twice and am still awaiting trial."

LIST DIVISIONS TO EMBARK FOR U. S. THIS YEAR

Speed Up Return of 5 Units in Europe

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—The homecoming date for five divisions in Europe has been moved up to the end of this month.

The war department said today the 9th and 16th armored and 63d, 69th, and 99th infantry divisions would land at eastern ports in September.

Plans made in June called for return of 15 divisions from the European and Mediterranean theaters by Sept. 1. A total of 20 have come back to the United States so far, with a few of them scheduled for Pacific redeployment.

Divisions Screened

The divisions had been screened, with low point men removed from those scheduled for early return to the United States. These low point men were assigned to occupational units or outfits scheduled for later return.

The army gave this summary of its program:

Divisions scheduled to embark for the United States in September: 5th, 6th, 7th, 9th, 14th, and 16th armored divisions; 63d, 69th, 88th, 99th, 103d, and 106th infantry divisions; 17th air borne division.

In October: 10th armored and 70th infantry divisions. Several additional divisions will come back in October, but have not yet been designated.

November: 92d infantry.

List Occupation Units

The department listed nine divisions as now scheduled for occupation duty, but said this list is subject to change. All of these units are being screened of men eligible for discharge. The occupation units are: 1st and 4th armored divisions; 1st, 3d, 9th, 42d, 78th, and 84th infantry divisions, and 82d air borne division.

Divisions which returned prior to September were: 2d infantry, 4th infantry, 5th infantry, 8th infantry, 10th mountain, 13th air borne [to be redeployed to Pacific], 13th armored, 20th armored, 28th infantry, 30th infantry, 35th infantry [advanced detachments have arrived], 44th infantry, 45th infantry [advanced detachments have arrived], 85th infantry, 86th infantry [redeployed to Pacific], 87th infantry, 91st infantry [advanced detachments have arrived], 95th infantry, 97th infantry [redeployed to Pacific], 104th infantry.

FATHER J. T. HUSSEY MADE PRESIDENT OF LOYOLA UNIVERSITY

The Very Rev. James T. Hussey, S. J., since February acting president of Loyola university, was named president yesterday in an order from Vicar General Norbert De Boynes of the Jesuit order in Rome.

He succeeds the Very Rev. Joseph M. Egan, S. J., who has just returned from California after a sick leave of seven months. Father Egan will remain as religious superior of Loyola. Normally the Loyola president directs both the academic and religious life of the institution, but in this case the two responsibilities were divided between Father Hussey and Father Egan.

Father Hussey was born in Cleveland, O., 40 years ago. He was ordained in 1937 and assigned to Loyola six years ago. He served as dean of men and regent of the dental school before his appointment as acting president.

CITY RAPS STEEL FIRM FOR DELAY ON AIR TERMINAL

Blame for delay in construction of the new $700,000 temporary terminal building at the Chicago airport was placed on the Bethlehem Steel company yesterday by Public Works Commissioner Hewitt and Walter E. Wright, city superintendent of aviation.

"We've progressed as far as we can go," Hewitt said, "until structural steel is delivered. The foundation for the building are completed—at a cost of $60,000—and $242,000 in contracts have been let for boilers, heating, electric, and plumbing equipment, window sash, doors, and even turntables for runways. Bids for a similar expenditure will be opened Sept. 18 and 21 for roofing, sheet metal work, glass, millwork, painting, and floor covering. But we can't do a single bit of work until that steel gets here!"

A $46,500 contract for structural steel was awarded to the Bethlehem company months ago, he said. It was in war time and the company said the earliest delivery date would be Oct. 15. Since the end of the war, Hewitt has pressed for an earlier delivery, pointing out that the mills have lost enough war contracts to permit them to concentrate on civilian production.

Today! The gin you've waited 3 years to enjoy!

Gin of pre-war quality made from pre-war imported botanicals

1 Today Hiram Walker brings you gin made with the same imported herbs, roots and berries used in the making of Hiram Walker's pre-war gin.

2 And remember, between Repeal and Pearl Harbor Americans bought more Walker-made gin than any other kind.

Cassia from China . . . prize orange peel from Valencia . . . choice coriander from Czechoslovakia . . . these and all the other rare herbs, roots, and berries used in making Hiram Walker's Gin today come from a supply imported before the war.

TODAY, you can once again enjoy the pleasure of real, pre-war quality gin.

For Hiram Walker's Gin is made not only to pre-war formula . . . but from pre-war imported botanicals which are unobtainable today.

The reason we now have these rare botanicals, like cassia from China and coriander from Czechoslovakia, is this:

Prior to the war it was always our policy to purchase these botanicals only in the best crop years—and to buy far in excess of our annual requirements. This enabled us always to have on hand a treasured reserve.

When we suspended gin distilling in favor of war production in February 1942, this priceless reserve was carefully preserved and sealed away.

Today, it's these pre-war, imported botanicals that give Hiram Walker's Gin its real, pre-war quality. The quality which, between Repeal and Pearl Harbor, led Americans to buy more Walker-made gin than any other kind.

DESTROYER POPE SUNK BY JAPS IN JAVA SEA IN 1942

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 13 (AP)—The mystery that long shrouded the fate of the United States destroyer Pope was cleared today as Commodore Belford C. Blinn, its commander, returned from a Japanese prisoner of war camp.

Commodore B. C. Blinn

The Pope and two British cruisers, the Exeter and the Encounter, were sunk on Sunday, March 1, 1942, in the Java sea by a Japanese force after having blocked an enemy convoy.

The last word from the three was a radio message from the Pope saying three Japanese cruisers were steering toward her. Subsequently the navy announced that only two men survived.

Commodore Blinn declared today that, as a matter of fact, only one man on the Pope lost his life in the encounter.

The crew was in the water 2½ days, with 154 men clustered around a 30 man lifeboat in which the wounded had been placed. The Japanese picked up the crew and took the men to Makassar prison in the Celebes, eventually transferring them to the notorious Ofuna camp.

George Reid McSwain, special agent of the federal bureau of investigation, arrived here yesterday to take over his duties tomorrow as head of the Chicago FBI office. He succeeds Spencer J. Drayton, who has resigned to become vice president in charge of research for an advertising agency. McSwain, a graduate of the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., has been in FBI service since 1932. He became a field agent in 1936 and has headed FBI units in various cities and at San Juan, Puerto Rico. McSwain said he planned no changes in the office here and that Richard J. Hosteny would continue as assistant in charge of the office.

NAVY OR HOME? CADETS TRAINING HERE CRY 'HOME'

Cadets at the Glenview naval air station yesterday were making up their minds about choosing between the alternatives, offered by the navy a week ago, of returning to civilian life or continuing training for another two years.

The new demobilization program which a Glenview officer spokesman said affects naval air students thruout the country, gives the cadets the privilege of electing whether they wish to proceed toward a commission or retire into the reserves free from future draft board call.

The choices expressed by the cadets are being tabulated. No deadline for decisions was set but the station spokesman said a compilation within the next two days is expected to show that "a substantial majority" of the more than 400 primary flight students will choose to return to their homes.

VETERAN SUES FOR OLD JOB IN DRAFT ACT TEST

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13 [Special]—The first court test of a returned war veteran's rights in the resumption of his old job was brought to public attention today by a petition of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] seeking to intervene in the legal action in federal court here.

A decision in the case is expected to affect thousands of discharged service men and war workers. The UAW [CIO] said the ruling would affect 350,000 returning veterans who are members of that union.

The original suit was filed in June by George A. Droste against the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, in whose Lansing, Mich., plant he worked before entering military service Dec. 1, 1943. He contends the company gave him two unsatisfactory positions when he returned to it after his military discharge last Nov. 30.

Laid Off Twice

Droste said he last worked for Nash-Kelvinator as a cam grinder at $1.39 an hour. When he returned to the company after his release from the army he was given seniority credit for seven months previous work and 12 months in military service and became No. 54 on the seniority list of cam grinders.

But because of cutbacks in work he was laid off, with 177 other cam grinders, last Jan. 15. Twelve days later he was reinstated as a lathe operator at $1.08 an hour, but was laid off again Feb. 8. The following day he was reinstated as a machine operator and was earning $1.04 an hour when he quit May 13.

Droste's suit seeks $382.21, the difference between what he contends he would have earned had he been retained in the job he left to go to war and what he actually earned. He also contends the selective service law gives him preference over all nonveterans.

In asking Federal Judge Arthur M. Lederle to permit the UAW [CIO] to be represented in the suit, counsel for the union asserted that the Droste is entitled to seniority for time he spent in military service, he is not entitled to "super-seniority" to the exclusion of other veterans or men who did not enter service.

The union also asserted that veterans of World War II. "may not hope to infringe on the rights of those who served in World War I."

"Legal victory for Droste," said the union's attorney, Ernest C. Goodman, "would impair the rights of 850,000 other UAW [CIO] service men and undermine the seniority patterns that are the basis of job security."

"Company Neutral"

Sidney A. Jacobs, attorney for Nash-Kelvinator, said the company's position is neutral so far as Droste is concerned, that it seeks only a correct legal interpretation of the selective service act.

Jacobs said, however, that the company does not agree with Droste's interpretation, based on a statement by Maj. Gen. Hershey, national draft director, and added that "we think Gen. Hershey has read something into the act or added something to it that is not there."

FOOD SHORTAGE FACES GREEKS, UNRRA REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 13—Serious food difficulties in Greece this winter were foreseen today by UNRRA officials who said an investigation disclosed that the country now has on hand only about one month's supply of UNRRA imported food.

"Since the Greek harvest this year was extremely poor, due to the drouth, locusts, etc., Greece will continue to import food thruout the winter on the same scale as it has been coming in, but if the food does not arrive serious hardships are bound to result," an UNRRA spokesman said.

UNRRA food receipts from April to July totaled 343,545 net metric tons [a metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds], a new high, with top priority grains amounting to 256,620 tons and the rest in sugar, fish, meat, sausage, milk, coffee, soap and raw root vegetables. The UNRRA program includes the importation of 90,000 tons of wheat this winter.

REPORT BRITISH PUSH 'SHARE THE WAR COST' PLAN

May Seek Lend-Lease Retroactive to 1939

ernment has already done it is perfectly capable of doing again.

"Liberal governments are notoriously liberal with other people's money, but they are shyer than a Shylock when it comes to paying the bill.

"Do not my colleagues think that it takes a lot of nerve for a country that has already gypped us out of 6½ billions and which was given 29½ billions in lend-lease during the war to come here and ask us to again trust them?

Democrat Asks Caution

"If we make a grant or loan aggregating billions of dollars to a government that is dedicated to the destruction of free enterprise, what assurance have we that it would not in time be again repudiated?"

Rep. Celler [D., N. Y.] introduced a resolution urging that United States representatives now discussing financial aid to Britain insist on fair British trade practices "as a condition precedent to the granting of any kind of help."

"We must offer and give help to the English," Celler said in an accompanying statement, "but that help must be with enlightened self-interest.

"Unless England dissolves the sterling bloc pool and abrogates her imperial preference tariff duties, we must withhold that financial aid she seeks."

As further conditions to granting financial assistance, Celler's resolution called for assurance there will be no devaluation of the pound sterling and a promise that Britain will seek cancellation in whole or in part of debts which she owes her dominions, protectorates, and colonies.

Owes 16 Billion to Them

Administration officials have been seeking a reduction in the $16,000,000,000 debt Britain owes countries in the sterling bloc. [These are countries which use the pound sterling as currency.]

It is felt here that if Britain cuts this debt she'll be better able to take on the obligations of a loan from the United States and won't need an outright grant from this country. Also, officials here feel that if sterling bloc countries had been as generous to Britain as the United States was with lend-lease, the $16,000,000,000 debt would not exist.

The general American official attitude on aid to Britain is that no sort of gift is possible and that the British will have to be content with some kind of long term, low cost loan.

Beyond the question of financial assistance are related problems of trade between Britain and the United States, and of the settlement of lend-lease and surplus property accounts. It was suggested by some officials that the current talks may lead to a general commercial conference of the allied nations early next year.

British negotiators, headed by Keynes, met in secrecy with American officials today at the federal reserve building for the first of a series of full dress discussions.

Facts, Figures Suppressed

Today's two hour meeting was taken up with a presentation by Keynes of Britain's external financial position.

British and American press officers who sat thru most of the meeting were restrained from reporting on it by a decision from Keynes that none of the British facts and figures developed here should be made known until it could all be published some time during the conference.

Another session will be held tomorrow.

Meanwhile, working members of both groups, organized into committees, are tackling problems of finance, world trade, lend-lease settlement, and surplus property disposal.

Undersecretary of State Acheson told a news conference today that the British are in a very serious financial situation, but that any help given them will have to be approved by congress.

State's Blind Assistance in August Up to $179,598

Raymond M. Hilliard, Illinois public aid director, reported yesterday that 5,131 persons received a total of $179,598 in blind assistance allowances during August. Payments increased $1,588 over July.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 14—Our National Anthem Is Born

DURING the night of Sept. 13-14, 1814, a young Georgetown lawyer named Francis Scott Key paced the deck of a small American vessel anchored near Baltimore while British naval artillery sought to pound Fort McHenry into submission.

Key was visiting the British fleet under a flag of truce and had negotiated the release of a prisoner of war. He was ready to leave when the British told him they were about to attack Baltimore and could not let him go then lest he warn the Americans. A British marine guard was put over Key and his vessel.

Now the attack was on in earnest. Key watched the sheets of flame erupt from the British ships and wondered whether the defenders could long withstand such punishment. Soon the guns stopped, and Key's heart sank. Did this mean that the fort had surrendered? Thru the murk he could not see what was going on.

The hours crept by with maddening slowness. When the first wan daylight came Key clapped his glass to his eye. There was Old Glory floating proudly over the fort!

Key snatched an old envelope from his pocket and jotted down the flaming first lines of "The Star Spangled Banner." The British gave up the attack and released Key. He finished his poem in a Baltimore hotel the same day. An acquaintance of his struck off the poem on a handbill and distributed it thru the city. Shortly thereafter a newspaper printed it.

Sung to the melody of "To Anacreon in Heaven," an English song well known at that time in the United States, Key's words quickly became popular. Not until March 4, 1931, did it become the official national anthem.

RAPE CHARGES AGAINST 2 GIs ARE DISMISSED

Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday dismissed a charge of rape against Corp. Walter Lojas, 28, of 4335 S. Hermitage av., and a charge of accessory against Sgt. Edward Hillman, 28, of 1426 W. 49th pl., after the complaining witness, Miss Adeline Serwyn, 28, of 4847 S. Wolcott av., a divorcee, said she did not wish to prosecute.

A charge of attempted rape against James Adams, 31, of 1635 Melrose st., was reduced to disorderly conduct by Justice of the Peace Henry J. Pendl in the Bedford Park county highway police court. Adams was fined $100 and costs.

The complainant, who is 37, fainted twice during the hearing. She testified Adams forced her into his car near 82d st. and Ashland av., drove to a lonely section, and attempted to attack her. Adams denied her assertion and said she approached him in a tavern and suggested he take her for a ride in his car.

BRITISH UNIONS ASKED TO INVITE CIO TO SESSIONS

BLACKPOOL, England, Sept. 13 (AP)—The 77th British Trades Union congress moved today to invite the CIO, sharply assailed by an AFL delegate yesterday, to be represented at future TUC meetings.

A resolution to that end was introduced by Bryn Roberts, public employes delegate, who said the CIO "did not refuse to meet the Russian trade unions nor malign them." The resolution was referred to the TUC central council.

This apparently was in reply to George Meany, AFL secretary treasurer, who threw the congress into an uproar yesterday with his charge that the CIO sabotaged America's war effort up to the time Germany attacked Russia, and his description of Russian trade unions as a means of "virtual enslavement."

Having earned the right, we repeat the truths proclaimed in our announcement eighteen months ago:

"CHICAGO TAXICAB OPERATORS HAVE KEPT FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE OF CHICAGO!

For the past 35 months—despite war-time conditions—the people of Chicago have been, and right now are, enjoying the best possible and cheapest taxicab service in the history of Chicago!"

PRE-WAR LOW RATE UNCHANGED; PUBLIC SAVES

• This gratifying and continuing result of increased total passenger service at lower cost to the public was obtained notwithstanding higher operating costs, critical manpower difficulties, material shortages, and—with no increase in the present, unchanged pre-war taximeter rate—a rate lower than most large Metropolitan areas!

CHICAGO TAXICAB OPERATORS MUST ALSO KEEP FAITH WITH THEIR LOYAL EMPLOYEES—BOTH ON THE HOME-FRONT AND RETURNING WAR VETERANS!

JOB PROTECTION FOR HOME-FRONT EMPLOYEES

• Deep and lasting gratitude goes to our battalions of organized loyal employees and their Union, who, under trying war-time conditions, served continuously and faithfully on the home-front, and who made possible for Chicago "The best taxicab service in the country!" Their jobs must and will be protected!

ALL OUR VETERANS TO BE RE-EMPLOYED

• To our valiant regiment of 1,273 skilled drivers, mechanics, and other employees—in the armed forces, who wish to return to their former jobs—we owe heartfelt thanks, and the moral and legal obligation to provide for their re-employment.

VETERANS' SENIORITY MAINTAINED

• The seniority of these veterans has been maintained on our payrolls, and all have received vacation pay. As veterans, their seniority will legally entitle them to their former jobs as against any present job-holders who have been employed since World War II.

ASSISTANCE TO ALL VETERANS

• A present and post-war problem is, and will be, those returned veterans, who, although formerly not engaged in the industry, now plan to make taxicab transportation their future career. To these veterans every assistance will be given, and good jobs will be provided for those qualified as drivers, mechanics, etc.—so far as is possible without detriment or prejudice to the livelihood and rights of our present and former veteran employees.

CITY COUNCIL AIDS RECONSTRUCTION

• Marking the first important advance on the road to post-war conditions, and better service, is the recent commendable action of the City Council of Chicago to facilitate the complete replacement of our taxicab fleets. Of the total 9,000 taxicabs authorized by the War Production Board to be manufactured for the period ending March 31, 1946, it is certain we in Chicago will receive our due share.

BETTER TAXICAB SERVICE COMING

• Again, we unreservedly pledge all our resources, our facilities, and our unremitting efforts to the end that the people of Chicago shall always enjoy, so far as is possible under war-time conditions—and we hope soon in peace—"The best taxicab service in the country!"

CHICAGO'S TAXICAB SERVICE EMBODIES THE PROGRESSIVE "I WILL" SPIRIT OF CHICAGO!

Charge Russians Take All Credit for UNRRA

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—Russia has seized control of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration's food and clothing distribution in Poland and Czechoslovakia for use as a political weapon in its attempt to communize eastern Europe, two congressmen charged today.

The members, Representatives Gordon [D., Ill.] and Ryter [D., Conn.] have just returned from a month's tour of inspection of operations of UNRRA in Europe.

Gordon charged the Russians are assuming credit for relief distribution in both Poland and Czechoslovakia, altho, he said, nearly all of UNRRA's funds have been contributed by the United States.

He Charges Propaganda

"The agency is obviously being used by the soviet union for political purposes to spread the communist doctrine across eastern Europe," Gordon said. "The head of UNRRA's distribution in this area is a Russian, and American representatives have little or nothing to say about what goes on. The Russians take all the credit."

Gordon said the UNRRA setup is "loosely organized" and much of the relief material, including food and clothing, is "stolen" before it reaches recipients. These items flow into the black market, where shoes sell as high as $100 a pair, he said.

Would Hold Up Funds

Ryter, concurring with Gordon's criticisms, said Russian "abuse" of UNRRA should be stopped before congress votes any more American dollars for the agency. A bill is pending to double United States' contribution, which already amounts to 1 billion 350 million dollars.

Both members agreed that many nations of Europe face a winter of privation, but said Germany appears to be in better shape than nations she invaded. Ryter said German women are wearing "beautiful hosiery."

"I take Jumbo along to help me shut my suitcases."

U. S. TAKES RULE OF LANDS WITH ATOM MINERALS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—President Truman tightened government control today over possible sources of radio-active mineral substances which might be used in the production of atomic energy.

He signed an executive order withdrawing from sale or other disposal all public lands in the United States or Alaska which contain deposits of radio-active mineral substances.

A few hours after the Presidential action Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, who headed the atomic bomb project, expressed the opinion that peace time productive use of atomic power is "a number of years, in fact, a number of decades, away."

OPA BARES 50% DROP IN SPECIAL DIET APPEALS

Applications for special diet rations have decreased to about half of the peak of 8,500 a month, James F. Riley, director of the Chicago metropolitan area office of price administration, said yesterday.

Ending of many ration controls has lightened the load in local ration boards and at the area office but the medical advisory committee which guided the OPA on special diet problems has been reorganized and will continue to function until all rationing is ended, Riley said.

Dr. Robert Keeton, head of the department of medicine of the Illinois Research corporation, 1867 N. Damen av., is the new chairman of the advisory committee.

PROBATION PLEA FOR DURKIN TO BE FILED TODAY

Atty. Henry L. Balaban notified the United States attorney's office yesterday that he would file today before Federal Judge John P. Barnes a petition for probation in behalf of Martin J. Durkin, 44, who has served 18 years in prison for the murder of a federal agent in 1926 and now faces a 15 year term in federal prison for transporting stolen automobiles across state lines in violation of the Dyer act.

On Wednesday Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe dismissed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Durkin in an attempt to escape serving the Dyer act term. Balaban said he would ask Judge Barnes to refer the probation motion to the court executive committee for assignment to a trial judge. The 15 year term was imposed by the late Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe after Durkin's conviction in state court for the murder.

Balaban said Durkin should be spared the 15 year term because of his long sentence in state prison and because the Dyer conviction sentence was made excessive in the belief the murder conviction against Durkin might be reversed.

14 LOOP HOTELS GRANT 10% WAGE BOOST TO 4,500

Forty-five hundred employes of 14 loop hotels, including cooks, waiters, waitresses, bartenders, maids, housemen, and other miscellaneous hotel help, have been granted wage increases ranging from 10 to 15 per cent, retroactive to Feb. 1, Thomas Rogan, president of the joint council of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders International alliance [AFL], announced yesterday.

Negotiations between the AFL unions affiliated with the council and the Greater Chicago Hotel association were completed yesterday, and union contracts are being prepared to include the wage increases, which Rogan estimated would amount to a million dollars a year, and a provision for one week's vacation after one year's employment and two weeks after four years.

The 14 hotels in the agreement are the Drake, Ambassador East, Ambassador West, Atlantic, Bismarck, Congress, Chicagoan, La Salle, Brevoort, Stevens, Morrison, Palmer House, Sherman, and Blackstone.

BEATING VICTIM KEEPS VIGIL AT UNION OFFICES

Carter Olsen, 30, mechanic who was assaulted by four agents of local 701, Auto Mechanics' union [AFL], kept up his watch at the union's headquarters at 113 S. Ashland av. yesterday in an effort to identify all of the men who attacked him last Saturday. Police also continued their search for the assailants.

Olsen has identified Frank Carroll, business agent of the union, as one of the men who attacked him in an alley at Augusta blvd. and Kostner av. after Olsen and other employes of the Greyhound Motors and Supply company, 916 N. Kilbourn av., had repudiated the union as their bargaining agent.

Police Capt. George Barnes, head of the labor detail, has obtained warrants charging mayhem [felony], and assault and battery against the four.

Atty. George R. Bieber was retained by the AFL union yesterday as counsel for Carroll and the other accused men, as yet unidentified, the union revealed.

BACKWARD PEOPLES

The winds of reform are sweeping the world. If any one has any doubt of this, he is referred to the high-minded new policy passed by the Australian house of representatives to improve the status of the natives of New Guinea and Papua. Even before the economic and social council of the new united nations organization could put on its spectacles and examine the condition of the natives, Australia, more or less on its own initiative, has instituted a program of social reform.

In the past, indentured labor was rounded up by professional recruiters who were paid by planters and mine owners at a rate per head. This system has been in operation for more than a quarter of a century, but Edward Ward, minister of external territories, suddenly discovered that it smacks of slavery. Henceforth natives must be engaged by employers personally, by associations of employers, or by salaried people in their regular employ. Those doing the hiring must obtain a license and post a bond of $162, which sum, it is to be assumed, is subject to forfeiture if there is any evidence that the new hired hand has been kidnaped from his native hut.

Prevailing wages in the past have ranged from 10 Australian shillings [$1.60] to 15 shillings [$2.50] a month. A floor has been placed under wages by the Australian house. Henceforth the going rate will be $2.50 a month. Rations, issues, housing, and medical care are said to be provided. Mr. Ward, in a bit of reticent phrasing, said he found "ample room for nutritive improvement in the native diet."

Natives, the Australian government states, are to be encouraged to undertake administrative duties, so that they can take an active part in the direction of their own countries. How the Fuzzy-Wuzzies are to be prepared for the assumption of these grave burdens after spending their lives in the bush or on the coconut plantations is not expressly stated, but perhaps the raising of the minimum employment age from 14 to 16 will permit them more leisure to familiarize themselves with the intricacies of self-government.

During the war a large number of American troops were engaged in New Guinea and the natives may have absorbed a certain rough idea concerning liberty from the association. In any event, Mr. Ward has rather hurriedly acknowledged Australia's "debt of gratitude" to them. The program of social amelioration, the Australian government says, is a result of the "pinpointing of world attention on New Guinea by Australia's part in the trusteeship discussions at the San Francisco conference." This may be taken as a euphonious way of saying that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has been exposing colonial exploitation in New Guinea, among other places, and the Australian government decided it had better clean up a little.

Chapter XI. of the San Francisco Charter requires that in reference to "territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government," the administering states must report to the united nations organization regularly on economic, social, and educational conditions. Abe Fortas, undersecretary of the interior, replying to an inquiry by Alaska's delegate to congress, has stated unequivocally that our government feels bound under this requirement to report on Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, despite the substantial measure of self-government which these territories enjoy.

The territories are not to be placed under trusteeship, as New Guinea must because of its status as a Versailles mandate, but the people of Alaska and Hawaii, who are American citizens, are required nevertheless to accept a degraded classification from the united nations organization. They are to be regarded as in the nature of second class citizens, not quite dependent peoples, but not quite free, either. They are placed a peg above the Fuzzy-Wuzzies, but a notch or two below Britain's subjects in India, who are represented in the united nations thru the fiction that they are self-governing, and Russia's slave population in Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia, who are technically regarded as citizens of "autonomous" republics.

Americans of internationalist bent are willing that their fellow citizens in Alaska and Hawaii be placed in this demeaning situation in order that the United States be committed to the global schemes which serve Britain and Russia. The united nations organization thus begins life in an atmosphere of complete hypocrisy, in which the enslaved millions are called free and men and women who enjoy all of the liberties of the American Constitution and Bill of Rights are regarded as wards who must be protected from the iniquities of the American government. The anomaly will be appreciated by those who still have a certain regard for the truth.

THE BASES WE NEED

The navy department has prepared a plan calling for nine major fleet bases in the Pacific and six in the Atlantic.

So far as the Pacific is concerned, the proposal seems to be adequate in most respects. If the suggestions are adopted, we shall retain a strong point in the Ryukyus and another in the Philippines from which to watch Japan and the China coast. We shall have seven other well organized bases reaching from Kodiak in Alaska to the Admiralty Islands on the equator. The plan is to be criticized only on the ground that Guadalcanal is not included. Perhaps it is not needed for defense but sentiment dictates that this island for which so heavy a price was paid and where so many American dead lie buried remain forever under our flag.

The arrangements suggested for the Atlantic are inadequate. It is proposed that we retain bases in Newfoundland and the Bermudas as protections for our east coast, and also the four major bases which guard the Caribbean approaches to the Panama canal. So far, so good, but in view of the developments in explosives and air weapons generally, it is clear that further protections are needed. We should be strongly based in Greenland and the Azores if only to make certain that these regions will not be used against us.

WHAT TIME DO YOU WANT?

Mayor Kelly has asked the newspapers of Chicago to conduct an informal poll among their readers on the proposal for year-round daylight saving in this community. THE TRIBUNE will be glad to coöperate in this endeavor to find out what the people of the city want.

At present the whole country is on year-round daylight time by act of congress, but by a resolution which has been passed unanimously by the house and is expected to win approval in the senate the country will return to standard time on Sept. 30. Chicago, like most of the other big cities of the country, regulates its clocks by local ordinance. In Chicago daylight saving extends from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October.

The national legislation instituting war time across the nation served in Chicago merely to extend thruout the year the daylight saving arrangement which our people had long approved for part of the year. The question to which the mayor seeks an answer is whether the community, after its experience with 12-month daylight saving, desires to have it continued on that basis, with the alternative of reverting to the April-October plan.

The question was debated vigorously a few years ago. At that time people could only estimate what the effects of year-round daylight saving would be and guess whether they would like the system. Now that everybody has lived under it, everybody knows whether he likes it. We invite our readers to signify their preferences on the ballot which appears elsewhere in this edition.

MR. MEANY TELLS SOME UNPLEASANT TRUTHS

George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the AFL, did America and American trade unions a service when he told the British Trades Unions' congress some unpleasant truths about the so-called trade unions of Russia. He likewise did the British convention a service, which apparently was not appreciated by some of its members who created disturbances on the floor during his address.

Mr. Meany paid tribute to the courage of the Russian people. He pointed out that the AFL supported lend-lease to Russia before this country entered the war.

"But," he added, "in simple honesty we insist on recognizing the so-called Russian trade union movement for what it is—a government controled, government fostered, and government dominated labor front that has denied to the workers of soviet Russia the basic human freedoms that American workers hold prerequisite to a free nation."

He asserted that Russian trade unions have supported a system of worker blacklists and deportations to labor camps and that the unions have stood by and permitted without protest the enslavement of millions of people in those camps. The truth of this charge cannot be controverted.

The AFL, said Mr. Meany, doesn't want anything to do with that kind of a labor organization. For that reason it refuses to join in the international labor body which the CIO, British labor organizations, and the Russians were the leaders in organizing at San Francisco.

The American Federation of Labor has defects, but among its solid virtues is the fact that it conceives the function of a labor union to be collective bargaining with employers in a free society. Its leaders, almost without exception, recognize that if they are going to carry on collective bargaining they have to have free employers to bargain with.

If government replaces the employer the labor union soon finds that it isn't bargaining; it is taking orders. That is what happened to the labor unions in Russia, just as it happened to the labor unions in Germany and Italy. Instead of representing and protecting their members, they became organisms thru which the all-powerful state controled and oppressed their members.

The backers of UNCIO, the world labor organization formed at San Francisco, have a different conception of the trade union movement. They see labor organizations as an instrument by which political power is to be seized for their members or, more exactly, for their leaders. They regard collective bargaining as minor tactics, to be subordinated to the grand strategy of political activity.

Mr. Attlee and Prof. Laski, in Britain, and the CIO in the United States apparently believe that they can carry on the two activities simultaneously and without conflict. They can, as long as their political activities fail of complete success. Once they win control of government and set up the kind of government they have sketched they haven't any one to bargain with. They need only look at their Russian "trade unionist" colleagues to see the goal toward which their theories are taking them.

GREEN GLASS COUNTRY

The region of the atomic bomb experiment in New Mexico, recently visited by reporters, has other stories to tell. Let us pause at the nearest railroad station, Oscura, to remark that this is a fitting name for a rendezvous of secret weapon inventors. Any dabbler in Spanish can translate it as "dark, gloomy." Then let us range on the old cayuse, 50 miles this way and that. Good stuff will turn up.

To the east is Billy the Kid's country about which books have been written, especially by the late Walter Noble Burns, whose name is mentioned when Chicago press veterans meet in annual conclave. To this day Sunday editors are fond of articles about the murderous Kid and the Lincoln county "war." Let's find something less familiar.

Note the railroad station close to Oscura on the north—a fair-sized town named Carrizozo. A few miles away, on a dirt road, is White Oaks, a ghost town of magnitude. It used to shelter 2,000; its present population ought to be about 100. Much of the architecture of its gold boom of the 1880s remains. Don't miss the Little Casino, a gambling dive managed by Mme. Varnish, so-called because she was exceptionally smooth.

The gold strike at White Oaks was an accidental discovery by John Wilson, a fugitive from a Texas jail with a price on his head. He was hiding out with two pals, who were innocent placer miners, and while climbing a mountain to enjoy the view he drove a pick into a rock, just for fun. He gave the specimens to his friends, saying, "I have no use for gold." He disappeared the next day, with gifts of $9 and a revolver. His find became the Old Abe mine, still in operation. It has produced well over $3,000,000.

White Oaks is the scene of "Heart's Desire," a novel by Emerson Hough of Chicago. He saw the town in full blast in the 1880s as a reporter for its weekly newspaper, the Golden Era.

About 50 miles west of the bomb crater is the Valverde battlefield, where Confederate cavalry from Texas fought the garrison of Fort Craig in 1862. The skirmish was a draw, but the Union troops withdrew to their fort and the invaders went on to take Albuquerque and Santa Fe.

MOUNTAIN, BEWARE

The mountain slowly builds his granite tower
To meet the clouds, and gives his rocky mass
Reposeful shapes of beauty, weight, and power
On which to meditate as ages pass.
Majestic creature, do you not perceive
The envious river grasing at your feet?
Do you not feel what vicious winds shall cleave
Your head and bosom, with whispering deceit.
Will you not heed that endless falling snow,
Rain, cataracts, and glacial ice with teeth
Shall grind a million years, and sun shall throw
His fire upon your brow with stroke of death.
Do you not hear the mocking sea deride
How deep he'll bury all your lofty pride!

The Wolves of Hyde Park

To supplement "The Ghost of Hyde Park" [Sept. 10], which referred to my grandfather:

Dr. Egan was born in Killarney, Ireland, in 1808. He studied medicine in Ireland, England, and this country, to which he came about 1825. He married in New York and came to Chicago in 1833, where he practiced his profession and engaged in numerous real estate deals. His town home was bounded by Morgan, Van Buren, Congress, and Sangamon sts., but not long before his death in 1860 he had started his country estate, which included a good part of Washington and Jackson parks.

He never lived to build the house, just a lodge of rustic architecture, but he laid out large plantings of rare trees, flowers, and walks. My father told me of getting a party together many times, taking a hamper of food, and going down to Egandale to hunt wolves.

Dr. Egan served in the state legislature, was a famous after-dinner speaker and wit, was on the first vestry of the first Episcopal church [St. James'] in the city, and high in civic thought. He was a close friend of Stephen Douglas and attended all the debates between him and Lincoln.

GRAVES IN ASIA

Below the unfamiliar grass
Men of our colder western blood
Lie still where Asia's rivers pass
To lap the deltas with their flood.

How can they sleep beside that flow?
All night the turbid waters run
Under a moon they did not know,
All day beneath a foreign sun.

Strange winds blow on them from the south.
New stars are bright. Not one can rest
With alien roots across his mouth,
With nameless flowers upon his breast.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

O. E. R. asks: "Is a navy man who had 35 points for discharge purposes on Sept. 1 and who married an enlisted woman in the navy on that date now eligible for discharge with 45 points? Can his wife obtain a discharge, too, if he is released?"

Aug. 15 was the deadline to acquire dependency by navy personnel by reason of marriage. Accumulation of points continues from month to month, and 44 are needed by enlisted men for discharge. WAVES need 29 points. The navy department has announced the critical number of points for discharge will be lowered from time to time as conditions permit.

Mrs. T. D. asks: "Will I continue to get a family allowance of $80 a month for myself and child if my husband obtains a discharge and reënlists in the regular navy? Will he get his mustering out pay if discharged to be reënlisted?"

The dependency and allowance act provided only for payment of family allowances for the duration of the emergency plus six months, which means six months after the day on which either the President or congress, by concurrent resolution, declares World War II. to be at an end. Any family allowance paid after that date will depend on future action by congress. A new law would be required. If your husband is discharged for the purpose of being reënlisted, he will not get his mustering out pay at this time but upon final separation from service.

A SCAR THAT GOES HAYWIRE

OCCASIONALLY an individual is encountered who is disappointed with the scar left after operation. He may blame the surgeon instead of nature. For some unknown reason the cells responsible for healing became too enthusiastic and built a far thicker ridge on the outside than needed.

Now and then such a scar will continue to grow and spread to the immediate surrounding tissues. This is referred to as a "keloid formation." It usually protrudes over or above the surface of the skin and is hard, shiny, and smooth except for the borders which extend outward in claw or fringe-like projections. Ordinarily, the new patch is pink or red in color, altho it may darken in time, depending upon the pigment content. Some almost look and feel like rubber.

The blemishes may follow almost any kind of injury including bruises and minor cuts. They have been known to arise subsequent to tattooing, insect bites, vaccinations, smallpox, shingles, and acne. Those associated with burns or scalds are often extensive, particularly when areas about joints, the mouth, or the eyes are involved. Here cord-like bands are formed which lead not only to disfigurement but to contractures. The region may become so taut that movement is impossible.

Some individuals exhibit numerous lesions of this type, varying in size from a pinhead to a plate. They are most commonly seen over the breastbone, with the face, neck, ears, and extremities running a close second. Children are more susceptible than adults.

Hindus, Malayans, and Negroes are frequently attacked. The disorder is probably nine or ten times as prevalent in the latter group as in the white race. This is thought to result from the practice of scarification in Africa, Australia, and Polynesia, indulged in for tribal, sexual, or religious motives. In these countries, keloids are looked upon as beauty marks or a sign of great strength.

No one understands the cause exactly but many theories have been advocated. Whether they are related to the glands is not clear altho many observers believe that overactivity of the thyroid or parathyroids may be responsible. The occurrence of this defect in and about puberty also suggests that perhaps they are related to an excess secretion of the sex glands.

As a rule, these lesions do not disappear spontaneously. Those due to burns can be removed surgically and the site recovered with a skin graft. The application of strong caustics, cauterization, or the use of a high frequency current are not advised inasmuch as they may give rise to additional scarring.

The best form of treatment is X-ray therapy. This is most effective when they are new and in the process of growing. Old, large, hard keloids must be excised. Since another may occur after the operation, these, too, must be subjected to radiology as soon as they appear.

CLIMATE AND HEART

H. W. M. writes: Which puts the greater strain on the heart—cold or hot weather?

REPLY

Either extreme may so affect the system—calling for such marked adaptations—that the heart is forced to work harder. Individuals with impaired circulation to the pumping organ may find cold weather more troublesome.

LATE PREGNANCY

J. S. writes: Is it possible for a newly married woman of 43 years to have a child without danger?

REPLY

This depends on many factors: her physical condition, bone structure, etc. Skilled examination would be necessary. The chances are that pregnancy would not be recommended.

OCCUPATIONAL NEURITIS

B. P. writes: Is there any cure for a longstanding case of writer's cramp?

REPLY

If simpler measures, such as altering the position of the pen, physiotherapy, etc., have not worked, a change of occupation may be indicated.

HAIRCUTS

M. N. writes: Every time I have my hair cut I catch cold. What is wrong with me?

REPLY

Evidently your thatch affords protection from the elements, which is what nature intended. Stay out of drafts after visiting your barber.

EYE DISEASE

R. E. writes: Is trachoma contagious?

REPLY

Yes, altho other factors must be considered, such as susceptibility.

SINGING AWAY THE SUMMER

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Hidden Valley Unfurled

The only man we know who has actually walked around and talked to the stone age plateau people of central New Guinea is Walter Simmons, Tribune war correspondent who came back from the Pacific last month. He says the name, Shangri-La, applied to the district by that portion of the press which always has to give every place a name is an incredible misnomer, for the people in James Hilton's novel must have taken baths. They couldn't have smelled like New Guineans.

Mr. Simmons traveled thousands of miles in the Southwest Pacific by plane, saw many types of scenery, all of which looked from the air like dishes piled high with parsley, and of all the natives found the stone age boys the most admirable. One day his C-47 transport plane landed at Kerowagi in the heart of the district. He stepped to the door and from force of habit inquired loudly, "Anybody here from Chicago?" Not a soul took offense. Instead, all smilingly set up a chant which sounded like a herd of baying bird dogs. They then flicked their right hands from the wrists. This meant, "You are a good joe, Joe."

If they can afford it, the natives smear pig grease on their bodies. This softens the skin and is always there, layer upon layer, for only he who has the misfortune to tumble into a river bathes. Mr. Simmons believes this is because pig grease is expensive. He says it would be silly to wash it off. The men also give their hair a liberal oiling with it, first piling the hair high under something resembling a black cook's cap. This is to absorb the shock when a close friend wallops the head with a war ax. The war ax, by the way, has one serious flaw. Its stone tip is so poorly mounted that it falls out when you hit somebody with it.

Sweet potatoes make up 95 per cent of the diet. The womer cultivate the fields while the men sit. Each man likes to have as many wives as possible, because with more wives he can raise more sweet potatoes to feed more pigs to sell for more cowrie shells to buy more wives to raise more sweet potatoes to feed to more pigs. The foregoing logic is Mr. Simmons'. If a woman does not produce children, she can be turned back to her father for credit. The desired woman is medium plump.

Each woman carries a woven bag of about one bushel capacity hanging from her head and down her back. This is her purse. Mr. Simmons managed to get his paws on one and noted inside it the following knickknacks: A bamboo tube of pig grease to make the body beautiful, a tube of face powder pounded from rock, a stalk of bananas, a bunch of green onions, a peck of sweet potatoes, several stalks of sugar cane, one 4 year old child. It contained a few other things, but he can't remember what.

Once in a while these people have a war. A war is arranged by having 1,000 or so men line up on a side. One side then shoots five arrows at the other, which stands discreetly just outside maximum range. Some one from the side which has been fired upon walks out and picks up the arrows. His side now shoots these back. This not only saves arrows, but goes on all day, and nobody is any worse [except for wear] when he goes home. Mr. Simmons saw many modes of warfare in the war he has just covered. He thinks that of the stone age boys is the only good one.

Lines for a Literary Luminary

A man there is who writes of gallant deeds,
Who knows—and, O, so well—of derring do;
No laggard he, he's always au courant,
Full of joie de vivre and new made morning dew.
With words and eyes aglow he writes and rhymes
Of gay young love. And then in sharp burlesque
He lampoons all the weakling rest of us—
Yet August sun sees rubbers beneath his desk!

UNDERNOURISHED PATIENTS

Chicago, Sept. 8—I myself and many others want to congratulate you on your expose of the food at the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium. Every word written in your paper of Sept. 7 was absolutely true.

I have a son confined there and he has had to live entirely on food brought in to him from friends and relatives, as he could not touch what was served him. This is also true of other patients I know out there and others who have been patients.

There are paid dietitians in this sanitarium who do nothing. If patients complain they are given big promises and that's all. The city has a huge appropriation set aside for food at the sanifarium and many patients have been and still are taxpayers and as such are entitled to at least properly cooked, nourishing food. How a tubercular person could be expected to regain his health and strength on the slop that is given him is beyond any one's imagination. They raise chickens on the grounds, but still the patients are fed powdered eggs for breakfast, cold bologna sausage for dinner three and four times a week, spaghetti without sauce two and three times a week, and no butter—only a small thin chip at breakfast that would not butter a half piece of bread.

It would be a very good idea to check up on attendants and guards, as it is a known fact that they carry out, and are allowed to do so, meat, butter, eggs, etc., that these sick people should have.

MRS. J. HOWARD.

"TRAINING" AND "ARMY DUTY"

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 11—The burocrats are very disappointed that only a few veterans desire further education. On the other hand, President Truman mentioned that boys of 18 might as well go into the army as they had nothing else to do anyway, and the army training would do them a lot of good. What army training?

My son was inducted about a week after the Japanese surrender tho he wanted to go to college to study a profession. He received exactly three days of army training and then spent the balance of the two weeks at Fort Sheridan doing practically nothing. He was then shipped to the mental hospital at Camp Custer, Mich. He works seven days a week (with the eighth off) in the homicide ward. Since when do they put 18 year old boys in a hospital to look after patients with homicidal tendancies?

If the war was still going on, there would be no objections to any form of endeavor that aided the war effort, but it seems that the government is still able to hire competent employes in every other field, so why not in this?

GARBAGE CANS

Olathe, Kas., Sept. 10—Hear tell that it is possible to purchase GI cans from the army quartermaster depot in Chicago for 30 cents apiece. If that is true, the garbage can deal put over by the city council could stand more light, don't you think?

WHY THE RUSH?

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27—A few days ago I participated in a "People's Platform" discussion of the Murray "full employment" bill over the Columbia network. Sen. Murray's figures, of course, supported the bill that bears his name. Apparently, he does not realize the very serious danger to our economic system if the bill is passed in its present form.

Today I participated in a conference with a representative of one of our leading business organizations. He emphasized the fact that the bill ought to be very thoroly discussed before such sweeping, and perhaps revolutionary, changes are injected into our economic system.

Our organization is now conducting an exhaustive study of the bill. They feel that it will take them two to three months to complete a satisfactory analysis, and that it would be highly unfortunate if the bill were to be passed before this analysis is made available to the public.

Business men heretofore have been so busy with problems of war production that they have had no time to devote to study of this proposed legislation. When the court packing bill was introduced in 1937, a small group of senators—constitutional Democrats and Republicans—met with Sen. Borah and decided that they would hold the bill up for 60 to 90 days until the issue could be carried to the country. A few senators of determination and courage could do something similar at this time and force full discussion.

HE RAN HIS OWN POLL

Chicago, Sept. 11—After reading the letter by Helyn Connelly in which she said, "Of the over 7 million men in the army I defy you to find 500 who agree with you," I was curious to know if that were a fact. I bought three TRIBUNES and went into the Illinois Central depot and started a canvass of my own. I would hand an army man a TRIBUNE and ask him to read the article and tell me whether he agreed with THE TRIBUNE as a rule on articles that it published. I questioned 29 men. Twenty-seven were for THE TRIBUNE from start to finish. One would not commit himself and the other fellow wanted to know what was in it for him.

At that rate Helyn Connelly would have to canvass a long time to find 500 army men who didn't agree with you and Mr. Flynn.

SENATORS VOTE STATE OPTION ON AID TO JOBLESS

'Full Employment' Bill Also Is Approved

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—States rights advocates won a victory over the administration today when the senate finance committee approved a compromise unemployment compensation bill permitting the use of federal funds to extend present benefits, but only upon the application of individual states.

Simultaneously, a senate banking subcommittee completed drafting a revised "full employment" bill embodying most of the provisions requested by the administration. It would make it a federal policy to provide job opportunities for every one seeking work in the event private employment fails to prevent unemployment.

The unemployment compensation bill approved today, and which is expected to be brought to the senate floor Tuesday, would permit the federal government to extend the duration of present state benefits by 60 per cent, but not exceeding 26 weeks.

On Request of Governors

The original administration bill provided for the use of federal funds to boost all state benefits to a maximum of $25 a week and to extend the maximum duration to 26 weeks. Sen. Kilgore (D., W. Va.), author of that measure, has said he will fight for its adoption in the senate.

On the motion of Sen. Millikin [R., Colo.], the finance committee provided that the 60 per cent extension of state benefits would be made only on the written request of the governor of any state. The committee also knocked out provisions of the Kilgore bill making the federal supplementation mandatory.

Other provisions of the unemployment benefits bill are:

1. Extension of banefits to all federal workers and maritime workers, at the rates prevailing in the state in which the work had been performed.

$200 Travel Allowances

2. Transportation allowances up to $200 for war workers who migrated from their bona fide residences after Dec. 7, 1941. Transportation would be to the workers' home or new job location, and would not be paid to those to whom employers had allowed travel pay.

Cost of the bill would be 800 million dollars for the 21 month period ending June 30, 1947.

The "full employment" bill, which will go before the full banking committee next week, affirms the policy that all persons have a right to work and that it is the responsibility of the federal government to "assure the existence" of employment opportunities.

"Job Budget" Provided

To carry out the "right to work" provision, the bill provides that the federal government shall coöperate with industry, agriculture, labor, and local governments to stimulate employment. The President would be authorized to prepare an annual "job budget." If the budget were to indicate unemployment in any degree, congress then would provide public works to provide jobs for the unemployed.

Sen. Taft [R., O.] told reporters today the bill would put into law the "spending-without-limit theory" of Commerce Secretary Wallace.

Taft and Sen. Radcliffe [D., Md.] offered a series of amendments to the bill designed to prevent adding to the national debt to carry out the bill's provisions and to protect private enterprise from government encroachment, but the amendments were lost.

SEAMEN'S AUTO HITS PEDESTRIAN AND A BUS; 3 DIE

Two sailors stationed at the Glenview naval air station and a pedestrian were killed and four other persons were injured early yesterday when the automobile containing the two sailors and a third companion struck the pedestrian and then collided with a Surface Lines bus at Leamington and Elston avs.

Those killed were Oswald Gieghorn, 27, of Merodosia, Morgan county; Oscar Bynum, 25, of Manteca, Cal., both sailors, and the pedestrian, Albert H. Gleason, 53, of 5315 N. Laramie av., a ticket agent for the North Western railroad.

Sought to Avoid Pedestrian

Witnesses told police that the car, apparently driven by a third sailor, Haynes Lyda, 21, swerved in an attempt to avoid hitting Gleason, who was crossing the street.

Lyda and three passengers in the bus were injured. A coroner's inquest was continued until Sept. 25 to await the recovery of Lyda.

Jerry Lhotka, 34, of 4106 Maple av., Stickney, and Frank Nemecjo, 36, of 4223 Elm av., Lyons, died yesterday in MacNeal Memorial hospital, Berwyn, of injuries suffered Wednesday night when they were struck by a Chicago and West Town bus in route 66, about a block west of Harlem av., in Lyons.

The accident occurred while Lhotka and his daughter, Diana, 8, and Nemecjo and his son, Robert, 14, were pushing a two wheel cart bearing a drum of fuel oil. The two children were injured seriously. The bus driver was Malcolm A. Mead, 178 N. Taylor av., Oak Park.

Daniel Hickey, 9312 S. Ashland blvd., and an unidentified woman companion escaped injury yesterday when their car skidded on the pavement at 88th st. and Ashland av. and overturned.

Mrs. Berdie Smith, 45, Negro, 1448 Roosevelt rd., died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered Aug. 27 when she was struck by the car of a hit and run driver at 1400 Roosevelt rd.

A dead poplar tree fell yesterday before the home of John J. Fogarty, 931 N. Lorel av., and wrecked the parked car of his neighbor, F. J. Schmidt, 929 N. Lorel av.

Harry Rubloff, 56, of 4816 Kenwood av., a real estate salesman, was fined $25 yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller in South State Street court on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was accused of throwing bottles out of the window of his 12th floor room at the La Salle hotel in protest against the noise made by refuse collectors in the alley.

RABBI BERMAN WINS MEDAL IN OKINAWA DRIVE

The navy has announced that the bronze star medal for meritorious achievement during operations on Okinawa has been awarded to Chaplain Morton M. Berman, spiritual leader on leave of Temple Isaiah-Israel, 1100 Hyde Park blvd. Rabbi Berman entered the navy in May, 1943, and before his assignment in the Pacific theater with the 6th marine division was at the naval air station, Corpus Christi, Tex.

The navy citation tells of Rabbi Berman's bravery under fire to reach and minister to his men and of his ministry to the wounded and dying. "As assistant division chaplain," it adds, "he was particularly helpful under the most hazardous conditions. Often under fire and always an example to the men with whom he came in contact, Chaplain Berman's conduct was in keeping with army traditions."

MAIMED YANK'S DIVORCE SUIT ON TRIAL TODAY

Judge Frank M. Padden in Superior court yesterday set today for hearing of a divorce action brought by Corp. Stanley Heck, 30, who lost both legs when a German land mine exploded. He is suing Henrietta Heck, 26, of 8808 S. Hermitage av.

Corp. and Mrs. Stanley Heck

Atty. Thomas Green told Judge Padden that Corp. Heck is in an army hospital at Temple, Tex., but that witnesses would testify for Heck. His bill charged adultery and desertion. The soldier also has on file a $50,000 alienation of affections suit against Alvin C. Shupp, 601 Washington blvd., Oak Park, a grocery chain executive.

Green told the court that under a settlement Mrs. Heck agreed to return $354 her husband had given her, as well as his Purple Heart citation. Corp. Heck also was decorated with the silver star and the bronze star with oak leaf clusters.

Mother of Newborn Baby Left in Alley Is Sought

Police are seeking the mother of a newly born baby boy found abandoned yesterday in a refuse can. Jacob Trela, 72, took the infant from an alley to his home near-by at 2020 18th st., where first aid treatment was given by Trela's wife. Police took the baby to County hospital, where he was reported in good condition.

ACT TO EXHUME BODY OF WIDOW OF RIDE VICTIM

Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the public administrator's office, said yesterday he will ask Probate Judge John F. O'Connell today for an order to exhume the body of Mrs. Rosetta Fernandez, 47, who died suddenly last Saturday in her apartment at 60 E. Chicago av. and was buried Wednesday in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Rubens said that a safe deposit box rented by Mrs. Fernandez in the Lake Shore Safe Deposit company yielded $2,000 when it was opened yesterday on a court order in the search for the fortune she was reputed to possess. Mrs. Fernandez, Rubens said, was the widow of David Blumenfeld, reputedly wealthy associate of bootleggers, who was killed two years ago and his body dumped in the bay at Miami, Fla. After his death she resumed her maiden name.

Exhumation of the body will be asked to verify the cause of death, reported as a heart attack.

NAZIS LAGGED ON ATOM BOMB, SAYS SCIENTIST

While Germany was ahead of the allies in developing aerodynamics, particularly with its rocket bombs, she was not on the verge of developing an atomic bomb, Dr. A. Allan Bates, manager of the chemical and metallurgical department of the Westinghouse Electric corporation research laboratories, East Pittsburgh, Pa., said last night. He addressed the Chicago chapter of the American Society for Metals in the Chicago Bar association's quarters.

Dr. Bates served in Germany with a secret American army unit to capture German scientists and war science secrets.

"German industry was too badly smashed by our bombs to carry on the scale of work necessary for producing atomic bombs," he said. He asserted that German science was not called in an all-out effort until 1944.

CITY GARDENERS DISPLAY THEIR VARIED OUTPUT

Samples of this season's produce from Chicago home gardens, ranging from tiny tea roses to 12 pound cabbages, were put on display yesterday in exhibition hall of Soldiers' field.

Only a one day show had been planned, but because of yesterday's inclement weather the exhibits will remain in place until 10 o'clock tonight.

Among the outstanding exhibits are the display of water lilies in the Chicago park district booth and a collection of September wildflowers being shown by the Cook county forest preserve district. C. Eugene Pfister, president of the Chicago Horticultural society and a leading amateur rose grower, is exhibiting more than a dozen varieties of hybrid tea roses and Floribunda roses from his Mundelein garden.

Milwaukee Man Killed in Elevator Shaft Fall

Wacker dr. Witnesses told police he stepped out of an elevator, apparently thinking he had reached the seventh floor, where he had an office. He stepped back, holding the door open, and fell as the car went up.

18 Freed in Gaming Case; Police Failed to Get Writ

Infantile Paralysis Cases Declining, Says Piszczek

Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, Cook county health director, yesterday expressed the belief that the peak in infantile paralysis cases here had been reached and passed a week ago. No new cases had been reported to his office for 24 hours. The disease has stricken 55 victims and caused two deaths since Jan. 1 in the area outside the city. Four new cases reported in Chicago yesterday brought the year's totals to 133 cases, with 10 deaths.

STRIKE ENDED ON NBC AND ABC AIR NETWORKS

Engineers, Technicians Return to Jobs

A one day strike of radio engineers and technicians that had affected the National and American Broadcasting companies' 355 stations thruout the country ended last night when the men returned to work and both sides agreed to resume negotiations over a new wage contract.

Announcement of the strike's termination was made in New York by Federal Labor Conciliator J. R. Mandelbaum after two conferences between company executives and officials of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians [NABET], an independent union.

Major Programs Resume

The first group of strikers returned to their jobs in time for most of the major evening programs last night. Engineers went back to work in NBC's Chicago studios at 7:15 p. m. and in ABC's studios at 7:30 p. m. NABET officials said the men, tho not all immediately available, were returning to work as fast as they would be notified.

During the work stoppage both broadcasting networks used executives to man jobs which the union employes had left. The companies said service over their nation-wide systems had continued on "normal schedules" with only minor difficulties.

The strike began at 5 p. m. [Chicago time] Wednesday after NABET officials said negotiations over a new wage contract had broken down. The networks termed the walkout a "wildcat" strike and declared the men left their jobs half an hour after the union had submitted a 30 day strike notice.

NBC broadcasts were interrupted for 15 minutes and ABC broadcasts for 30 minutes until executives not affiliated with NABET took over controls.

General Pay Raise Sought

Points at issue in the contract negotiations included a demand for a general wage increase averaging 35 per cent in all classifications and overtime after eight hours work a day. NABET said the men receive from $226 to $381 monthly for a five day week, but were obliged to work up to 12 hours a day without overtime pay.

The conference which ended the strike followed a day of exchanges between the union and the networks in which NABET said its members would not return to work until contract negotiations were resumed and the radio chains insisted that the men go back to work first.

In Chicago the strike affected station WMAQ, outlet of NBC; station WENR, outlet of ABC, and, to some extent, station WLS, which shares WENR'S wave length.

GRASSIE TO GET EMMET'S PLACE AT GREAT LAKES

Capt. Herbert J. Grassie, commander of the U. S. S. Idaho, will report Sept. 28 as commander of Great Lakes Naval Training center, it was announced yesterday. Capt. Grassie succeeds Commodore R. R. M. Emmet, who will be detached on Oct. 1 to report to the Naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., for medical observation and examination. Capt. Grassie, 51, was commissioned an ensign in 1916 after his graduation from Annapolis. He holds the victory medal, American defense service medal, and the Asiatic-Pacific area campaign medal.

"Rumor Had It"

By Christopher Hale

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

SYNOPSIS: It was expected that Erica Pomeroy, whose parents had died and left her a fortune, would marry Huntley Price, whom she had known all her life. Returning from Boston, Erica brings a fiance, Toby Newcomb. Huntley asks Mr. Izenga to help him win back Erica. Mr Izenga had been in love with Erica's mother and had shared with her grandmother the upbringing of the girl. He dislikes Toby's mocking air and is horrified to learn his last job was as a waiter. They would have been married in Boston but Erica couldn't hurt him and her grandmother like that She wants to feel Mr Izenga is on her side when she breaks the news to her grandmother. Mrs. Pomeroy's brother, Ridge Dawson, drops into Mr Izenga's for cocktails before his sister's birthday dinner Ridge is charming, unreliable, has had several wives, and is always in debt. He wants Mr Izenga to put in a good word for him with Letty, as he is asking for a loan of $50,000. Letty and Ridge had been left equal shares of their father's fortune. Everything Letty touches turns to money. Arriving at Pomeroys they find Hester Pomeroy Duke and her husband, Harry, whom Mrs. Pomeroy has established in business and to whom she gives unceasing advice, Erica and Toby, and Huntley. Bennet, her son, is late.

INSTALMENT V.

INEFFECTIVE THREAT

Pliny went to answer the telephone in the library and came back in a few minutes. "It Mr. Bennet, ma'm. He been havin' trouble wid de cah. He say he be 'bout hour late. You want to talk to him?"

"Certainly not," said Mrs. Pomeroy serenely. "Just tell him to get dinner wherever he is, and then you serve ours at once."

"Yassum."

Dinner went off surprisingly well. For one thing, the food was superb, as usual. For another, Mrs. Pomeroy was being a gracious lady with a vengeance. She was determined to enjoy her own birthday party.

Ridge was in the gay, amusing stage of having had too many cocktails. He was building up, too, for his touch. He told several good stories which Mrs. Pomeroy enjoyed.

Erica and Huntley went on playing their roles of being just good friends. But Toby Newcomb's silent sarcastic mood rather spoiled it. Newcomb was awkward about eating, too.

They had coffee in the living-room. As they were finishing, a car door slammed. Footsteps in the hall were followed by the appearance of a rounded, very pretty woman, fortyish, with dark curling hair.

At first meeting, people were inclined to consider Lucianna Duprez a sweet little woman. She had an arch, confiding air and pleasant curves to her mouth, when she chose, and seldom contradicted and argued.

Bennet Pomeroy strolled in behind her in white trousers and blue jacket. He and his Uncle Ridge and Huntley Price were basically much alike. The same large, heavily-lashed dark eyes, very dark ruddy skin. The same lazy softness of character, too.

"Happy Birthday!" Lucianna cried, tossing down her hat which Pliny carried away. "Awfully sorry Bennet's car broke down. We had a perfectly wretched supper at a horrid little hamburger stand. I expect to die of ptomaine before morning."

"Thank you," Mrs. Pomeroy replied to the first two words. She accepted Bennet's birthday kiss resignedly. Her younger son had always been a trial to her. His elder brother, Enright, had been her favorite and at his death she had transferred her affections to Erica.

"Here's our present." Bennet drew from his pocket a package wrapped in cheap green paper. "We bought it on the way. Didn't have time to wrap it up. It's from both of us. Lucianna picked it out."

"How lovely," Mrs. Pomeroy said, angrily. In a lurid pink plush box was a plated pie server, of which she had six, all sterling. She smiled loftily at the bland face of Miss Duprez. "Thank you so much, Lucianna. It's just like you."

Lucianna also smiled, wickedly and appreciatively. She seemed to enjoy making trouble more than any other woman Mr. Izenga had ever known.

He could still recall, vividly, when Bennet had calmly but definitely refused to marry her, and she had threatened to sue him for breach of promise. No amount of arguing with him had any effect. Bennet stated he was not the marrying sort, he had never intended to marry her or anyone.

All threats, bribes and arguments led only to this impasse. Bennet's stand was basic. Mr. Izenga and Mrs. Pomeroy drove the bargain with Lucianna and it was a hard one. She had emerged with an income which was to stop only at her marriage to some other man.

As her sweet, feline air seemed fascinating to a number of prospects, Mrs. Pomeroy was always hoping to get rid of the woman. But these affairs always tapered off in a few months. Bennet seemed perfectly willing to escort her indefinitely, as long as he did not have to marry her.

It was nearly ten before Mr. Izenga received his signal and met Mrs. Pomeroy in her rose-tinted sitting room, upstairs.

Mrs. Pomeroy sank into the chaise longue and sighed, "What did you think of him?"

"I hardly met him. Erica stopped to introduce him and said she was engaged to him."

"There's very little to know, apparently." Mrs. Pomeroy was disdainful. "He comes from some small Michigan town. I forget the name of it. His father was a bookkeeper in a lumber company. He died when this son was 10. His mother supported him by working as a saleswoman in a dress shop. She died when he was 18. He put himself thru college . . . three years of it I think . . . by various menial jobs of which he hasn't the grace to feel ashamed. I mean, it's quite all right, very admirable I suppose. A worthy young man. But not the gentleman of breeding and distinction Erica should want for her children's father."

"Not Huntley, in short."

"Exactly. Not Huntley. Oh, he looked so handsome, so fine, and so important tonight. Did you notice how he kept his temper, no matter how rude that stranger was? Oh, how can Erica be so wrong, so foolish? Huntley would be the ideal husband for her and she knows it has always been my dearest wish. But does that matter to her? Not a whiff. Isn't there anything we can do to save her?"

"Perhaps, Letitia, if we give her a little time . . ."

"Time! Time?" Mrs. Pomeroy shrilled. "My dear, she wants to be married at once. Next week! Didn't she tell you? And when I protested I could not possibly arrange for a proper wedding sooner than a month [I was just trying to gain time, you see], this insufferable young man said they can simply go to the minister's house some afternoon and that he'd rather not have what he called a fuss! Imagine! My granddaughter."

"How did you leave it?" Mr. Izenga asked.

"In a mess, I'm afraid. I started with a vow to be calm and not make an issue. But this hasty wedding idea threw me off. I tried my best to postpone it and when I couldn't, then really I became provoked. But one good feature, Erica promised dear old Dr. Baird she would be married in the church here and no one but him should officiate. So, at least, she won't be running off somewhere. But we had a rather sordid scene. I told this young man that he would be the means of defrauding Erica of the fortune I was planning to leave her. I swore I wouldn't leave her a cent if they married against my wishes."

"Did it have any effect?" Mr. Izenga was rather abstracted. He was giving birth to an idea.

"Not a feather's weight. He is so insolent. He said he would prefer Erica without any more money. He said he didn't approve of having favorites and leaving all the money to one person. He said it should be divided among all the family, evenly. As if Erica wouldn't get it all anyway when everyone dies! I could hardly believe my ears when he read me this lecture, Cornelius!"

AFL UNITS FIGHT MARITIME POST FOR McKEOUGH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13—A multitude of protests from labor groups affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, against the appointment to the maritime commission of Raymond S. Keough, director of the CIO political action committee for Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, were read to a senate commerce subcommittee today.

The subcommittee refused to approve McKeough's nomination and turned the matter over to the full committee for a decision.

McKeough, a Democratic member of congress from the 2d Illinois district from 1934 to 1942, lost his seat when he ran for senator against Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] in 1942. He served as regional director of the office of price administration in 1943 and was appointed by Sidney Hillman to his CIO post in January, 1944.

Charge He's Biased

Chairman Overton [D., La.] read into the record a number of telegrams from the Seafarers' union, the Illinois Federation of Labor, the Masters, Mates, and Pilots union, and other groups, all affiliated with the AFL, which termed McKeough "biased," "unfit for service," "utterly inexperienced in maritime affairs," and "lacking in ethics."

McKeough, under questioning, admitted he had no experience in dealing with the merchant marine, the chief business of the maritime commission. He said he was surprised by the AFL opposition, remarking:

"I might have anticipated opposition from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE but not from labor."

Green Backs Protest

Lewis G. Hines, A. F. of L. legislative representative, told the subcommittee President William Green was "fearful" of McKeough's CIO bias. He noted there had been an intense rivalry in seamen's unions between the CIO and AFL since the former groups left the parent union.

Capt. C. F. May, president of the Masters, Mates and Pilots union of the west coast, said the AFL had been getting "a dirty deal" from the maritime commission for the last two years and matters would probably be worse if a CIO-PAC leader were appointed. He charged that Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, [CIO], had been boasting at union meetings that the AFL seamen's unions were going to be destroyed.

WOLL WILL ASK DISMISSAL OF FIVE BUND CASES

United States Atty. Woll said last night he would appear this morning before Federal Judge William J. Campbell and ask dismissal of pending denaturalization proceedings against five former members of the Chicago unit of the defunct German-American bund.

Woll said he was acting on instructions of United States Atty. Gen. Clark because of a recent ruling of the United States Supreme court that mere membership in the bund was not sufficient ground for denaturalization.

The defendants in the five cases, which originally numbered nine, are Carl H. Sautter, Hugo Luethje, Frederick Orth, Frank A. Schoennagel, and Irene Matz, former secretary to Dr. Otto Willumeit, Chicago bund leader now serving a prison term for espionage. Carl A. Vogl also was convicted and deported. Two cases were dismissed.

PROVE SLAYING IN STEGER WAS IN WILL COUNTY

Cook County Transfers 2 Suspects to Neighbor

A thin, white boundary line in Steger rd., Steger, enabled Cook county authorities yesterday to hand over a murder case to neighboring Will county officials.

The murder victim was Benny D. Leonardo, 31, of 1502 Portland av., Chicago Heights, who was shot fatally in his car Aug. 28 by the occupant or occupants of another car. Held on preliminary charges of murder are John Renzi, 64, a Crete tavern owner, and his daughter, Louise, 24, former friend of Leonardo.

Chart Shows It's in Will

Until yesterday Cook county authorities had assumed responsibility for the solution of the crime on the theory that it was committed within Cook county. But at the inquest, in the Homewood county police station, directed by Deputy Coroner Jack Bylinski, Lt. Arthur Jelinek showed with chart and tape that the case belonged to Will county.

Steger rd., Lt. Jelinek testified, divides Cook and Will counties. The half of the road south of the white center line is Will county territory, the north half is in Cook.

Identifies Two in Car

Both Leonardo and his murderer or murderers, the police official testified, were driving east, on the Will county side of the road. Other witnesses, including Carl Triebold, a Crete milkman, agreed. Triebold also identified Renzi and his daughter as being in a maroon car which speeded away from Leonardo's after a shot was fired.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Leonardo was murdered by the occupant or occupants of the maroon car, then neatly rid Cook county of the case by finding the crime didn't occur in Cook county, and recommending that the occupants be held to the Will county authorities.

This was done. The Renzis were turned over to Sheriff Ralph Newkirk and State's Atty. James Burke of Will county. The defendants, who had been held in the Cook county jail, did not object and were locked up in the jail at Joliet.

PUBLISHER, CLUB SETTLE BATCH OF LIBEL SUITS

Laredo, Tex., Sept. 13 (AP)—Civil libel suits filed against the Laredo Times and its publisher, William Prescott Allen, by members of the Laredo Rotary club were settled out of court here today.

Horace Hall, attorney for a group of Laredo Rotary club members, said today Allen had agreed to pay $3,500 to settle legal costs incurred by the plaintiffs. They in turn agreed to consolidate civil cases and withdraw them.

"A settlement has been reached and I'm satisfied," Allen said. Numerous libel charges were filed against Allen and the Times by several Rotary club members after Allen published in his paper a criticism of the club for printing names of service men who were delinquent in loans made by the club.

Criminal libel cases are still pending against Allen.

Judge John P. Barnes entered a consent injunction fixing damages at $1,500.03 and restraining Lurie Brothers, wholesale potato dealers at 82 S. Water market, from making sales at overceiling prices.

The three suits were brought by the office of price administration.

MASKED GUNMAN KILLS FATHER OF TWO IN TAVERN

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 13 [Special]—Police today were hunting the slayer of Oakley Glenn Rogers, 41, operator of a garage business at home, who was shot down early this morning in the Mayflower tavern. Rogers was married and the father of two children.

The shooting was done in gangland style by a man who was wearing a white handkerchief over the lower part of his face and whose eyes "were black and piercing," according to witnesses.

PLEDGE INQUIRY INTO CRITICISM OF OPA BOARD

A full investigation of local rationing board 40-5 at 6012 Cottage Grove av. was promised yesterday by the Chicago area office of price administration if Prof. Kenneth Sears, co-chairman of the board and University of Chicago law professor, makes specific chargest against board members.

Prof. Sears said he had his letter of resignation on his desk, but that it did not name the board member he described as a "cheater who got on the board to take care of himself and his friends." Prof. Sears said the letter of resignation was dated July 28, when he prepared a letter for five board members, who asked him to delay mailing it. His resignation letter was for himself only, he said.

James E. Degnan, district board executive of the OPA, said Sears was not present at a board reorganization meeting July 1 nor at a meeting last Tuesday, and no charges had been brought to the OPA's attention.

Detectives Patrick Daly and Earl Cook said the men would be questioned about recent holdups.

DECIDE ON OFFER OF EXPERT TO T.B. HOSPITAL TODAY

Harry S. Reynolds, business manager of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium and vice president of its board of trustees, said yesterday he would confer today with Mayor Kelly regarding the offer by County Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke on Wednesday to lend Anton Negri, hotel and kitchen management expert for county institutions, to the city. The offer was made to help the sanitarium improve the quality and preparation of its meals, about which many patients have complained. Whether the offer will be accepted will be announced today, Reynolds said.

Negri said yesterday that the city's annual appropriation of $575,000 to provide meals for the 1,300 patients and 100 employes at the sanitarium could assure serving of "the very best quality" food.

During the last eight years Negri, a native Swiss, raised the standard of meals at County hospital and Oak Forest infirmary at a saving as high as $100,000 a year. Told that THE TRIBUNE had received numerous letters and telephone calls complaining of the poor quality of food served at the sanitarium, he said, "If the food is not good, I am sure I can make it so."

Hunt Mother, 48, Children, Age 2 to 8, Missing Week

Chicago police were asked yesterday to look for Mrs. Nancy Parmenter, 27, who on Sept. 6 left her home in Spring Valley, Bureau county, with her four children, ranging in age from 2 to 8 years old. Police were told by Mrs. Parmenter's husband that she is mentally ill and has threatened to kill the children.

SUPREME COURT HEADS CITY FOR 12c FARE ON 'L'

Refuses to Consider First Decision

Possibility that passengers of the Chicago elevated system may have to pay a 12 cent fare within a few weeks loomed yesterday when the Illinois Supreme court at Springfield refused a rehearing on its decision of last May 23 that such a fare was warranted. The present fare is 10 cents.

The Supreme court made its latest ruling without comment. The earlier decision remanded the case to the Circuit court of Cook county with instructions to enter a decree embodying the high court's opinion that present rates are confiscatory.

Barrett Denounces Proposal

It appeared last night that the increase would not be effected without a further fight. Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett, who represents the Illinois commerce commission, state regulatory body, asserted the Supreme court had not ordered, in his opinion, any increase in fares, but was only commanding a new Circuit court hearing on the matter. This hearing, he said would determine whether a raise is needed.

Barrett added that the "L" equipment is obsolete and inadequate, and that the company is not entitled to any more revenue from passengers. The raise would mean, he asserted, that "L" patrons would pay the highest fare in the world for local transportation. He called the proposal "shocking."

City to Continue Fight

The city of Chicago is also expected to continue the fight, but what action the fight would take was not announced.

Herbert Johnson, attorney who handled the case for the "L" lines, said the mandate from the court at Springfield would not reach the Circuit court before the end of the Supreme court's September term [possibly on Sept. 21]. At any time thereafter, provided notice is given to all parties, the "L" may ask establishment of the higher fare.

Increase Refused by I. C. C.

More than three years ago, the "L" asked the commerce commission for the 12 cent fare [13 if a transfer to street car or bus was requested]. After a long series of hearings the commission refused the change, holding that no similar utility in the United States received more than 10 cents. The case finally reached the Supreme court.

A complicating factor in the case is the commerce commission's order that the bus, street car, and "L" systems sell joint transfers at 10 cents; as it stands now, a passenger might have to pay 12 cents unless he asked for the transfer to another system. Then he would get off for a dime.

POLICEMEN ACT TO POST REWARD FOR KILLER OF 2

Policeman Harry Larson, president of the Chicago Patrolmen's club, yesterday called a special meeting of the organization Monday to propose posting a substantial reward for information leading to the arrest of the gunman who shot to death Detectives George Hellstern and Charles Brady at Clark st. and Lunt av. Sept. 2.

Search for the slayer was continuing without results. The lack of witnesses is surprising, Capt. Michael Ahern of the Rogers Park station told a group of business men at the Kiwanis club, 7610 Bosworth av. At such a busy intersection as Clark and Lunt there surely must have been more witnesses than have been found, he said. He appealed to those missing witnesses to report.

Alvin Lee Ferris, 30 alias Hopp, of Indianapolis, cleared himself of suspicion in the murders thru a lie detector test. Douglas M. Anderson, a Michigan gunman held in Detroit, was exonerated thru a ballistics test. An associate of Anderson in several Detroit holdups was sought as a potential suspect.

ORDER 2 WEST TOWN LINES TO PUT IN BUSES

The Illinois commerce commission, of which John D. Biggs is chairman, yesterday ordered the Chicago and West Towns railways to replace street cars with buses on its Lake st. and Madison st. routes.

Starting at Austin blvd., the routes serve Oak Park, River Forest, Forest Park, Maywood, Melrose Park, and Bellwood. Each line is a little more than four miles long.

William J. Walsh, supervisor of the commission's motor vehicle section, said 20 buses would be assigned to both runs, which now use 19 cars in rush hours. He estimated that service would be improved at least 25 per cent by the changeover, which probably will be made within 30 days.

ACTOR LEAVES ESTATE TO KEEP OTHERS IN SHOES

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 13 (AP)—A one time Shakespearean actor, who remembered the days when his courage kept sinking as his soles grew thinner on the long hunts for jobs, has left funds in his will to provide shoes to keep other actors off their uppers.

Cantzen, 78 died June 28, leaving an estate estimated at $100,000. In his will he said: "Many times I have been on my uppers and the thinner the soles of my shoes were, the less courage I had to face the manager in looking for a job."

Wald of Kansas City and Pasadena, Cal. The party was given for young friends of Miss Reilly and was made especially gay by the presence of her father, at home on a 30 day leave following service in Europe, and Lt. Wald and his mother.

Miss Reilly, who has been serving in the WAVES with the commission of a lieutenant, junior grade, departed last night to return to her post in Seattle, Wash. The wedding will take place shortly after she is discharged.

Miss Reilly attended the North Shore Country Day school and the University of Wisconsin, and was introduced to society several seasons ago. Lt. Wald, who now is stationed at Great Lakes, served for two years on an LST in the Pacific. He attended the University of Southern California at Los Angeles.

Other Engagement News

At a small gathering of friends Sunday in Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene's home in Wadsworth, Ill., toasts will be raised to Princess Cantacuzene's daughter, Miss Janet Carr, and Lt. Frederick Knowles Davey, whose engagement is announced today. Lt. Davey, son of Mrs. Stewart H. Davey of Plainfield, N. J., and the late Mr. Davey, returned in July from service in Italy with the 15th air force, and it is hoped that he will be able to join his fiancée and her family for Sunday's gathering. He now is at Westover field, Mass.

Miss Carr, daughter of the late Joseph Powell Carr of Chicago, attended the University of Chicago for one year and now is completing her education in New York. She and her step-sister, Miss Irina Cantacuzene, shared honors at an informal debut party winter before last. Both young women have brothers, William Frederick Carr and Rodion Cantacuzene.

Lt. Davey, a 1943 graduate of Rutgers university, entered the army in March of that year. He was stationed temporarily at the University of Chicago, receiving his commission in February, 1944, six months before he was sent overseas. His sister, Mrs. Robert M. Stampley, is an ensign in the WAVES.

On the Calendar

Because Bidu Sayao will not be able to arrive from New York by Oct. 2, the date set for the annual fall fashion show of the Illinois Opera guild, the party has been postponed until Oct. 3. Miss Sayao, who will be among the special guests at the late afternoon gathering at Marshall Field & Co., has been asked to appear in the jeweled gown which she wears for the first act of "Traviata," complete with her fabulous diamond necklace and bracelets.

Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone, chairman of the benefit, will entertain at luncheon today in the Knollwood club for some of the key women on her committee, among them Mrs. Waldo Logan, Mrs. Tracy L. Turner Jr., Mrs. Richard Culver, Mrs. John Kellogg, Mrs. George Woodruff, and Mrs. William Bowe. The guild's

Bright Vision

Irene McFarland of the New York Filing association takes a look into the future and advises:

"File clerks, take heart! There will be wonderful products for you—products too good to be true. . . . Filing departments will be equipped with just one aim—the comfort and ease of the file clerk. You will not have to answer a buzzer or phone. When the boss wants a letter, the pure, invigorating air of the file department will resound with lively chimes. Then a dulcet voice [automatic control no matter how cross he may be] will tell you what letter is required. You will go to an indicator on the wall, press the button for proper classification, and the file drawer containing the letter will glow with incandescent light. Removing the letter from the transparent folder, you will place it face down on a metal plate. Instantly it will appear on a television screen on the boss' desk.

"Lost folders will hold no terrors. Radar will find them. Transfer time will hold no terrors. Microfilming will be in common use, and with the office X-ray attachment [every clerk a technician] it will be simple to put all records on microfilm without even removing them from file drawers.

"Electric sorters will be a matter of course. Just put the day's collection in the sorter, turn the switch, and in the morning everything will be ready for the magnetic filer.

"When will all this equipment be on the market? O, after the war some time. But we give you this bright vision to carry you over the dark interval."

O, Wad Some Power . . .

I nominate for the tightest tight wad of all time the girl in our office who borrowed a tag, on tag day, so she could go out to lunch unmolested by the volunteer taggers. JOYCE

Club Leaders Map Program to Aid Youth

Assistance to youth will be the keynote of the year's service program for the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, it was announced yesterday by the state board of directors at the close of a two day session held in state headquarters here.

Plans were made by the directors for coördinating activities of other state groups interested in children's welfare under a single Illinois youth commission, with the federation acting as a steering committee.

The women also voted to raise $15,000 to build a cottage next May at an underprivileged boys' camp at Michael, Ill. The nonsectarian camp, established last April on a 100 acre tract in Calhoun county by the Trail Rangers of America, is similar to Father Flannagan's famous Boys' Town in Nebraska.

Maintenance of a similar cottage at the Park Ridge School for Girls will continue as a major federation project.

At an earlier session the board voted to grant approximately 150 scholarships to a music camp for boys and girls to be conducted next summer at Duquoin, Ill.

Decision to back a youth commission is an outgrowth of a recent youth conservation conference sponsored by the federation. The 32 organizations which participated in the conference have expressed interest in establishment of the state youth commission, and the federation president, Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman of Jerseyville, plans an early organizational meeting with representatives of these groups.

Among those who will represent the federation at this gathering will be Mrs. E. J. DeWire, state public welfare chairman, and Miss Dorothy Dohrman, who serves with Mrs. Chapman as an Illinois member of the general federation's youth conservation committee.

THE QUESTION

Who is last to get to bed in your house and why?

WHERE ASKED

The Continental hotel.

THE ANSWERS

Wallace Davis, advertising executive, Houston, Tex.—I'm always the last to get to bed in our house because I do a great deal of work at home at night. My wife doesn't object because she also benefits by it. I generally get to bed around midnight. By that time, she's been in bed and asleep several hours.

Suzanne Perlman, student, Continental hotel—My mother. She is always doing something she didn't get to do earlier. If she's not fussing, she's either reading or knitting. Dad gets to bed first. I'm a close second even if I have homework. But all lights are out in our apartment by midnight.

Peter Azoo, doorman, 1646 N. Wells st.—I work one week days and one week nights. The week I'm working days, I'm the first to get to bed because my wife is ill and doesn't sleep very well. Still, I like to listen to the radio before I get to bed. It's relaxing after a hard day's work helping people in and out of a hotel.

Betty Burns, elevator operator, 2637 N. Drake av.—I'm always the last to get to bed because on the nights I don't have dates, I stay up setting my hair. My dad stays up pretty late himself reading the paper. My mother doesn't like it either and she is angry if we don't get to bed until after 2 a. m.

F. S. Craig, publication representative, 6230 Kenmore av.—I am. I like to sit up reading. My wife doesn't object. She retires to her room, turns on the radio and falls asleep to the music. When I'm ready to go to bed, generally around 11 p. m., I have to go into her room and turn off her radio before I can retire.

Vaughan Aids Toil on Among 2,100 Patients

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

There are 100 acres of floor space and more than 2,100 patients at Vaughan General hospital. There are 32 Red Cross nurses' aids who are acutely aware of these statistics.

This little group, most of whom joined the nurses' aids corps at the hospital last summer when their assistance was requested, is composed of married women who rise at 6 a. m. to be at the hospital by 8 a. m. and working girls who travel more than an hour to be there evenings after a busy day spent earning a living. To them the war emergency is not yet over.

To the boys they are a comforting and a cheerful sight in their trim blue jumpers, the majority of which are decorated with at least one chevron representing 150 hours of volunteer work. In fact, the senior nurses' aid, pretty Mrs. Betty Butz of 243½ Warwick rd., Kenilworth, wears three chevrons equivalent to 1,000 hours, and the assistant senior nurses' aid, Mrs. Lillian Sykora of 6429 W. 27th st., Berwyn, has two chevrons for 500 hours.

A reporter, who accompanied them on their rounds as they ran errands and did a hundred little things to make patients comfortable yesterday, wearily commented on the miles of corridors connecting the 84 buildings that comprise the hospital.

"It is no hardship to work here," Mrs. Butz replied earnestly. "It's delightful. The boys are wonderful. They are so cheerful that they boost our morale, instead of the other way around. At first we thought it was going to be depressing to see these boys wounded and disfigured, but we go home feeling fine. They seem like our brothers."

The attitude of these patriotic girls is modest. Altho the hospital has 144 nurses and two companies of WACs who assist with clerical, medical, and surgical work, there is plenty left over for the willing 32 pairs of hands.

Bright and early each morning—altho most of them have traveled a long way out to Maywood, 13 miles from the loop alone — they smilingly give baths and shampoos, make beds, give back rubs, wash bedside tables and beds, serve nourishments, and run hundreds of errands. They handle nonsterile equipment and in many ways assist in nonnursing duties, ordinarily performed by nurses.

The day nurses' aids give at least 12 hours a week and those on evening schedules at least six hours. All of them consider it time well spent.

Thru the Looking Glass

One of the most stunning women we know isn't beautiful, in the classic sense. Neither is she a fashion plate particularly. She has two enviable qualities—taste and tidiness.

It's the tidiness that impresses us most. She has the habit of grooming herself well—not just for a big date but for every day of every year.

Her hair is like satin—because she brushes it every night, without fail.

Her skin is radiant and fine textured—because she never permits those little lapses of cleansing, with soap and water once a day, with cream twice during her working day.

Her nails are jewels—because she has never been seen with chipped polish or rough cuticle; she oils her nails nightly and changes her polish twice a week without fail.

Her clothes are spotless. She never takes off a dark dress without sponging it at the neck and brushing it thoroly, then hanging it, with all buttons buttoned, where it won't be crushed. She brushes her hat after every wearing, then puts it in a tightly lidded box in her closet.

She brushes her shoes, too, after she removes them—and has them cleaned not when she needs a shine, but well before the need is apparent.

Her hand bags are orderly, and are regularly cleaned inside and out.

Her powder puff is immaculate, as is her lingerie, and her white blouses and collars are the whitest imaginable.

She's the "brushingest" woman we've ever known—and we have to admit that maybe the brushing habit—of teeth, person, and wearing apparel—is one of the best of all beauty secrets!

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 13—Horrors and whodunits are crowding hard on the heels of musicals in our post-war pictures. Kent Taylor gets the lead in "Murder Mansion"—guaranteed to turn you white. And Universal's very proud of its latest zombie, Bondo Hatton, who plays a character called "The Creeper," and who'll creep thru a whole series b'gosh! . . . Lynn Bari was called back from her vacation in Colorado Springs—gets in the first of the week—to play lead in "Shock" at Twentieth Century. That's a quiet little tale about a girl who sees a murder when she's a patient in a hospital. They keep her doped so she can't testify and from then on—goose pimples.

Quite a Hunk o' Man

Jim Davis, one time oil salesman who came to Hollywood to cinch a deal on cars and trucks, and ended with a Metro contract, is back from two years of coast guard duty and handsomer than ever from those setting up and sitting down routines. One look at him and the studio slapped him into "Up Goes Maisie" with Ann Sothern. . . . Benny Thau snagged Peter Lawford out of "Song from Heaven." Now Metro's hopping about like mad to find some one to fill his place. . . . "Valley of the Zombie" hasn't scared star Adrian Booth so badly she didn't announce her engagement to a British army intelligence officer, Maj. Ralph W. Hayden. . . . And Linda Sterling, who recently broke her engagement to Roy Briggs, Detroit socialite, when she wouldn't give up her career at his request, is getting serious with Ray Lewis, a local contractor. . . . When Max Baer emceed for the first time at Slapsy Maxie's, all the Golden Gloves boys turned out. Jack Dempsey, in civvies for the first time, wore a plaid coat that literally shrieked. No, Estelle Taylor wasn't with him. Hear Alan Ladd may write the foreword to her forthcoming book.

No Homework in This One

If Stanford university puts in that "poise and dancing" course it's whispering over with Arthur Murray, what do you want to bet it's more popular than solid geometry? Solid sending, huh? . . . Rita Hayworth will do some of that little thing in "Gilda"—remember she was to go all-dramatic? Well, "Put the Blame on Mame," the second song they've slipped it, sounds like a hip swinger to me. Her husband, Orson Welles, is pulling another of those wonder-boy stunts in "The Stranger"—author, director, star—with Loretta Young for lead and Richard Lang, the youth who was Claudette Colbert's protege, getting a solid role. . . . Hollywood kids certainly are on the upswing. Latest to click is 15 year old Anita Gorden, who signs three contracts this week. She'll sing two numbers on Edgar Bergen's show and do some dialoguing with Charlie McCarthy, make records for Columbia, and gets a contract with Twentieth. Good going at any age. . . . Rags Ragland doesn't know it yet, but he'll get out of the hospital tomorrow. . . . Perry Como and Dennis O'Keefe are off on a music combine that springboards from a song—"Things That Should Have Been"—written by Dennis. He was too proud and shy to offer it for sale. Como persuaded him to sing it, will introduce it on his air show, and is getting a publisher for it. From here on, all Dennis has to do is write some more.

This and That from Here and There

Paulette Goddard has left her beach house in readiness for Jinx Falkenburg and her bridegroom, Col. Tex McCrary—when he gets home. Paulette and Burgess Meredith will do "Pygmalion" on the Theater Guild's air show. . . . Ty Power's sister has his home all opened and ready for occupancy, with Annabella expected back here any day. . . . They've made Judy Canova a deputy sheriff at Fort Worth, Tex. . . . Jack Carson, back from a U. S. O. tour, called me from San Francisco. Says he saw thousands of Japs plunging themselves into a volcano, and added, "Even in death, Hedda, a Nip insists on making an ash of himself."

Fantasy in Full Sway in Movie Tale of Aladdin

"A THOUSAND AND ONE NIGHTS"

By Mae Tinée

It's fantasy to the fore, these days, and no mistake about that! Pixies, gremlins, and other wee folk are moving front and center to provide some capers for a war weary world.

This film boasts the cutest little genie who ever popped out of nowhere—in fact, I couldn't see why Aladdin didn't prefer the mischievous Evelyn Keyes to languid Princess Armina. As played by Adele Jergens, known as "The Eyeful," the latter fits her label and does little more than please the orbs, but the sprightly redhead who pops out of the lamp has the old personality plus plenty of pulchritude. However, this film is full of pretty girls in colorful and brief attire, so you can take your pick.

It also is full of gents in baggy Bagdad pants and sideburns, led by Cornel Wilde and Phil Silvers. Mr. Wilde proves that a change of type is no problem to him—he moves easily from the pallid Chopin role in which he found fame to that of a dashing, romantic Aladdin. Phil Silvers is a fine feathered friend of his, and with good humored ease the film explains that Abdullah was born 1200 years too soon, which permits him to wisecrack in the best modern manner.

The plot may remind you of other pictures you've seen, but this time the old story of the beggar and the Sultan's daughter is delivered with a kidding nonchalance that makes it far more palatable than most versions.

Here I go with my usual plaint about length: I think a sharp cutting could have improved this movie a lot. As it stands, it's lush, lavish, and long, and it frequently stumbles over its own gaudy trappings and loses tempo. However, it also has several entertaining sequences, a capable cast and, as the genie, Miss Keyes hops, skips, and jumps away with the picture in a frivolous and most attractive fashion.

A Pretty Silly Plot

"I LOVE A BAND LEADER"

Produced by Columbia, directed by Del Lord, featuring Phil Harris, Rochester Anderson, Leslie Brooks, Walter Catlett, Frank Sully, James Burke, Pierre Watkin, the Four Vs, Robin Short, Philip Van Zandt, and Nick Stewart. Presented at the Oriental.

Here's another version of what might be called a "bump the noodle" plot. You remember—a bump on the head produces hallucinations, loss of inhibitions, or other strange behavior, and it takes another whack to restore things to normalcy?

This time, Phil Harris, a house painter, trips and, before you know it, he's a band leader, simply because he waves his hands on hearing music and the psychiatrist suggests he try the trade. A pretty girl, Leslie Brooks, whom the patient has scarcely known, is talked into pretending she's his fiancée—all of which provides numerous twists and turns to be unraveled before the final clinch. Most of this goes on in a night club, so there is sufficient reason for singing by Miss Brooks and Mr. Harris.

Rochester and Walter Catlett contribute their usual durable brands of comedy, and if you don't mind an idiotic plot your probably can sit quietly thru it all.

Packing School Lunch Box Can Be Made Easy

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune)

For many mothers the opening of school means packing a lunch box each morning. This routine is a daily chore for some, but it can be simplified if a few staples and other commonly used foods are kept on hand. Another time saving device is to prepare a dish for the family meal which can be carried in the lunch box.

Since sandwiches are the usual fare, variety in them gives the lunch box that needed lift. There are so many different breads and fillings to be used they need never become monotonous.

Here are several sandwich fillings good to eat and easy on red points:

Cream cheese or cottage cheese and orange marmalade on brown bread.

Ground carrots and prunes on whole wheat bread.

Chopped olives and nuts on enriched bread.

Peanut butter, mashed banana, and lettuce on potato bread.

Chopped figs, dates, and nuts moistened with lemon juice on oatmeal bread.

Cream cheese on thinly sliced cornbread.

Chopped hard cooked eggs moistened with catsup on whole wheat bread.

This applesauce cake is a good lunch box dessert. It stays moist and requires no frosting. It's a sugar saver too.

Applesauce Cake

[9x9 inch square pan]

1 cup shortening
1 cup dark corn sirup
1 egg
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
1 cup seedless raisins

Cream shortening; add egg, beating until light. Add 2 tablespoons of flour and mix well. Add corn sirup and applesauce and beat thoroly. Sift remaining flour with salt, baking powder, soda, and spices. Add to first mixture with raisins. Pour into well greased and floured pan. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Cookies are always a favorite for lunch boxes — they're so easily packed and children love them.

Carrot-Honey Cookies

[About five dozen]

2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups rolled oats
1 cup chopped nuts
½ cup shortening
1 cup strained honey
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup grated raw carrot

Measure sifted flour and add baking powder, soda, salt and spices. Sift again. Add oatmeal and nuts, mixing well. Cream shortening, add honey, and mix thoroly. Add eggs, beat well; then add carrots. Add dry ingredients, stirring until well mixed. Drop by teaspoons onto greased baking sheet. Flatten with a floured fork. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees] for 15 minutes. Do not store until cold.

FASHIONS

By Angela

Both boy and girl toddlers from 1 to 3 are appearing this season in plaids as vivid and gay as those worn by their elder brothers and sisters. These plaids are fashioned of wool and rayon combinations and of all wool.

The young man of the family at the left wears a wool and rayon mixture of red plaid. The collarless jacket, fastened with two red buttons, is worn over brief pants, the bib, pockets, and suspenders of which are edged with baby rick rack.

The red and white plaid wool skirt on the figure in the center is of 100 per cent wool. It has double box plaits front and back, and the suspenders are fastened with bright red buttons. A blouse or T shirt may be worn to complete the outfit. The same skirt is available in a wool and rayon mixture of red and white or brown and white checks.

The outfit at the right is the second member of a brother and sister ensemble. The wool and rayon blue plaid pinafore has a short skirt, a sweetheart bib, and narrow suspenders which cross in back and fasten under a flowing bow. Tiny rick rack edges the minute bib.

Tight Covering Needed for Storing Egg Whites

When storing egg whites for future use keep them very tightly covered. If egg whites have thickened somewhat from standing add a few drops of water before beating them. Thick egg whites will not give as great a volume when beaten as will thinner ones.

Price of Grade A Eggs Increased 1 to 2 Cents

Increases of 1 and 2 cents a dozen in the price of grade A eggs have been authorized thru Oct. 3 in Cook, Lake, McHenry, DuPage, and Kane counties, James F. Rationing End May Bring Cut in Meat Prices

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

Termination of meat rationing not only will end the red point problems for the housewife and the office of price administration, but it will ease the strain on consumers' food budgets. The day meat is taken off the ration list housewives will be able to reduce their food bills because the action will be a blow to the black markets and a larger share of the nation's meat production will move to civilians at the ceiling prices. These were opinions expressed yesterday by distribution experts at the stock yards.

Under rationing, black market operators sell meat without points and provide the scarce items at a price. Only the scarce items would continue popular in illegal channels, and buying pressure for these would be reduced in direct relationship to the amount of other meats consumers could buy without points, it was said.

Beef production currently is second heaviest on record, and may possibly set a new high next month. Pork output is lowest in eight years. Price violators anticipate a trade in pork loins, bacon, hams, and some other pork products, as well as beef, regardless of what action is taken on the rationing problem, but when other grades of beef are made available without points the above ceiling sales of the scarce products will automatically decline.

The OPA ceiling prices for meat are relatively low, food value considered, stock yard authorities say, and when more meat is available at that level the saving to consumers will be obvious.

Meat prices to consumers, however, are above those of most years just preceding the war and far above those of the depression levels of 1932 to 1934. Beef prices, determined by the live cost of animals to packers, minus the federal subsidy which is paid in the nature of a refund to slaughterers for rolling back meat prices two years ago, now average 33 per cent above 1938, the year before the war; 6 per cent below 1929, and 194 per cent above 1933. Live pork costs run 52 per cent over 1938, 10 per cent above 1929, and 326 per cent above the bottom of the depression.

president, Mrs. Millard Kennedy, will go from the luncheon to a subscription campaign tea which Mrs. Franklin Miller will give in her Lake Shore dr. apartment for north side workers. The Leverones will move tomorrow from their summer headquarters in Lake Forest to their Lake Shore dr. penthouse, where the entire benefit committee will neet next Friday.

Today's Events

Money raised thru former St. Luke's fashion shows was responsible for the new occupational therapy department at the hospital which will be opened with a tea from 3 to 5 p. m. today. Given by the woman's board, the new section is the first of its kind in any private hospital in the country. St. Luke's took the idea from similar departments in government hospitals, which have helped wounded service men on the road to recovery in the same manner in which the local hospital will correct occupational injuries.

Guests at today's tea will see the rear platform of a real street car, installed to give wounded men confidence in mounting steps under lifelike conditions, street lights donated by the city to help patients regulate their timing in crossing the street, and a gravel pit in which men will work with shovels of various weights to strengthen their back muscles. The new department has been decorated by Mrs. I. Newton Perry and Miss Cornelia Conger. Receiving at the tea will be Mrs. John D. Ames, chairman of the new department, and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, head of the woman's board.

Here and There

U. S. Designer Styles Smart Fall Handbags

BY REA SEEGER

Smart new handbags designed by an American, Josef, are the last word in distinctive outline, size, detail, and the newest of snappy fall and winter colors. Many are made of interesting wool fabrics in such street shades as brown, black, dark gray, and a few coppertones. Others are combinations of fabric with faille, or velvet. Frames are very effective because of the size and the unusual designs in which plastics and prystal are used for draw pulls, decorative clasps, frames, and pendents. The simulated tortoise shell plastic is the most popular, especially when used with black. Transparent prystal is used with black and with brown and other colors.

The Josef cordé bags are still the answer for an all-purpose choice for they're obtainable in street shades of brown, copper, black, navy, and dark colors. A few bright green and red models come in a variety of sizes and shapes, with the little box numbers way out in front of the parade. Most of the box bags have straps to sling over the arm or wrist. Bags with the very long shoulder straps are definitely dated, the larger bags also. Small, compact bags made of this cord or narrow braid are just about the neatest and smartest numbers that can be worn with suit or coat ensembles.

Bags for dress include many beautiful satin pouches and trick little models made with tucks and soft folds. All sorts of trick closings are featured in these satin beauties, also decorative clasps of plastics. Some are trimmed with fringe, some with fancy braid, and the party bags are aglow with jet beads, sequins, or fine silk embroidery combined with tiny steel or jet beads. The black satin bags are ideal for afternoon and evening clothes, and with sleek satin theater suits or the newest slinky dinner dresses.

For further information, call Rea Seeger, Superior 0800.

Presbyterians Vote to Push War Area Aid

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

The 8,630 Presbyterian churches in the parent American body of that communion have been asked to postpone all plans for new post-war edifices and additions to present houses of worship until the denomination achieves its full cash goal of 27 million dollars for its restoration fund to aid churches abroad. This policy, announced yesterday by Dr. Paul S. Johnson of the church's extension board, was adopted at a closed meeting of a conference of synod and presbytery leaders in the Stevens hotel last week.

This decision of the church, Dr. Johnson said, is a spontaneous and full determination of the executives who believe that the spiritual and religious needs of fellow-Christians in devastated areas come first. He added that those Christians have lost their churches, pastors, Bibles, Sunday schools, hymn books, and nearly every other material aid, and that their needs are vastly greater than the needs in this country.

"We could not feel morally comfortable about building our own additions in America in the face of tragic needs abroad," said Dr. Johnson. "We also feel that any church here at home which will postpone for a year or two its own building project in order to send funds to fellow Christians across the seas will become a nobler, stronger church."

Dr. Johnson cited the example of the moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, Dr. William S. Lampe of St. Louis, Mo., whose church planned an addition to cost approximately the same as its restoration fund quota. That church has voted to postpone construction until the full fund quota has been sent in.

Myra B., Oak Park—If an egg has a slight crack, rub a bit of shortening on the crack and the chances are the white won't run out. And to keep poached eggs from separating, drop a little lemon juice in the water.

Ellen J., Chicago—I find sodium perborate a very safe bleach for most materials, tho it must be well rinsed or it will take out the color. It is particularly good to use on white woolens, as it leaves them soft and fluffy.

Mabel H., Racine, Wis.—To remove a writing ink stain from a washable material I pour glycerin on the fresh stain, rub lightly between my hands, rinse, and repeat process until ink stain has gone.

Most Parents Are Eager to Do Their Best

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Among my older relatives I have one who is very "set" in her ideas, especially on one subject. Since it concerns this column, you may be interested:

"Don't you think you're wasting your time and all that thought and energy you put into your column? Don't you think parents just go along in their own way, and if they do read anything, let it go in one ear and out the other?"

There undoubtedly are people like that, just as there undoubtedly are many parents who are neglectful, self-centered, indifferent, ill-tempered, or even cruel. Any one who knows human nature knows that that must be so.

But it does do something very fine to the majority of men and women. To most parents their children are their jewels. The coming of a baby floods most women and perhaps as many men with tenderness, protectiveness, and a desire to give that child all of goodness and happiness that they can.

I not only see this all around me, but in my mail. And numerically this latter represents quite a cross section of parenthood. Thru my correspondence runs the urge to understand, to guide wisely, to give something more and better than the parents had themselves.

This upward reaching sometimes doesn't become articulate until a mother sees trouble brewing, or a father finds himself up against a stone wall. But frequently it springs into being when a woman knows she is to have a baby—and more often than you would imagine, the desire to learn and be ready is present in girls in their teens who read, observe, and do a lot of thinking.

I am convinced, in spite of my pessimistic relative, that there are many parents who are looking for all the light they can get on the subject of children, who are ready to change when they see their way doesn't work, or who are receptive to new knowledge and advice that seems to them to ring true.

All of us who are in close touch with fathers and mothers these days sense a deep eagerness on their part, and I have seen many of them grow and change.

To have a child and love it doesn't always automatically bring knowledge and skill. We study and think about other things we want to succeed with. Why not our children?

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	1 spade
2 spades	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
7 diamonds

A most remarkable series of bids took place when the above hand was played. The North player's repeated cue bids in a suit that his partner had already cued, were made to a certain extent out of deviltry, and I am quite persuaded that he did not foresee the far reaching effect these bids would have on his partner's subsequent action. In point of fact they enabled South to make a very fine decision as to the final contract. It will be noted that a contract of seven hearts would have been doomed to failure.

East's overcall of one spade is not sound strategy. Very little is to be gained by such bids. Better tactics by East would have been a pre-emptive bid of three spades [not too drastic a step when the vulnerable conditions are taken into consideration]. This would have made it virtually impossible for the opposition to reach seven diamonds, with assurance, and they would have had to be content with a small slam. South's immediate cue bid of two spades showing no losers in the suit is justified after partner responds with one heart, which makes slam prospects very bright. North decided to take things easy and allow space for further conversation, by merely bidding three diamonds. South now showed the heart support and North bid three spades. Since partner has shown a void of the suit it is doubtful that he will enjoy hearing about the ace, but North felt that it could do no harm. South's next bid of four clubs was routine and North countered with a spectacular repeat cue bid in spades. This bid could have no other meaning than an intent to show the king of the adverse suit.

South all along had been planning to play the hand in hearts, but the information that his partner had the ace and king of spades caused him to change his mind. If the hearts were not solid, South's two losers in that suit could be discarded on the ace and king of spades. It was reasonable to assume that North held both red kings and he was willing to gamble on a singleton club in partner's hand. At the very worst the success of the contract would depend upon the Spade bidder having the king of clubs. He therefore bid seven diamonds which contract was easily fulfilled by setting up dummy's hearts after South discarded two of the suit.

The usual Saturday quiz will appear tomorrow.

District Kappas to Have Membership Luncheon

The annual membership luncheon of the Chicago Intercollegiate Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma is scheduled at 12:30 p. m. today in the English room of Marshall Field & Co. The program will include a talk on home decoration by Mrs. Herman Kitzelman. Mrs. Reuben G. Carlson will conduct the meeting.

More Clothing for Children Is Sought by Sally

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Perhaps some interested mothers will have clothing which their own children have outgrown to give to Mrs. B., who is the mother of six children, girls, 12 and 9, and boys, 11, 8, 5, and 2. Another child is expected some time next month. The lack of apparel is presenting an urgent problem, especially for the children who attend school, inasmuch as the father has just returned to work after a long lay-off, caused by illness, and consequently there is no money for extras of any kind. The address is on the west side.

Mrs. X., living on the near north side, has suffered with an arthritic condition for years and asks our assistance in providing clothing for herself, size 38, and for her small granddaughter, size 7. She is receiving agency aid and is being cared for by her daughter, who with her child, have been sharing the small quarters since her husband's desertion a year ago. School apparel, such as dresses, a sweater, coat or snowsuit are needed, but such purchases cannot be made because the meager allowance provides little more than food.

Can any one supply a cot or folding bed and clothing, size 10 for Mrs. F.'s seven year old son? Mother and child are living in one poorly furnished room on the near west side. She has been suffering with a severe nervous ailment, which necessitates more rest. Items, such as clothing and a cot for the boy, cannot be included in their budget, as her income is insufficient for their daily needs.

SAILORS OFFER MICHIGAN ITS OPENING TEST

Play Tomorrow in Ann Arbor

BY WILFRID SMITH
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 13—Thirty thousand fans are expected here Saturday to see Michigan play Great Lakes and, while the Wolverines believe they can clear this hurdle, the fashion in which they accomplish it will indicate clearly the possibilities of a 10 game campaign which includes Army and Navy.

Michigan plays six Western conference games. Most critics will agree with H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, Wolverine head coach and director of athletics, that Michigan is not a title contender. We also will add that this probably will be the worst football season, measured only in games won and lost, since Crisler came to Ann Arbor in 1938.

Twenty-One Are Navy Men

Michigan has 21 Navy trainees on its varsity squad of 46, which also includes three discharged service men. Navy material now is practically unimportant in fashioning a football eleven for it assays at the same level as the better grade of freshmen.

Of 33 varsity players, only eight have won the M and five of these now are in the lineup which presumably will take the field against the Bluejackets.

Capt. Joe Ponsetto, 190 pound veteran quarter back, is the outstanding Michigan player. He must carry the team.

They're Working Hard

Crisler and his staff, Clarence Munn, Earl Martineau, and Bennie Oosterbaan, are working more diligently, if this is possible, than in the years when veteran men were at hand. Practice is limited to one workout from 4 to 6 p. m., but the coaches fill in thruout the morning and noon hour with discussions of personnel, plays, and reports from the movie library compiled in the last decade.

Michigan's line will be unusually light. Loss of Jim Rehberger, 210 pound tackle from West Allis, Wis., is one reason. But if lighter men have been assigned, it is certain the reason is aggressiveness or agility.

Rehberger's knee injury was a severe blow, but loss of Ed Bahlow, who played five games for Wisconsin in 1943 and who was at Central Michigan last year, upset the coaches' plans. Crisler had built Michigan's forward pass attack around Bahlow. He declared today that this athlete had the best pair of hands for his position of any Michigan player in the last seven years. Bahlow's right leg will be in a cast for five weeks. His position at right end now has been assigned to Ed McNeill, a 17 year old freshman from Toledo, O.

Nussbaumer to Return

Back field prospects are a bit brighter with announcement that Bob Nussbaumer, right half back from last year's team, is expected to return next Wednesday. Nussbaumer is a dischargee from military service.

Behind Weizenburger is Walter Teninga, 17 year old youngster from Morgan Park, Chicago.

Harold Watts and John Lintol, the men who shared the center's responsibilities last season with success, are the only letter men in the line. Watts remains at center and Lintol has been moved to right guard.

POWER AND SPEED FOR 1945 WOLVERINES

Louis A. Brunsting of Rochester, Minn., is only 17 years old, but the University of Michigan is counting upon him for end duty this fall. The Wolverines will face Great Lakes at Ann Arbor tomorrow.

From Knoxville, Tenn., comes Henry Fonde, husky half back to help Michigan in its bid for a Western conference football title.

EAGLES DEFEAT PACKERS, 28-21, BEFORE 90,218

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13 [Special]—The Philadelphia Eagles, unleashing a three touchdown attack in the third quarter, tonight defeated the Green Bay Packers, National Football league champions, 28 to 21, before a crowd of 90,218 at Municipal stadium in a charity football game.

The Packers got away to a 7 to 0 lead in the first period when Ted Fritsch, following a fumble by Leroy Zimmerman of the Eagles, raced 18 yards down the sidelines to score. Lou Brock added the extra point.

Eagles Take Lead in Third

The Eagles retaliated late in the half as Al Sherman, sub quarter back, collaborated with End Don McDonald on a 42 yard pass play, McDonald snagging it on the 12 and going across untouched. Zimmerman's placement kick tied the game.

The Eagles' third period rally started when Zimmerman passed 25 yards to Steve Van Buren for one tally and kicked the extra point. Then, two plays later, Sonny Karnofsky intercepted one of Irv Comp's passes and sped 39 yards to a touchdown, with another rookie, Ben Agajanian, kicking the extra point. The sortie was concluded as Karnofsky, after he had intercepted another pass, grabbed a 24 yard aerial from Al Sherman, Zimmerman converting this time.

Fumble Helps Packers' Cause

About four minutes short of the game's end, the Packers capitalized on a fumble on the Eagles' 41 and Comp passed to Nolan Luhn on the 20, from where he stepped off the rest of the yardage. Fritsch kicked the extra point.

On the following kick-off Jack Banta took the ball on the 1 yard line and, trying to elude a maze of tacklers, was tackled behind the goal and fumbled. Larry Craig pounced on the ball for a touchdown and Fritsch again kicked the extra point.

All-America Buffalo Club Gets 2 Stars

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13 [Special]—First Lt. Darrell F. Palmer of the marine corps and Al Klug, formerly of Marquette university, have been signed to play with the Buffalo team of the All-America conference. This announcement was made today by Sam Cordovano of the local club, preparatory to his departure on another talent quest on the Pacific coast.

Addition of Palmer and Klug to the Buffalo roster guarantees the team two of the ablest tackles seen on collegiate gridirons within the last four seasons. Klug, now stationed in the south Pacific, is rated by Paul Governali, also under contract to Buffalo, the finest lineman he ever has seen. Klug is 6 feet, 2 inches tall and weighs 238 pounds.

Palmer weighs 240 pounds and stands 6 feet, 2 inches tall. He captained the 1942 Texas Christian eleven and was named first string tackle on a number of All-American selections. He distinguished himself in the annual Orange Bowl game and the North-South contest. He was an outstanding choice for the All-Star game in Chicago in 1943, but enlisted in the marines before it was played. Last year he was a member of the navy team which won the Pacific ocean championship, sharing the captaincy with Edgar [Special Delivery] Jones, former star Pittsburgh back.

The signing of Klug and Palmer, together with the recent acquisition of Johnny Kittrell, former Baylor university star, raises the Buffalo personnel list to 16 men.

New York, Sept. 13—The unpredictable White Sox not only fought off the threat of a no hit trimming today but subsequently turned a high class pitching show into a scoring free for all that definitely quieted the Yankees in 10 innings, 7 to 0.

What ended it, after Bill Dietrich and Bill Zuber had done some of the dueling such as the 1 to 0 decision the Sox starter won over Zuber earlier in the season, was a blast of seven hits in the extra inning. During the regulation nine inning route Zuber had yielded only one hit.

Dickshot Starts Winning Rally

Zuber's only consolation was that Dietrich also was yanked, Ed Lopat batting for him in the 10th, and Johnny Johnson finishing impressively against his former mates.

During the nine scoreless innings Dietrich was pretty good, but not quite up to the pace Zuber set for himself. Dietrich started off with a

Cy Blanton, 36, Former Pirate Pitcher, Dies

Cy Blanton

Norman, Okla., Sept. 13 (AP)—Darrell [Cy] Blanton, one time major league baseball pitcher, died today. He was 36.

Blanton's best year in the majors was with Pittsburgh in 1935 when he won 18 and lost 13 games. He also played with Philadelphia of the National league.

Cards and Pirates will play off tie game if the outcome of the one game would have a bearing on the final rankings in the first division.
Double headers on Sept. 14, 16 and 30.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs this afternoon will have a chance to set a new major league record when they meet the tail-end Phillies in a double header made necessary by yesterday's rainout. If the Cubs sweep this afternoon's program—and they'd better in the interest of their pennant project—it will be their 18th double header sweep of the season. That will break the tie the Cubs now have with the Cards, who set the record last year with 17 sweeps.

The Cubs' pitching this afternoon will be done by two contrasting types of personalities—Paul Derringer, the Kaintucky bon vivant, who for years has fancied himself on the prima donna side, and Claude Passeau, the Mississippi tung nut king and dirt farmer, whose mind is on the task at hand in all his waking hours.

They Both Like Money

Despite the contrast in the two personalities, both Paul and Claude like money, a strange trait among ball players. Some say Paul thrives much better when he sniffs currency than when there's nothing but ragweed pollen in the air. The world series is less than three weeks away. Paul will be bearing down this afternoon, be assured.

Passeau needs no urge of world series cash and glamor to make him do his best. He is a tough competitor at all times and never subject to temperamental blowups or sulkiness over teammates' mistakes. In his last time out, on Sept. 9, Passeau shut out the Braves on four hits, all singles, the last of which came with two out in the ninth, sandwiched between strikeouts by Tommy Holmes and Charley Workman, the National league's No. 1 and 2 home run sockers.

Regular Cub Cast to Play

Derringer, too, did a fine job in the first eight innings of his last performance. He held the Giants to three hits in that span, before blowing up for three runs and a 3 to 0 loss in the ninth inning.

Supporting the two veteran battlers will be the regular Cub cast. With the return of Don Johnson to second base in the Philly opener, Manager Grimm had all his top liners on the field for the first time in many days—and all able bodied for the first time since Phil Cavarretta was injured on Aug. 12.

Playing of today's double header will reduce the number of complete games remaining on the Cub schedule to 15, one-third of them with the pursuing Cardinals.

Play That Nuisance Inning

Tomorrow the Dodgers will be in Wrigley field and the first business will be to get that nuisance inning out of the way. If the Dodgers protect a 10 to 4 lead they had after eight innings on July 20, when the game was suspended under a silly rule on which the National league has held the exclusive patent, the game will for the first time appear in the National league standings thruout the land. This would mean a gain of a game by the Dodgers on the Cubs but only a half game by the Cards.

The completion will precede one full game tomorrow then, on Sunday, the Dodgers and Cubs will play a double header. All box seats for that affair have been sold for two weeks but 25,000 grandstand seats will be placed on sale at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

WHILE the Washington Redskins were being annihilated, 73 to 0, by the Bears in the 1940 National Football league play-off game the field announcer, who had been provided with his script well in advance, kept plugging the ticket sale for the 1941 Redskin season. . . . He must have known what he was doing because Washington played to more fans, at home and abroad, than any other club in the league in 1941. . . . "This so amazed George Halas, recalled George Preston Marshall, the Redskins' owner, the other day "that he asked me in a grieved tone, 'Just who won that championship game, anyway, the Bears or the Redskins?'" . . . The Detroit Tigers have collected 19 home runs off Yankee pitchers this season, which was exactly their total off the same mound corps in 1944. . . . Dizzy Trout, who won four games and lost one in competition with the McCarthy men this year, has taken 11 games while dropping that one in 12 games since 1943. . . . It happens the pitcher who gave the New Yorkers their only decision over Steve O'Neill's sluggers is Hank Borowy, who achieved the distinction on July 8 before he was sold to the Cubs. . . . Jim Mallory jumped the Giants last week. . . . At first Manager Mel Ott was worried, but he remembered Jim has an assistant football coach's job at the University of North Carolina. . . . Mel checked with the school and found Jim had just forgotten to tell him he was leaving. . . . Altho the Yankees were pennant contenders for only a short time, and that late in the season, their home attendance thru last Saturday's games totaled 793,903.

New York football Giant fans will not see their favorites in a Polo Grounds engagement until Oct. 21, altho Steve Owen's boys do have a battle scheduled with the Boston Yanks in Yankee stadium Oct. 14. . . . John [Ox] Da Grosa, coach of the Holy Cross eleven, predicts Stan Kosloski of his squad will become the greatest college back in the nation this fall. . . . The view is supported by Stan himself, who modestly asked that he be given uniform No. 77. . . . "I understand a fellow named Grange, who once wore that number, was a pretty fair half back," Kosloski explains with a wink, "and I believe I could give it a little added distinction." . . . Fans from Clifton, N. J., Eddie Mayo's home town, presented the Tiger second baseman a sizable war bond when the Detroit club was in New York the other day. . . . If the Senators should take the American league pennant this year Clark Griffith will deserve his "Old Fox" label. . . . The lineup includes Mike Kreevich, picked up for the waiver price from the Browns recently; George Binks, a strapping Polish boy who came from Milwaukee for a small sum; Hillis Layne and Fred Vaughn, a pair of infielders who were rated only so-so in the minors; and old Uncle Joe Kuhel, who after playing with the Senators from 1932 thru 1937 was traded to the White Sox for Zeke Bonura and returned to Washington last season on waivers.

Report to Ancestors

When Hirohito's ancestors were told of the defeat
That caused Japan's unqualified surrender
They put on more asbestos clothes to shield them from the heat,
For their old carcasses were growing tender.

They couldn't see why Yamashita slipped up on the job
By failing dismally to bag his quarry,
You should have heard those ancestors when they began to sob:
"Beg pardon! Very sorry! O, so sorry!"

And when the emperor put on his diver's suit complete
The ancestors all bowed their heads in pain,
They knew that he was going to review his mighty fleet
Now operating far beneath the main.

"Ah," said the sacred ancestors,
"you don't know half our woes,
The war dead now are coming in so fast
That we cannot equip them in sufficient fireproof clothes
To shield them from the underworld's fierce blast."

They begged old Hirohito to get out a bulletin
Forbidding men to die of hara-kiri,
"It's better far for them," they said,
"to take it on the chin
And die slow deaths from gout or beriberi." —T. E. B.

DDT

Everywhere one goes these days,
Or so it seems to me,
They're madly spraying far and wide
With the deadly DDT,
Or else with little brush in hand
They're swabbing screen and door,
So's flies, mosquitoes, and the like
Won't pester as of yore.

The war, of course, is over,
But there's another battle raging:
Spray guns are the weapon
With which the fight is waging,
And I'm wondering if this potent stuff
Will bring dire desolation
And exterminate or extirpate

2 HIT PITCHING BY MASTERSON BEATS INDIANS

Athletics Surprise Detroit, 3 to 2

Pennant Jitters?

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—Washington Pitchers Marino Pieretti and Alex Carrasquel engaged in a locker room fist fight tonight over a pet bat. Pieretti insisted the bat, with which he had made three hits in a recent game, belonged to him. Carrasquel refused to give it up, whereupon Pieretti started to punch Carrasquel. The only reported damage was a slight cut over Carrasquel's left eye and a broken bat, which Carrasquel cracked over a locker.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—Walter Masterson stole the show from Bob Feller tonight, hurling the Washington Senators to a 4 to 0 victory over the Cleveland star.

Masterson held the Indians to two hits and pulled the Senators to within one-half game of the pace setting Detroit Tigers.

Masterson, like Feller, is a former sailor, and he had the better of it all the way tonight. He yielded a single to Al Clhocki in the third and another to Frank Hayes in the eighth inning.

Had Little Trouble in Third

Only once was the 6 foot 2 right hander in trouble. Clhocki's hit, a walk to Feller and a passed ball put Indians on second and third with one out in the third. But Masterson cut loose with a blazing fast ball almost as swift as Feller's to strike out Felix Mackiewicz after which Mickey Rocco flied to George Case.

Rookie Bingo Binks, looking at Feller's stuff for the first time, gave the 24,606 fans something to shout about in the fourth by driving in the first two runs of a three run Washington attack.

Buddy Lewis walked and Joe Kuhel tapped an infield hit toward second as the Cleveland infielders switched positions for an anticipated bunt. Cecil Travis fanned but Binks doubled to right center, scoring Lewis and Kuhel. Gil Torres' single sent Binks home.

Myatt Steals 31st Base

George Myatt, who stole his 30th and 31st bases to take the league lead, scored the last Washington run in the fifth by daring base running. He beat out an infield hit and stole second. Lewis walked. When Kuhel sent a short fly to right, Myatt streaked for third after the out. Clhocki cut off Les Fleming's throw and attempted to catch Lewis off first but threw wild, Myatt scoring.

TIGERS LOSE IN NINTH

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP)—Veteran Jim Tobin blew up in the ninth inning today, yielding three hits and two walks in rapid succession, and the league leading Detroit Tigers lost another game they thought they already had won, 3 to 2, to Connie Mack's Athletics.

Hal Peck, first Athletic up in the ninth, flew out. Then Bill McGhee slammed a terrific triple to right and Kish, who ran for McGhee, scored the tying run a moment later on Estalella's sharp single to left.

Dick Siebert, next up, hit a double off the right field wall, sending Estalella to third. At this point Manager O'Neill held a lengthy confab with Tobin, but finally decided to leave him in. George Kell, the A's dangerous third baseman, was passed, filling the bases. Then Tobin whipped three strikes past Buddy Rosar for the second out. Thereafter Tobin lost control of the situation, walking Busch and forcing in Estalella with the deciding run.

TUFFY BROOKS, PRE-WAR STAR, JOINS HOOSIERS

Regular in 1939-'40 Is Bidding for Job

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 13 [Special]—Indiana got support for its weak full back position from an unexpected quarter today when Harry [Tuffy] Brooks, 1939 and 1940 regular at that position, reported to the squad after receiving his army discharge. Brooks was a sergeant in the combat engineers, serving in the invasions of Africa, Sicily, Italy, and Normandy in his 4½ years of duty. He began working out today while John Cannady's injured leg still kept him out.

N. U. STUDIES DEFENSE

After two weeks devoted exclusively to offensive drills, Northwestern university's football team turned its attention to defensive measures yesterday. The type of defenses to be used against anticipated formations were studied at length in both the afternoon and morning sessions.

The offense was not overlooked entirely, however, as a lengthy forward passing drill also was included.

While Jim Farrar, the team's ace passer, still is out with an injury the passing chores are being handled by a quartet of players including Freshman Don Laser and Bob Voytecek; Bruce Bairstow, veteran half back; and John Barron, a newcomer in the V-12 unit.

TWO ILLINI BACK FIELDS

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 13 [Special]—Illinois is grooming two back fields for the early games this fall. Indications are that instead of substituting for individuals replacements will be made four at a time in the back field.

Coach Ray Eliot has named one outfit the ponies and the other the mules. The pony outfit averages 159 pounds in weight and includes Mickey Perkins, quarter back; Eddie Bray and Eddie McGovern, half backs, and Jerry Cles, full back. The mule club weighs 185 and embraces Bill Butkovich, quarter; Jack Pierce and Tom Zaborac, halves, and Ray Stone, full.

PURDUE STRESSES PASSING

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 13 [Special]—Aerial tactics, both offensive and defensive, were emphasized again this afternoon as Coach Cecil Isbell pushed preparation of the Purdue squad for the season opener with Marquette a week from Saturday.

Offensively, the Boilermaker trio of freshman quarter backs, Bob Demoss, Bill Deem, and George Huys, along with John Gardiner, discharged army veteran, who joined the squad last week, did the bulk of the hurling.

BADGER VETERAN TRIUMPHS

Madison, Wis., Sept. 13 [Special]—Sparked by the passing of Jerry Thompson, left half back, the varsity first team defeated the second eleven, 34 to 6, today as the Badger football squad stepped up its training tempo.

C.Y.O. SCHEDULES RING FINALS FOR COLISEUM DEC. 12

Finals of the first post-war amatuer boxing tournament sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization will be held in the Coliseum Dec. 12, it was announced yesterday by Louis Radzienda, director of the annual meet. Sectional eliminations will get underway Nov. 26. Last year finals of the organization's 14th tournament were presented in Ashland auditorium, half the size of the Coliseum, but returning service men have made it necessary to expand the 1945 event to pre-war standards.

UNITED STATES HOCKEY LEAGUE READY TO START

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 13 (AP)—The newly formed United States hockey league will be made up of seven clubs, with the season opening the last week in October, club directors announced after a meeting this afternoon.

Bill Tobin, president of the Chicago Blackhawks, will sponsor a Kansas City team. Other clubs will be Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Omaha in the north, and Tulsa, Dallas, and Fort Worth in the south.

METZ SHATTERS COURSE RECORD IN TULSA MEET

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 13 (AP)—Dick Metz of Chicago clipped seven strokes from par 71 today to set a new Southern Hills golf course record as he and Dr. W. J. Bryan, Tulsa, teamed to win a pro-amateur first ball round preliminary to the southwest invitational tournament. Metz's 64 was three under the previous course record of 67.

Ross Manarchy, Rockford, Ill., professional, and Gene Morris, Tulsa amateur, placed second with 67.

OPINION HOLDS DISCRIMINATION ORDINANCE VOID

Private Employes Termed Exempt

The anti-discrimination ordinance passed by the city council Aug. 21 is invalid as far as private business is concerned, an opinion by Fyffe & Clarke, general counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, held yesterday.

James L. Donnelly, executive director of the association, said many members had requested a legal opinion. It attacked sections 3 and 4 of the ordinance.

Section 3 provides that "all contracting agencies of the city . . . or any department thereof, shall include in all contracts hereafter negotiated or renegotiated by them a provision obligating the contractor not to discriminate against any applicant for employment because of race, creed, color, or national origin and shall require him to include a similar provision in all subcontracts."

Conflicts with Low Bid Rule

The opinion held this section was invalid "because it interferes with the requirements of the revised [Illinois] cities and villages act that municipal contracts shall be let to the lowest bidder."

Section 4 states that "it shall be unlawful for any person to discriminate against any other person by reason of race, creed, color, or national origin, with respect to hiring, application for employment, tenure, terms, or conditions of employment."

The opinion said this section was invalid "because it does not fall within any of the powers granted by law to the city." It added that "the rest of the ordinance [relating to employment by the city itself] is probably valid."

"Beyond Scope of City Powers"

George H. Tompkins, secretary of the Associated Employers of Illinois, sent a letter to members advising them that their counsel and other attorneys had held that sections of the ordinance went beyond the scope of the city's powers. It asked members to notify the central office at 35 E. Wacker dr. if threatened with prosecution.

The ordinance was written by the Chicago Civil Liberties committee under the direction of its secretary, Ira Latimer. Introduced by Aldermen De Priest [2d] and Harvey [3d], both Negroes, it was passed, 39 to 1. The lone dissent was by Ald. Orlikowski [35th], who objected because it had not been subjected to committee hearings.

Foremen Quit; 1,400 Revere Employes Idle

An unsual strike, involving 100 foremen of two plants of the Revere Copper and Brass company, which started Monday, has thrown 1,400 production employes out of work, it was learned yesterday. Most of those barred from work since the strike are members of local 477, United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers' union [CIO].

Spokesmen for the general foremen, foremen, and assistant foremen who are on strike said the walkout occurred because the company had "disregarded seniority in demoting foremen" and because it "had demoted men to ranks below those to which they should have been demoted."

Company officials said the strike started after an assistant general foreman "who no longer was capable of doing his work" had been demoted.

Close Out War Plant

Since the war ended the company has been closing out an ordnance plant at 6630 Fullerton av., and transferring personnel to its civilian production plant at 2200 N. Natchez av.

"With the closing of the ordnance plant which we operated for the government," the company statement said, "excess supervision was available.

"The company appreciates the difficulty of satisfying every one when such a major adjustment is made, but regrets that the supervisors did not attempt to follow more orderly processes. The company gave due consideration to each individual involved. Ability and years of service were both considered thoroly before final decision was made."

Demoted to Stock Clerk

Referring to the foreman demoted when the strike started, a foreman on strike said the man had been a shop boss for 25 years.

"He was demoted to stock clerk, the job in which he started with the company 26 years ago," the striking foremen said. "This is only one outstanding illustration of the manner in which the entire readjustment in the plant is taking place. The company is getting rid of its old timers in favor of younger workers, and then hoping that the older worker will quit in disgust."

10,000 PAINTERS OUT

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Ten thousand Bronx and Manhattan painters walked out today in the first formal strike in New York City since the end of the war.

Louis Weinstock, secretary-treasurer of district council 9, AFL Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers, and Decorators, told a mass meeting of 6,500 strikers that at least 8,000 other painters working for New York contractors on jobs outside the city had been called out.

The strike call resulted from a month long dispute between the union and the Association of Master Painters and Decorators of New York City. The union seeks 2½ per cent wage increases, job security, and paid vacations.

Westinghouse Idle Increase

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP)—With failure of a two day peace parley between union and war labor board officials in Washington, a strike of more than 10,000 "white collar" workers bit deeper today into production at Westinghouse Electric corporation plants in six states.

OIL UNION ULTIMATUM

The CIO Oil Workers' International union issued an ultimatum last night to major oil companies operating in the Hammond area to grant union demands for 52 hours' pay for 40 hours work before Sunday or a strike would be called which a union official said would be "a test case for the entire industry."

LAST QUARTER BOOST IN NEWSPRINT, END OF CURBS DEC. 31 LIKELY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—All government controls on newsprint will be abolished Dec. 31, it appeared likely today, and paper allocations to publishers will be increased for the fourth quarter.

Relaxation of newsprint usage restrictions one full degree in the sliding scale formula of reductions beginning Oct. 1 and revocation of limitation order 240 at the end of the year were recommended by the newspaper industry advisory committee at a two-day session with WPB officials, the WPB announced.

The industry committee also recommended that the newspaper industry plan voluntary cooperation in self-imposed buying restrictions, within the limitations of anti-trust laws, after government restrictions are removed. WPB officials said Canadian newsprint mills have indicated they can increase deliveries to the United States by 10,000 tons monthly, beginning Oct. 1. Deliveries since July 1 have been 220,000 tons monthly.

Rain Hampers Illinois' Corn, Aids Indiana's

Yesterday's all day rain, which was general thruout most of Illinois and Indiana, put another crimp in the northern Illinois corn prospects, but brightened the outlook in most parts of Indiana.

Northern Illinois farm lands have had plenty of rain, and the soil in this area is warm, dry weather during the next three weeks, if corn and soybeans are to mature before frosts strike. Indiana farmers, particularly in the southern part of the state, have been hoping for the sort of rain that fell yesterday, because their fields had started to dry out. Most Iowa fields also need rain, but there were only scattered showers in the eastern part of that state.

Heaviest Fall Downstate

The Illinois section between East St. Louis and Springfield had the heaviest rainfall, with 1.72 inches recorded before 1 p. m. in both those cities. The Carbondale weather station reported .51 of an inch of rain.

Western counties of Indiana averaged about half an inch of precipitation. The rain is expected to continue until early today in Illinois and Indiana. Cool temperatures are predicted for Chicago this week-end, with 70 the maximum.

C. A. Hughes, Cook county farm advisor, said that the rain and cool weather is not damaging the northern Illinois corn and soy bean crops, but the moisture is not needed.

"Most Cook county farmers believe their corn will be safe from frost damage if we have dry, warm weather until Oct. 1, and each cool, rainy day retards the curing process," he said.

Corn Prospects Good in County

Hughes predicted that the corn crop in this area will be very heavy, if the weather is ideal for the rest of this month. The normal corn yield for Cook county is 40 to 42 bushels to the acre, but the large, heavy ears on this year's stalks indicate a yield of around 50 bushels to the acre, if the corn dries before frost comes.

The farm advisor said the cool summer had reduced the tomato yield in Cook county truck gardens. An average yield is eight tons of tomatoes per acre; the prospects this season are for four tons to the acre. The soy beans are in good condition in northern Illinois, but Hughes said three weeks of warm, dry weather before frost time is needed to cure them. Many farmers are planning to cut their crop for hay if frost threatens.

STOCK MARKET EDGES HIGHER ON RAIL RALLY

Upturn Registered Late in Session

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The stock market pointed lower in most of today's session, but a last minute rally in rails swung the trend upward.

Buyers turned to the carriers because of a belief this group may be ready to catch up with the industrials which have been setting new eight year highs. Light selling persisted for many pivotals on the belief a technical correction would develop. Labor strife clouded sentiment altho hopes for tax reduction served as a prop. Dividends, earnings, and inflation thinking, plus individual developments, again aided favorites.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was up 0.1 at 69.5, a peak since April 23, 1937, attributed to an advance of 0.4 in the rails. The industrials were off 0.1 and the utilities unchanged. Sales totaled 1,170,000 shares.

Rails Lead Advancers

Ahead fractions to 3 points or more were Norfolk and Western, Atlantic Coast Line, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Evans Products, which responded to news the company had bought an important government owned war plant in Michigan; Douglas Aircraft, reflecting peace time air transport prospects; Chrysler, American Telephone, Sperry, Montgomery Ward, and Caterpillar Tractor.

Losers were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Edison, J. I. Case, United Aircraft, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Texas Company, General Electric, du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, and American Smelting.

RAILS TURN BONDS HIGHER

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Late buying in rails turned the bond market higher today. Transfers increased to $5,810,000 from $4,310,000 on Wednesday.

Baltimore and Ohio bonds were outstanding leaders on the upturn. The stamped convertibles of 1960 moved ahead 3⅝ points to 67¾ and several others added fractions to about 2. A rush to pick up Missouri Pacific general 4s resulted in a net gain of 3 points at 47. The road's convertible 5½s added 1⅝ at 34.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN

Prices were irregular yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in turnover of 46,000 shares. Most active issues included: Peabody Coal and Domestic Industries, each up ⅛; and Commonwealth Edison, Chicago corporation, and Serrick corporation, all unchanged. Quaker Oats closed at 90½, up 1 to a new 1945 high.

Standard Oil to Boost Pay, Reduce Hours

Plans for a general wage increase of 15 per cent applicable to approximately 20,000 workers and reduction of the work week to 40 hours were announced yesterday by Standard Oil company [Indiana].

The proposed increase in wages and salaries is the largest the company has authorized in many years, said a statement issued by Robert E. Wilson, chairman, and A. W. Peake, president. The detailed plans for the pay raise and reduced hours were given to unorganized employes, and were offered to union representatives of the organized groups.

Boost All Under $600 a Month

The pay increase is to apply generally to all employes earning not more than $600 a month. Increases to reward merit and correct inequities will be given persons earning more than that amount. Adjustments also will be made in rates of employes working on commission.

The shorter work week will become effective in the company's sales divisions Oct. 1. In other operations the reduction of hours will take place in stages as man power is available with increases in pay granted as hours are reduced.

Balance Overtime Loss

Standard employes in the Chicago area worked 44 hours in the general offices, and 48 hours in refining operations. In some cases longer hours were worked. The reduction in hours will be made as rapidly as possible the action may not be completed in all locations until early next year, the executives said.

The adjustment was planned with the aim of making the necessary elimination of overtime work as easy for employes as feasible, taking into account all factors in the current situation and in the industry outlook.

OLD NORWEGIAN NOTES MUST BE TURNED IN SOON

Holdings of old krone notes of the Bank of Norway must be surrendered before Oct. 6 to the Norwegian embassy in Washington, D. C., or the Norwegian consulate general, 115 Broad st., New York 4, Sigurd Maseng, consul in Chicago, announced yesterday. Such notes ceased to be legal tender on Sept. 9, he recalled.

"Only notes legally acquired and exported will be recognized by the bank and the amount will be credited to bank accounts partially blocked in Norway for the owner," the announcement added. "American banks should send their krone notes thru a federal reserve bank. Deposits and other assets with Norwegian banks must be declared for registration with the central bank. Deposits in the names of banks need not be registered."

All krone bonds, certificates, and treasury bills must be declared for registration with the bank or authorized Norwegian stock brokers. Deposits and securities subject to registration will be forfeited to the Norwegian government if not declared by Nov. 15.

PACKARD CHIEF OPPOSES PRICE RULE FOR AUTOS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13 (AP)—George T. Christopher, president and general manager of the Packard Motor Car company, today said the auto induustry does not need government control of prices in peace time. No car maker "would be foolhardy enough to set prices out of proportion with those of his competitors," said his statement.

Terming government control "not only unnecessary but highly undesirable," he said: "Nobody is going to price himself out of the automobile field 18 months hence by trying to recover reconversion costs immediately. We must determine how many cars we must build a month to be on a profitable basis and then project our production for a full season to determine a fair price structure. It's a job you can't do overnight."

FPC Authorizes Gas Pipe Line for Illinois Utility

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—The federal power commission today authorized the Central Illinois Public Service company to build and operate a six inch natural gas pipe line between Tuscola and Mattoon, Ill. FPC said the 20 mile line, connecting with the supply line of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company, will enable Central Illinois to reduce rates.

G. M. EUROPEAN PLANTS 30 PCT. READY TO WORK

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13 [Special]—William S. Knudsen, former president and now a director of General Motors corporation, said at a press conference today that only 30 per cent of the corporation's overseas facilities are in operating condition. The remainder, he said, had been damaged in the war.

Knudsen recently returned after a 31 day European inspection trip, which he said was made at the request of Alfred P. Sloan, chairman. He said the two General Motors plants in Germany were totally destroyed and the Antwerp assembly plant 90 per cent damaged.

The spark plug and Frigidaire plants in Paris are undamaged, but are run down and dirty. The two plants in England are "in pretty fair shape." Assembly plants in Copenhagen and Stockholm were found in good condition and able to resume operations as soon as parts can be obtained.

MEAT ANIMALS RISE ON SLUMP IN MARKETINGS

Live stock shipments from farms decreased again yesterday. Both cattle and sheep receipts in Chicago were smallest for a Thursday in four weeks, at 4,500 cattle and 3,500 sheep and lambs. The hog run of 8,500 was slightly above the average of the last six Thursdays, but 9 per cent below a week ago.

The steer supply was bought quickly at strong to 25 cents higher prices. No highly finished steers were in the receipts. Other cattle were steady to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Competition for lambs carried these up 10 to 25 cents, to the highest price level of the month.

Hog prices remained at ceilings of $14.75 for barrows and gilts and $14 for packing sows and stags.

WHEAT PRICES CLIMB; EXPECT LARGE EXPORTS

Expectations of a big foreign demand for wheat and reports the government expects to export 180 million bushels in the next six months brought aggressive buying of wheat futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Prices at one time were up 1 cent a bushel with September selling at $1.67¾, within ⅛ cent of the highest since late last June. Despite profit taking and a late reaction in September rye, wheat closed ½ to ¾ higher.

Selling developed in September rye as the result of deliveries of 150,000 bushels and the close was 2 cents lower. Distant options finished 1 cent lower to ⅝ higher. Corn and oats both closed ⅜ to ⅝ higher and barley was unchanged to 1 cent higher.

INT. MINERALS SALES CLIMB, PROFIT STEADY

Big Volume Offsets Increased Costs

Net sales of International Minerals and Chemical corporation for the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $30,301,091, an increase of 11 per cent over the preceding year and 35 per cent higher than in 1943, Louis Ware, president, said in his annual report yesterday.

The increase in sales kept net earnings at a level comparable with the two preceding years despite higher labor expense and other increased production costs, he said. Net income was $2,038,169, equal to $2.76 a share. In the 1944 fiscal year profit was $2,016,037, or $2.73 a share, and in 1943 it was $2,081,738, or $2.84 a share.

Ware said the corporation had no reconversion problem because it would produce the same goods in the same plants as during the war.

Plans for Expansion

Plans for expansion have been made and some of the projects already started. A modern fertilizer plant under construction at Mason City, Ia., will be in operation in 1946 and a new phosphate mine in Montana has started production.

Net income of Chicago corporation for six months ended June 30 was $1,101,408, equal to $2.34 a preference share and 12 cents a common share, compared with $937,567, or $2 a preference share and nothing on the common, a year earlier. Richard Wagner, president, said in the semi-annual report that net assets were $42,008,843, or $5.55 a common share, on June 30, compared with $36,754,323, or $3.97 a share, a year earlier.

The sale last Monday of its interest in Tennessee Gas and Transmission company gave Chicago corporation a profit of about $3,800,000. Cash was increased from $2,642,250 on June 30 to more than 16 million dollars by the 10½ millions received for the pipe line interest. Net asset value has risen to $46,003,000, or to $6.56 a common share.

Develops New Wall Cover

William H. Yates, president of United Wallpaper, Inc., told stockholders in the annual report that a secret formula had been developed for a stainproof wall covering which the company believed would revolutionize the interior treatment of many homes and buildings. He said the company planned to announce the name of the new product in a few months.

Net sales of $16,327,390 for the fiscal year ended June 30 were the highest in the company's history, Yates said. Sales were $14,196,748 the preceding year. Net income was $533,857, or $4.32 a share, against $526,907, or $4.08 a share for the 1944 fiscal year.

CO-OWNER BOND INTEREST

I hold United States series E war bonds as coowner with my wife. How is the interest [increment in redemption value] treated for income tax purposes? Should we both report half of it?—G. O.

If series E bonds are registered in the names of two persons in the alternative form such as "James Jones or Mary Jones" the interest is income to the person who contributed the purchase price, under a ruling of the internal revenue bureau. If both contributed to the cost, the interest is taxable to each in proportion to his or her contribution.

This is the general rule, but an exception would apply in the case of husband and wife as coowners in community property status, in which each should ordinarily report one-half of the income.

The amount by which a war bond, series E or F, or savings bond, series A to D, [sold on a discount basis] increases in value each year is regarded as interest for tax purposes, not as a capital gain. If you make your tax returns on a cash basis you need not report this type of income until you cash the bond, whether at or before maturity. The full increase in value would then be reported for the year in which the income was actually received.

Nevertheless, you may report such income each year if you prefer. Certain exemptions apply to savings bonds issued prior to March 1, 1941, but not to later issues.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads today reported 730,628 cars of revenue frate were loaded in the week ended last Saturday, 129,811 cars, or 15.1 per cent under the preceding week, and 94,538 cars, or 11.5 per cent, fewer than a year ago.

MONSANTO MAY EXPAND AT COST OF 48 MILLIONS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 14 (AP)—The market potential of its newly developed products justifies the Monsanto Chemical company spending an estimated $48,400,000 on 151 construction and expansion projects as part of its peace time program, Francis J. Curtis, vice president, said today.

Factors which may influence the company are general taxes, the degree of future government control, reasonableness of labor's demands, and labor's willingness to stand behind contractual obligations, Curtis explained.

Monsanto has plants, with physical assets valued at about 68 million dollars, in 16 cities.

Salary Level Held Bank Staff Threat

Maintenance of a qualified staff is a challenging problem for many banks, in the opinion of Illinois bankers who met yesterday in the Palmer House.

The problem arises from failure of salaries of officers and other employes to keep pace with the pay increases in other industries, George L. Luthy, chairman, told members of the bank personnel committee of the Illinois Bankers association. He said a serious loss of employes to war industries has occurred.

Capable Personnel Necessary

"It is impossible to do a good banking job without capable workers," asserted Luthy, who is president of the Commercial National bank, Peoria. "And sufficient compensation must be offered if we are to attract the right people."

Luthy said the personnel problem was "not acute" at present, but warned it would become so if the drift of qualified workers from the banking field was not halted.

A senior bank officer in a small community is paid no more than a bookkeeper in some other industry, and receives less than a machine operator in a factory, Luthy said. The committee will recommend to the association's administration counsel that a survey of salaries in Illinois banks be made.

New Tax Laws Cause Worry

Members of the Illinois Bankers committee on legislation expressed concern over certain tax bills enacted by the 64th general assembly in Springfield.

Eugene Abegg, chairman, and president of the Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Rockford, said the permitting of assessments of property at full value makes possible a large increase in taxes applicable to banks and all types of property. He recommended that voters in each county bring about referendums to limit the total amount that can be collected.
